AMERICAN SHIP STRUCK BY AXIS RAIDERS AT SUEZ

Next Step May Be to Arm Freighters.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.—The state department tonight announced that the American freighter Arkansan was damaged by bomb fragments during an axis air raid on the port of Suez late Thursday night.

The announcement came as it was disclosed that the arming of merchant ships is being considered by President Roosevelt as the next step in the war he declared on German sea raiders in his address to the nation Thursday night.

The Arkansan, which is owned by the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company of San Francisco and New York, was struck by bomb fragments several hours after the President delivered his speech. The vessel's plates were pierced, but no one was injured.

Point Out Probable Error.

The official state department announcement described the missels as "shell fragments." When this phrase was questioned, a state department spokesman emphasized that the legation official who sent the dispatch is not a military expert. It was said that the message probably referred to bomb fragments or fragments of an aerial torpedo. It was held unlikely that the reference was to shell fragments of the anti-aircraft defenses of Cairo.

The Arkansan was operating between the United States and Red sea ports and sailed from New York on July 19. It reached Port of Sudan on Sept. 5, left for Suez on the 8th, and apparently reached Suez sometime before the bombing on the 11th. Presumably the vessel was lying in port to discharge cargo at the time of the raid.

Damage Probably Slight.

In stating that there were no casualties aboard the American vessel, the state department noted that complete details of the incident are yet to be obtained. Presumably the damage was small, as a British communique issued at Cairo on Sept. 12 told of an axis raid on the canal area the previous night and said no damage was done to shipping.

Another communication from the legation at Cairo advised the state department that Joseph M. C. Suka, third officer of the American owned Steel Seafarer, had made an affidavit that the plane which bombed and sank his ship in the Red sea on Sept. 5 was "a Junkers 88, or at any rate, a German plane."

Reports of the attack on the Arkansan brought the admission from certain congressional leaders that the President discussed with them the advisability of arming cargo ships before he made his "shoot first" speech to the nation. They warned frankly that such a move will meet with stiff opposition from noninterventionist forces.

Neutrality Law a Barrier.

In order to arm merchant ships, the administration would have to repeal or amend the neutrality law. That law now forbids American merchant ships to carry any arms, other than the small arms usually on board for the enforcement of discipline. Repeal of the neutrality law also would permit American ships to go into combat zones with munitions and other supplies.

An admniistration leader, who asked not to be quoted, said that while the administration probably could muster sufficient votes to permit the arming of merchantmen, it would have a battle on its hands if the measure were coupled with permission for American ships to go into war zones.

This leader said that permission to arm merchantmen for operation outside war zones probably would not satisfy the White House. The President, he said, probably would prefer to have authority to send armed merchantmen anywhere, even into British ports with cargoes of arms.

At the White House, Stephen T. Early, secretary in charges of press, said he had heard nothing of any plan to arm merchantmen. Secretary of State Cordell Hull said he had no knowledge of the proposed move.

Strain on Arms Program.

[illegible] war and navy departments, [illegible] said that the arming of merchantmen might upset the current flow of guns under the rearmament program. Furthermore, the move

RUSSIA CLAIMS NEW VICTORY ON CENTRAL FRONT

Smashing counter attacks during a furious two weeks' battle of men, tanks, and planes have erased a new threat to Moscow and hurled the Nazis back 10 to 12 miles from Bryansk, 220 miles southwest of the capital, the Russians claimed today. Twenty-six towns and villages were reported captured during the rout of two German tank corps and 12 divisions of other troops.

Germany claimed its air force, with dive bombers in the fore, was softening Leningrad's fortifications "in preparation for storm assault." Heavy aerial pounding of Odessa was reported along with the capture of 3,000 prisoners on the central front.

BRITISH REVEAL HOW GERMANS SANK 8 VESSELS

Fight Off U-Boat and Air Attacks.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The admiralty in an unusual announcement tonight disclosed that a large British Atlantic convoy had clashed with German submarines and four engined bombers in a running battle which began in midocean and continued for three days, the British losing eight ships and, it was indicated, scores of lives.

The majority of the convoy has now arrived safely, the admiralty said, but it told a spectacular story of a bitter battle at sea in which the weather combined with German torpedoes and bombs to plague the long string of merchant vessels, a story of gallant rescues under fire of men whose lives were only to be lost a few hours later in subsequent attack.

Fail to Specify Dates.

The admiralty as usual failed to specify the dates of the attacks, and was silent on the number of ships in the convoy, but qualified sources insisted it was impossible that this convoy could have been the same which the Germans claim has lost 31 vessels, including three warships, under their attack in the past few days.

The admiralty has never been known to disclose anything relating to convoys until a number of days after they have reached port and been unloaded, whereas the Germans reported their big attack began before President Roosevelt's "shoot first" speech Thursday and was continuing Friday.

Hit by Subs, Planes, Gale.

Briefly the British convoy battle announcement was a story of three ships being sunk by submarine torpedoes, four by bombs from the air, and and eighth, damaged under fire, going down in a gale.

The details were told by the admiralty in a circular of a type used only in extraordinary circumstances. Far out in the Atlantic early one morning, it said, a submarine struck, and two ships were sunk within a few minutes. The little 1,473-ton steamer Brandenburg left the convoy string and went to the rescue, picking up nearly all of the crew of one ship.

Air Attack Follows.

"The convoy sailed on," the admiralty said, but only to be attacked 12 hours later by six four-engined Focke-Wulf bombers which "pressed home their attack" relentlessly despite "a fierce fire" from the armed merchant ships and their escorts.

Four ships went down, a fifth was damaged. Survivors were picked up, and again "the convoy sailed on."

The next morning came the second submarine attack, and the gallant little Brandenburg, now carrying with the men she rescued more than double her own complement, was hit and sank immediately.

"Only one man was saved," the admiralty statement said.

Elude Nazi Naval Raider.

The ordeal still was not ended. On the third day came wireless messages showing that a "raiding German warship" was in the vicinity. Luckily for the British, it never found the crippled string of convoy survivors.

The final blow was still to come. The weather whipped up now and for two days and a night a gale raged. The convoy hove to, but the storm was too much for the bomb-crippled vessel. She began to sink.

As she went down, however, the other vessels stood by and not a single life was lost.

The admiralty account mentioned only two escort vessels, the Deptford and the 990-ton destroyer Velox.

RAF Sinks Norwegian Ship.

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—The German radio reported today the sinking of the Norwegian mailship Lofoten, 1,571 tons, off the Norwegian coast by British airplane fire and bombs Friday. Only a few of the crew were rescued, the broadcast said.

Finns Have an Idea: Pay U. S. in Red Booty!

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Sept. 13.—With a large assortment of captured Russian armaments on hand and more coming in, Finland is in a position to export war materials. Inquiries today revealed that she would be glad to send part of the booty to America.

Finland owes the United States $8,126,622 and her leaders say the debt will be paid. But whether America prefers cash in the future to immediate payment in war equipment is not known, nor is it known whether deliveries could be arranged.

Reports to Finnish newspapers from their American correspondents concerning the shortage of equipment needed to train America's new army have resulted in the suggestion that captured Russian armaments might help to pay the debt to America.

List Stocks on Hand.

Among the captured equipment the Finns say they have on hand for delivery are the following:

A large number of field guns and howitzers of various calibers, including the heaviest used by the Russian army.

Light, medium, and heavy tanks.

Complete equipment for two tank battalions, including heavy tanks of the latest model in first class condition. The Russians were surrounded and wiped out before they had an opportunity to get the tanks into action, the Finns say.

New equipment for an artillery regiment consisting of batteries of heavy howitzers and light field guns, and supporting weapons still covered with the green paint applied in the Leningrad arsenal.

Two Blockades in Path.

If the United States war department is interested and could arrange for the British government to pass ships carrying the goods thru the British blockade, the Finns believe they can obtain assurances that Germany will pass the vessels.

The Finns say they would expect the Roosevelt administration to pledge that the arms would not be sent back to Russia and would not be delivered to England.

REDS FETED BY DUKES AND EARLS OF SWANKY BRITISH UNIT IN IRAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Iran, Sept. 13.—Social camaraderie between the British and Russian conquerors of Iran [Persia] is increasing.

Some days ago a detachment of the Household Guards, the swankiest troops in the British army, in which many dukes and earls are enrolled, threw a party for the Russians at Senna, but no Russians turned up. Several days later, however, the Russians did appear and a good time was reported had by all, with dukes and earls gallantly toasting their proletarian comrades.

Tomorrow the Russians are to return the hospitality. A contingent of British officers and troops left Hamadan today for Kazvin to be the guests of the Russians at a banquet and general get-together meeting. The British military attaché and the British minister here also are expected to attend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.— Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.], house minority leader, tonight urged the removal of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes as oil coördinator and of Ralph K. Davies as deputy coördinator on the ground that they have lost the confidence of the American people.

Martin's statement assailed both Ickes and Davies as inefficient, charging they had caused motorists financial loss, loss of time, and considerable inconvenience by their conduct.

Quotes Democratic Investigators.

"Unquestionably the report of the senate investigating committee headed by Senator Francis Maloney [D., Conn.] is of such character that Ickes and Davies should be removed," said Martin.

"Here we have a report by a committee dominated by Democrats, and headed by a Democrat who usually has his feet on the ground, declaring there is no oil shortage and that facilities exist to provide oil and gas.

"Notwithstanding that, Ickes and Davies created a hysteria, caused the people great inconvenience, and disrupted business to such an extent that many people lost money."

Martin said the vacation industry of the entire Atlantic coast was injured seriously by inefficient handling of the oil situation.

Aggravate Shortage, Charge.

Martin's attack on Ickes followed disclosures before a senate committee investigating the reported oil shortage on the eastern coast. At the hearing it was charged that Ickes and Davies were encouraging rather than combatting the shortage.

Railroad representatives contended any shortage can be eliminated by using surplus tank cars. Davies refused to accept the railroad's estimates and urged that a pipeline be built.

Senator Davis I. Walsh [D., Mass] wrote Davies that he had information that the eastern gasoline scare "was baseless and that the curtailment and rationing orders were unjustified."

Tropical Gale Roars Toward 3d Army Camp

New Orleans, La., Sept. 13 (AP).—A tropical storm of growing intensity, which has skirted Louisiana's Gulf coast for several days, today curved northward toward western Louisiana.

Nearly 500,000 troops from every part of the nation are encamped in hills directly in the path of the storm. Latest reports from the weather bureau said the disturbance would reach gale intensity and was expected to pass inland after midnight between Bayou Vermilion and the Sabine river, which forms the Texas-Louisiana state line.

Fleeing before the storm, nearly 500 army and navy planes, attached to the 3d army with headquarters in Lake Charles, began moving to inland airfields. Lake Charles, surrounded by many army divisions, was in the path the storm was expected to take. Third army headquarters, however, reported that the troops would remain in the field.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 13 (AP).—The next to last chapter in the story of a youth's attempt to fly the Atlantic behind a four cylinder motor has been unfolded in the Newfoundland wilds with discovery of the wreckage of Thomas H. Smith's Baby Clipper.

Inside the tiny cabin was a note, weathered by more than two years of summer sun and winter cold, which read, in part:

"Walking out to avoid freezing."

Find No Trace of Flyer.

That was all. No other trace of the airman was found.

The chances are that his body is somewhere in the wilds. Its discovery would write an end to the story that began May 28, 1939, at Old Orchard, Me., when the Baby Clipper made an unheralded takeoff. Smith then was 24 years old.

The region of his forced landing is 50 miles inland in western Newfoundland, amid rocks and lakes.

The note indicated Smith knew his possible fate for in it he identified himself as the son of Harvey F. Smith, Clarksburg, W. Va., attorney.

[At Clarksburg Saturday the flyer's father could only exclaim "that is almost unbelievable" when told of the discovery. For months after her son's disappearance Mrs. Smith expressed the belief he would turn up alive.]

The youth had been a licensed pilot since the age of 16. He had made his first flight at 14. For 19 months before the flight he had worked for a light plane manufacturer in Los Angeles, ambitious to demonstrate the dependability of small ships on long flights.

That ambition explained his unauthorized takeoff from Old Orchard. He had loaded his 670 pound plane with four tanks of gasoline, which quadrupled its normal weight, and chartered a course for Slyne Head, Ireland.

Held Compass Between Knees.

Before a handful of witnesses Tommy threw a canvas bag into his Baby Clipper and climbed in. The bag contained a revolver, fishing tackle, a hunting knife, a first aid kit, mosquito netting, three chocolate bars, bullion cubes, matches, mittens, and orange juice.

Between his knees he held a compass. He had no radio equipment, but there were blind flying instruments. He estimated his 170 gallons of gasoline would keep his 65 horse powered plane in the air for 40 hours, whereas he expected to be over Ireland in 32.

The remains of his plane were spotted by Canadian flyers in August. It was two weeks before atmospheric conditions enabled airmen to photograph them for identification. United States army airmen finally reached the wreckage.

Veteran pilots paid Smith a compliment for having been able to set the plane down in the rough country and live thru the crash.

TWO FOUNDERS OF LEGION HIT MOVES FOR WAR

Charge F. D. R. Has Broken Faith.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Senator Bennett Champ Clark [top] and Representative J. Hamilton Fish.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 13.—Two founders of the American Legion were cheered tonight as they charged that President Roosevelt has broken faith with the American people by deliberately adopting a policy calculated to lead the United States into war.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] and Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], held that the warlike steps of the administration have been taken in defiance of 80 per cent of the American people. A crowd of more than 6,000 persons, sprinkled with Legion overseas caps, interrupted the speakers with approval. The program was held in a city crowded with delegates to the Legion's national convention, which opens tomorrow.

Historic Legion Events.

The speeches, sponsored by the Milwaukee chapter of the America First committee, were of interest to Legionnaires because Senator Clark, holder of the croix de guerre and the distinguished service cross, presided over the caucus in Paris, France, in which the Legion was born. Fish, also a winner of the croix de guerre, wrote the famed "for God and Country" preamble to the Legion constitution at the Legion's first meeting on American soil.

Whispered reports of communist demonstrations and battles on the meeting floor faded to a few spasmodic attempts by hecklers in the audience. Outside the hall a half dozen pickets, three of them under 12 years old, marched up and down bearing signs derogatory to Fish and the America First committee. One of the sign bearers said he was from the Fight for Freedom committee, war intervention organization. Forty policemen watched tolerantly as the pickets paraded.

A Standing Ovation.

The crowd, which constantly interrupted the speakers with applause, gave Fish a standing ovation when he declared that congress would vote down two to one any proposal for war. Before he finished his speech, Fish suggested that the Legion pass a resolution condemning undeclared war.

He asked that the Legionnaires declare that any war must come in accordance with the constitution, thru a vote of the congress, representing the will of the American people. Keynote of the enthusiastic meeting was set when Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, chairman of the America First committee, introduced Fish. He received a roaring approval when he asserted that 80 per cent of the American people stand firm against American soldiers fighting in another of Europe's wars.

Senator Clark asserted that the question of war, opposed by four-fifths of the people, has been complicated by the entrance of Russia. He said it is now a "question of whether we shall go to war as the ally of one of the great powers of godlessness, ruthlessness, and brutality against the other great power of godlessness and brutality, whether we shall become the abettors of one power of evil as against another power of evil." He called the lend-lease bill the "Lenin-lease bill."

"Group of Wilful Men."

"We are faced tonight," the senator said "with a situation where a little group of wilful men has deliberately resolved to ride roughshod over the desires and intentions of four-fifths of the American people and drag this nation willy-nilly into war.

"Most of us listened night before last to the declarations of the President of the United States when he announced a policy deliberately calculated to precipitate a series of incidents which will inevitably be calcu-

NAZIS SMASHED IN 2 WEEK FIGHT, RUSSIA CLAIMS

Retake 26 Towns; Erase Threat to Moscow.

MOSCOW, Sept 14 [Sunday] (AP).—Red armies of the western central front, ushering in the 13th week of the war with slashing counterattacks, erased a new threat to Moscow by throttling a giant German offensive 220 miles southwest of the soviet capital and hurled the Nazis back 10 to 12 miles, the Russians reported today.

These massive operations climaxed a two-weeks' battle near the important rail center of Bryansk. Frontline dispatches said the Germans still were in retreat westward before the ceaseless hammering of Red infantry, tanks, and planes. Twenty-six towns and villages were declared recaptured in bitter fighting.

The Russians reported the 47th and 24th German tank corps, commanded by the Nazi expert, Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian, were routed on this front by Red forces under Gen. Jacob Kreuzer, a hero of the soviet union. Twelve Nazi infantry divisions, or about 180,000 men, also were thrown into this battle.

Reds Raid Bucharest.

The soviet information bureau, itself silent on details of the fighting, reiterated early today only that the fierce struggle continued without letup along the entire western front.

It credited the Red air force with its second raid upon Bucharest within a week. The latest attack on the Rumanian capital was carried out Friday night and the previous one on Monday night.

In the Baltic sea, speedboats of the northern Red fleet sank a large German transport and a coast guard vessel, the communique said.

The battle for Bryansk, 150 miles southeast of Smolensk and about midway on the main highway between Moscow and Kiev, was estimated by the Russians to have cost the Germans nearly 10,000 officers and men, more than 260 tanks, 600 vehicles, and hundreds of field guns.

The Germans broke thru in the direction of Bryansk late in August, and the Russian counterattack began Sept. 1, the opening major encounter apparently being fought on plains in the approaches to Trubchevsk, 62 miles southwest of Bryansk.

Kill 2,500 in One Battle.

Red army infantry, artillery, tanks, and planes combined to rout the German forces, executing pincers movements against armored wedges and destroying them piecemeal, the soviet accounts said.

During the last week alone the Russians were reported to have captured 238 tanks, 135 guns, 9 armored cars, and 28 mortars, and the Germans were said to have left 3,800 dead.

Russian tank units were estimated to have destroyed or captured 79 tanks and 32 guns and to have killed 2,500 Germans in a single encounter.

The Red air force bombed German airdromes near the towns of Orsha, Mogilev and Roslavl, behind Smolensk, from which the Germans apparently were operating their planes in the battle.

Kiev has not been bombed, altho 130 German planes have been destroyed at the approaches.

Air battles continued at the approaches to Leningrad. A single Russian squadron was reported to have downed 58 German planes in 17 days near the city.

Soviet dispatches said that the Germans were using the most modern equipment against Leningrad, including their newest pursuit planes, Messerschmitt 115s, one of which had been shot down.

NAZIS CLAIM DIVE BOMBERS SOFTEN LENINGRAD FORTS

Preparations Under Way for Storm Assault.

BERLIN, Sept. 13 (AP).—Dispatches from the German army before Leningrad today reported the air force, with dive bombers playing a conspicuous rôle, was softening "fortifications in preparation for storm assault" on Russia's second largest city.

German flyers said that after their first attacks in waves, the Russian defense stubbornly defending the beseiged former capital of the czars, almost ceased to function. The dispatches indicated that the air force still was hammering at the outer defenses rather than the heart of Leningrad.

Planes Bomb Odessa.

Odessa, Black sea port, also was reported under heavy air force bombardment.

In the central sector the Germans claimed to have taken almost 3,000 prisoners in capturing two hotly defended villages.

[A German broadcast heard in New York yesterday said that dive bombers staged an attack in the extreme northern sector of the Russian front west of Murmansk on Friday.]

Drive to Collect Fats.

On the home front, the war in the east took second place in German interest to the speech by President Roosevelt, comment on which appeared, for the first time, 24 hours after the American chief executive spoke.

Meanwhile, in a drive to collect fats, Labor Minister Franz Seldte ordered all German industrial plants, dairies, and raw wool washing factories to install special refineries to extract fats from waste water.

Seldte's ministry estimated that household dishwater also contains 25,000 tons of fat annually. Waste water fats, it was emphasized, will be used only for industrial purposes, such as soap manufacture.

Finns "Liberate" Province.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Sept. 13 (AP).—The Finnish radio announced the "liberation" of Aunus [Olonets] province from Soviet Russian rule today with the raising of the East Karelian flag over the capital in a ceremony in which Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim participated. The province lies between Lakes Ladoga and Onega to the northeast of Leningrad. The Finnish army announced occupation of the provincial capital early this week.

DUKE OF KENT LANDS IN BRITAIN FOLLOWING LONG TOUR OF CANADA

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP).—Malcolm MacDonald, British high commissioner for Canada, and the duke of Kent, who has been visiting the dominion, arrived today at a British airport.

MacDonald, who carried a dispatch case, said there was no particularly urgent reason for his visit and that he would remain here about three weeks.

Kent, who has been on a six week flying tour of Canada, insisted on going thru the formality of producing his passport for reëntry.

31 BRITISH SHIPS SUNK IN BATTLE, GERMANS CLAIM

Boost Toll of Big Atlantic Convoy Attack.

BERLIN, Sept. 13 (AP).—Germany's claims rose today to 28 merchantmen and three warships sunk in a convoy of 40 Britain-bound ships during an attack in the North Atlantic which began several days before President Roosevelt announced his shoot-on-sight orders to the United States navy Thursday night and persisted thereafter.

The original announcement Friday, which said the chase of scattered ships was continuing, reported that 22 merchantmen had been sunk and two more torpedoed and "most certainly destroyed."

Report 7 More Sinkings.

Today's communique merely said: "In renewed attacks against the enemy convoy mentioned in yesterday's communique, submarines sank an additional four merchantmen totaling 19,000 tons, as well as three convoying vessels. Thus, the enemy lost 28 merchantmen totaling 164,000 tons from this convoy."

The war at sea attracted particular attention in Berlin because of President Roosevelt's "shoot first" order. Germans were quick to observe that Roosevelt's speech was hardly made before the reich was scoring another success in its war on British commerce.

Claim 49 Ships in Six Days.

Authorized sources presented what they called a carefully prepared but unofficial summary of German achievements from Sept. 6 to 12 showing 49 British freighters sunk in six days. Submarines accounted for 28, surface war vessels five, and the air force was reported to have destroyed 16. Germans estimated the ships totaled 273,000 tons.

DNB, official news agency, quoted German reconnaissance pilots tonight to the effect that three British merchantmen damaged by Nazi bombers off Great Yarmouth last night now have sunk. The news agency said that in the same attack a British destroyer was damaged on the bow by a bomb.

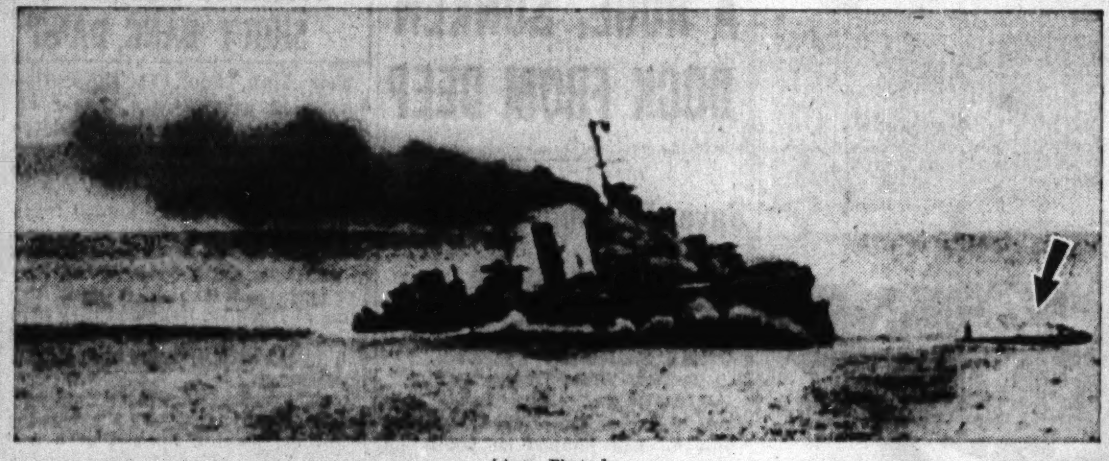
ALL BUT 70 MILES OF NAZI LATIN AIR LINES WIPED OUT

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—Elimination of all but 70 miles of an 11,500 mile network of German controled airlines on South America's Pacific coast was reported today by Pan-American-Grace Airways.

The line said it will serve Ecuador exclusively under new schedules, replacing routes operated by Sedta, German subsidiary. German service has been discontinued in Colombia, Peru, Chile, and Bolivia, leaving only the 70 mile trans-Andean run across the narrow strip of Chile from Santiago to the Argentine border.

When the war started 11,500 miles of German lines were scattered over five nations.

Submarine—In Battle and At an Ocean Rendezvous



[Acme Photo.]

This picture shows a British destroyer charging full speed ahead to ram a German submarine (arrow), according to British sources. The submarine had been forced to the surface by depth charges. The impact of the destroyer cut the submarine in two, the British claimed, and boats were lowered to pick up the Nazi crew.

Two German submarines meet in the "mid-Atlantic," according to Berlin sources. A rubber boat (at right) plies between the two undersea craft. Crewmen clad in shorts crowd the conning towers of the submersibles.

BRITISH PLANES ATTACK FRENCH FISH BOAT, CLAIM

How aerial warfare is carried on at night in Europe is told by an eyewitness on page 8 of the Graphic section.

VICHY, France, Sept. 13 (AP).—Dispatches reaching Vichy today said five British planes had machine gunned French fishermen off Cherbourg peninsula, killing one and wounding two. Another British plane crashed in flames at Yvetot in Normandie, it was said. The motors of the plane, a Halifax four-motored bomber, were disabled by German anti-aircraft fire. The seven RAF crewmen were taken prisoner.

British Hammer French Coast.

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP).—The RAF hammered the German-occupied coast with a series of offensive patrols over the channel today after night attacks in bad weather on Frankfurt in the Rhineland in which industries were attacked. All planes returned. One Nazi Messerschmitt was reported shot down.

Docks at Cherbourg and St. Nazaire on the French coast and a German supply ship off the Frisian Islands also were hit in the night bombing raids, the British announced. Two bombers were lost in the night forays.

Several German bombers penetrated some distance inland from the British southeast coast tonight. Bombs were dropped but there were no immediate reports of damage.

REPORTS LOSS OF $1,425.

Mathias A. Klein, 444 Eighth street, Wilmette, a tool manufacturer, reported to police yesterday that he lost $100 in cash and a diamond ring, valued at $1,325, while walking in Clark street from North avenue to the loop Friday night.

BANDITS' BULLETS KILL MAN.

Youngstown, O., Sept. 13 [Special].—James Dama, 54, Youngstown politician and restaurant owner died today, 11 hours after he was shot in the back by two men who robbed him. Dama wrested a gun from one of the assailants and fired several shots but did not know if any took effect.

3 AXIS VESSELS CLAIMED BY RAF IN CONVOY RAID

CAIRO, Sept. 13 (AP).—The RAF reported the probable destruction of three merchantmen and severe damage to others in attacks on an axis convoy in the central Mediterranean yesterday and the previous night.

A communique said that the fleet air arm delivered a night torpedo attack which left one ship sinking and another emitting clouds of smoke and steam. Then yesterday the remainder of the convoy, consisting of six destroyers and four large and two medium sized merchantmen, was attacked again by the RAF and one of the large ships was left a mass of flames. A second large ship also was hit directly by large bombs.

Bombing of the harbor at Palermo, Sicily, with large bombs straddling a ship in dry dock, an an attack on a munitions plant at Licata, Sicily, also was reported.

Dutch Sub Sinks Ship.

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP).—Destruction of a "heavily laden" axis supply ship of about 6,000 tons in the Mediterranean by a Netherlands submarine operating with the British fleet was announced tonight by the Royal Netherlands admiralty.

COL. M'CORMICK HAILS RECORD OF THE 42D DIVISION

Recalls Its World War Feats in Broadcast.

A glowing tribute was paid to the World war record of the 42d division last night in a speech by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. His talk was part of the Chicagoland hour broadcast on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Veterans of the division, many of whom were present in the audience in uniform, applauded vigorously when Col. McCormick quoted the words of Gen. Pershing [who was 81 years old yesterday] to the effect that "the 42d division magnificently showed its fighting ability."

In his talk to the veterans Col. McCormick said that his cousin, Capt. Joseph M. Patterson, who served in Battery B of the 149th field artillery, had been asked to address his former comrades in arms. Col. McCormick said that Capt. Patterson was unable to come and "it becomes my privilege to greet you." Yesterday was the anniversary of the division's participation in the St. Mihiel offensive which started the rout of Germany in 1918.

Battle of Gettysburg.

Col. McCormick said that he had asked two weeks ago if his audience wanted a lecture on the battle of Gettysburg. He said he had received answers favoring it but pointing out how extensive the subject was. He added that he would divide the theme into three parts, dealing with the march to the field, the battle, and the retreat afterward.

Col. McCormick also recalled that he had asked listeners a week ago to tell him who was the inventor of "infiltration," a system of battle tactics used by the Germans in the last war and further perfected in the present European struggle.

"I received three answers," he said, "from Brooklyn, Chicago, and New Jersey, naming Col. Bruchmuller, Lieut. Col. Wetzell, Capt. Geyer, and Capt. Von Hoffman. The last was the man I had in mind. If any of our listeners can furnish more information on this subject, I will be deeply obliged."

TEXT OF ADDRESS

The text of Col. McCormick's address to the 42d division follows:

"Many ties connect me with the 42d division. The closest, of course, I have already mentioned, my cousin [Capt. Patterson], who served with you. In addition to that, Douglas MacArthur was a friend of mine back when he was a captain.

"His capacity for quick decision in rather strange ways started him on his great career. When he was offered the position of chief of staff of the 42d division, chiefs of staff were ranked as colonels.

"Now, we are all human and the insiders in the old army were all looking around to see how they could best place themselves, and hesitating in order to get the best offer.

No Hesitation on His Part.

"MacArthur did not hesitate; he accepted that position, became chief of staff with the rank of colonel, and shortly afterward the chiefs of staff were given the rank of lieutenant colonel. Thus it was that MacArthur, having earned promotion, became a brigadier general, while other chiefs of staff who received promotion could only become mere colonels.

"MacArthur then distinguished himself, commanding one of the 42d division brigades, and after the war, when the new list of major generals in the regular army was made up, he was second only to Gen. Summerall.

Commands Artillery Brigade.

"Now, Gen. Summerall was a brigadier general in your division, commanding the artillery brigade, and when we of the 1st division were the first American troops to be sent into the line and when every effort had to be made to have our troops successful, you were robbed of Gen. Summerall and we were the beneficiaries.

"After he became our division commander, he became a corps commander and you served under him in the 5th corps. So you have in your division history two of the most distinguished younger generals of the American expeditionary force.

"I am going to tell you something that mighty few of you know here. I had a finger in the making of your affairs.

"After you of the 149th field artillery came back from Texas, a vacancy occurred in the command of your regiment. A number of your officers wanted Capt. [Henry J.] Reilly, of your regiment, appointed to that position but considered that it would be insubordinate for themselves to make the request of Gov. Lowden, so they asked me to do it. I have always been glad.

Takes a Busman's Holiday.

"I was with you at one time. After I left the hospital and before I was re-assigned to duty, I took a busman's holiday and went up to call upon you where you were attacking in the neighborhood of the Vesle river. Remembering from my own experience what it was that men at the front most wanted visitors to bring, I had plenty of it.

"Moreover, I was lucky in knowing all the staff officers on the way up. I stopped first at the army headquarters and visited Gen. Drum, who was chief of staff.

"Then I went to the corps headquarters where Malin Craig was chief of staff. Coming to your division headquarters, I saw my friend MacArthur and also saw your commander, Gen. Menoher, whom I did not know, altho he had come to France in command of my former regiment, the 5th field artillery.

Borrow Gas Masks.

"There we borrowed gas masks from Noble Judah, who died so tragically not so long ago, and went up to the brigade headquarters where we found Gen. Gatley, who had been so distinguished in the Philippine campaign.

"I came to your regimental headquarters at Mareuil-en-Dole, in a big farm—about half a big farm because the other half had been blown up, and there Gen. Reilly—Col. Reilly he then was—ordered Capt. Patterson to come down.

"Patterson and I, wanting to have a little personal talk and finding no place else to go, went thru a window and got a couple of comfortable seats on a manure pile. Watching German shells bursting—perhaps around our battery positions, perhaps on the infantry lines—we talked. Finally Patterson told me of his desire, if he should survive the war and I should survive the war, to start a tabloid picture newspaper in New York. That is where the New York News was conceived.

"On the way up to your headquarters I had been so busy finding my way that I did not notice extraneous objects, but on the way back I saw how terrible a battle you had been fighting because the Germans had been unable to bury their dead and there were plenty of them.

"Long before that you had fought in sector warfare. In the great German attack of July 15 you held your ground, as did every American division, altho French divisions gave way on both sides of you.

Attack from Soissons.

"On July 18 the 1st and 2d American divisions and the Moroccan division made the attack from Soissons. It was the continuation of that attack that you were making when I visited you.

"After I got back to Paris I called upon Gen. Pershing to pay my respects, for I had not seen the general for many months. He was highly pleased with the conduct of the American troops. He said it would take another million men and another campaign to win the war. He said the campaign was over for the summer.

"But then, after the easy victory in Picardy on Aug. 8, the plans were changed and the American army was called to fight the battle of St. Mihiel 23 years ago today, which, by the way, is Gen. Pershing's birthday.

"Afterward you fought thru the Meuse-Argonne to the end and went into Germany.

Advance 35 Miles.

"In all the battles of these campaigns the 42d division took a leading part. Statistics show that you spent 39 days in active sectors, 129 days in quiet sectors. You advanced 35 miles against resistance, captured 1,317 prisoners, 25 pieces of artillery, nearly 500 machine guns, 25 trench mortars, and 2,000 rifles.

"You suffered losses in the neighborhood of 2,700 men killed and 13,000 men wounded. Undoubtedly, if we take into account men broken down by fatigue and hardship, you lost more men than you numbered on your mustering day.

MAKES HIS DEBUT

The musical portion of the program was featured by the debut as a pianist of Heinzl Weber, 8 years old, son of Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, and Marion Claire, soprano. Heinzl, a self-possessed young gentleman, and his father played Haydn's Children's concerto as a duet. They were roundly applauded.

Miss Claire and Attilio Baggiore were the other soloists on the program. The program ended with a dramatic sketch, "The Star Spangled Banner." The presentation of the program was under the direction of William A. Bacher.

COVERS BATAVIA POLICE BEAT ON 82D BIRTHDAY

August Hendrickson, Batavia policeman, who claims to be the oldest bluecoat in the United States, in active service, observed his 82d birthday yesterday. He made his rounds as usual in a squad car.

"I could still walk a beat," he said, "but we cover lots more ground in the car. I get considerable exercise in walking thru the business district to work. I also work in my garden. My sight is good as that of a hawk. I can hear like nobody's business. I don't make many arrests, but I figure the good copper is one who doesn't have to make many pinches."

Hendrickson has been on the Batavia force for 20 years. Before that he was a member of the fire department.

Mr. Hendrickson was born in Sweden, but came to the United States when he was 18. The family lived in Chicago until the fire of 1871. After that they moved to Batavia.

1,600 British Planes Shot Down Since April 1—Nazis

BERLIN, Sept. 13 (AP).—The British RAF lost more than 1,600 planes on the western front between April 1 and Sept. 8, military sources said today. Their compilation, listing numbers of fortress planes, other types of bombers, scouts and fighter planes, said the losses were more than three times those admitted by Britain.

CHILEANS PLUCK A HUGE, SUNKEN DOCK FROM DEEP

Save Floating Structure Lost in Storm.

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, Sept. 13.—Stock in the Las Habas shipyard company has jumped 40 points on the local stock exchange, climaxing a phenomenal recovery of a floating dock and another chapter in man's triumph over the deep.

The dock capsized in Valparaiso bay on May 22, 1940, during a sudden heavy storm while the 3,000 ton steamer Chile was undergoing repairs. The steamer sank and nearly carried the dock to the bottom with it.

The British Lloyd's agents, who carried the insurance, paid $400,000 and gave the dock as "old iron" to the company for a nominal consideration of $6,500. Experts said the Chileans had lost the dock forever.

Unable to Replace Dock.

The $400,000 was of little use to Las Habas in wartime. The dock was their chief production apparatus and they knew there was no getting replacements of this kind with the United States, the only possible market, absorbed in defense expansion.

Necessity is the mother of invention, and the company's engineers went to work on the problem. A deaf ear was turned to the port authorities' recommendation to tow the capsized dock out to high sea to prevent it becoming an obstacle to navigation.

The conviction that the dock could be righted came after experiments in miniature. A model was capsized in a tank. The desired recovery maneuver was obtained by pumping air into its compartments. Then naval and mercantile shipping engineers became optimistic.

Preliminaries Require 9 Months.

The real job was doubly difficult because divers first had to cut away the great iron chains which tied the steamer Chile to the dock. It took nine months of underwater labor to separate ship and dock. In the end, the ship had to be sacrificed for the dock.

Crowds lined the waterside daily to watch the undertaking. Among them were many old seadogs who shook their heads skeptically. They were wrong. The grand finale came one Sunday amid the applause of the whole port.

The measures adopted had been calculated with such precision that the righting was effected according to plan. As the balance of air and water in the dock's compartments were adjusted, the huge structure returned to its normal position.

Dock Found in Good Shape.

Pumping was continued, and within a few hours the floating dock had risen to its proper level, apparently little the worse for its 15 months of immersion. It is hoped to be ready for service to merchant shipping in the South Pacific within three months.

Two national engineers were paid a bonus of $5,000 each. The life of each diver was insured for a similar amount, but the bonus paid in this case was $300. The insurance money represents a "bonanza" for the company stockholders. A special dividend is anticipated.

HUDSON YACHTSMEN STAGE A 'DUNKIRK'; SHOUT 'BANG, BANG'

New York, Sept. 13 [Special].—Something new in war clamor appeared today on the peaceful Hudson river. This manifestation of "preparedness" was an imagined evacuation from an American Dunkirk.

The occasion was the annual regatta of the Englewood Basin Yacht club. The skippers, 41 of them, described as American counterparts of the English yachtsmen who aided the British army at Dunkirk, imagined they were going to the rescue of beleaguered doughboys as they raced over a 12½ mile course.

Capt. Charlie Coon, 73 year old warrior, imparted a military tinge to the event by shaking his fist at a seaplane. Other skippers even went a step further, yelling "bang, bang" at the "Stuka." No casualties were reported.

Capt. U. K. Whipple of the regatta committee said these 41 craft, by tossing furnishings overboard, could carry more than 1400 troops on a round trip of 100 miles.

SAYS F. D. R. SEEKS VATICAN O. K. ON PLANS FOR WAR

ROME, Sept. 13.—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Vatican, was accused today by Roberto Farinacci in the newspaper Regima Fascista of coming to Rome to get Pope Pius' approval to the President's war plans. This was the first mention of Taylor in the Italian press since his arrival in Rome earlier this week.

The general belief in authoritative Vatican quarters is that Taylor is here to try and persuade the Pope that Britain will win the war and that the Holy See will benefit from the results. Therefore, according to this theory, the Pope is being urged to take a more explicit attitude against the Nazis.

It is rumored that Taylor brought a note to the Pope which he has asked to be passed on to the Italian government, making advantageous proposals to Premier Mussolini and intended to separate Italy from Germany.

ESTONIA REVIVES RELIGION, NOW REDS ARE GONE

Lutheran Pastors Ride Into Tallinn in Carts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Sept. 13.—Riding in farm carts, three Lutheran pastors arrived here today to conduct services in churches which have been without ministers for many months. With the release of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania from Russian rule, 6,000,000 persons now are free to attend religious services.

Leading clergymen of Tallinn, together with their families, had been arrested and sent to Russia. Even Nicolai Paets, 82 year old brother of the last Estonian president, Konstantin Paets, was not spared. For many years he had been archpriest at the Orthodox cathedral of Tallinn. He is reported to have died while being questioned by the GPU [soviet secret police].

Religious Revival Indicated.

The shortage of spiritual guides in Estonia at present is a serious problem. Clergymen are arranging to serve as many churches as possible. Every service held in the Baltic states thus far has filled churches to overflowing, indicating that the reaction to bolshevism has been a spirit of religious revival thruout the three countries.

Coupled with the dearth of religious leaders, there is also a shortage of school teachers and books. One of the first acts of the communists when they took over Estonia was to destroy textbooks and literature produced under the old government and substitute their own. These have been discarded now and the former books soon will be republished. Many teachers were seized and sent to Russia on charges of teaching ancient Estonian history.

Restore Land to Farmers.

One of the first decrees promulgated by the new Estonian authorities was to restore to farmers all land confiscated by the Russians. Soviet law specified that no farmer should have more than 60 acres. This measure ruined the large group of prosperous dairy farmers who were the chief wealth producers of the country.

The measure also was designed to create a large number of impoverished small farmers who were to be amalgamated into collectivized farms. But the soviets had no means to assist the little farmers to settle on the land allotted to them and to give them implements. The unworkable law failed and the present reform will enable Estonian agriculture to recover from the onslaughts of the Kremlin "brain trust."

Appeal for Bank Deposits.

Banks have reopened and Tallinn's two newspapers appealed to citizens to deposit the money they had been hoarding at home and thus aid the country's economic recovery. A soviet decree published in August, 1940, confiscated all savings accounts.

During the past week all male Jews over 17 years of age in Estonia have been arrested. Local leaders charged that part of the Jewish population played important rôles in the Russian rule of the country. Therefore, the police considered it dangerous for Jews to walk unguarded in the streets. Some of those seized, it was said, will be subjected to investigation as to their activities during the bolshevik occupation.

QUAKE RAZES 40 VILLAGES IN ONE TURK PROVINCE

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 13 (AP).—Forty villages in one province alone were destroyed by an earthquake which struck eastern Turkey last Thursday, The French Havas news agency reported tonight in an Ankara dispatch.

There were many deaths but the exact total has not been determined. News of the disaster was coming out slowly because transportation and communications lines were said to have been especially hard hit.

All the destroyed villages were in the province of Van, with the greatest destruction in the Karageusse and Erdjich areas. The boroughs of Patna and Deli in Agri province also were violently shaken.

Nazis Order Snowshoes and Skis Turned Over to Army

BERLIN, Sept. 13 (AP).—Manufacturers of skis and snowshoes as well as dealers were ordered today to offer their stocks to the army ordnance offices. A decree to this effect, appearing in the official Gazette, reflected extensive preparations the German army is making for a winter campaign in Russia.

80 NAZIS EXILED FROM IRAN; CRY 'VICTORY' AT FOES

British and Reds Fail to Get All 275 Internees.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Iran [Persia], Sept. 13.—With hands thrust out of train windows in the Nazi salute and shouts of "Sieg heil" [Hail victory], resounding from lips that sneered at exile, 80 Germans departed this morning for internment camps in Russia and India.

This was all the Iranians were able to round up of the 275 names presented by the British and Russian allies. German Minister Ettel delayed the train's departure for an hour so that he could have breakfast before coming to say farewell to the internees. Thirty-eight Germans remained behind on the excuse that they became sick overnight.

Break First "Appointment."

Last night, with a British-Russian delegation, two trains, and a guard of 100 soldiers waiting at the station, the Nazis simply did not show up at all. When officials telephoned the German legation at 11:30 p. m. and asked why the internment party had not appeared for the scheduled departure at 10 p. m., they were told that the Germans had not been able to notify everybody on the list and that it was too late to do so then.

This situation resulted largely because the British and Russians left the actual expulsion of the Nazis to the Iranians who, while they want to coöperate with the allies, still maintain diplomatic relations with Germany and therefore find themselves in a delicate position.

This morning the delays continued. Scheduled to leave at 7 a. m., the train with 8 of the 50 Germans requested by the Russians did not depart until 8:40. The train with 72 of the 225 Germans demanded by the British left at 8:45.

British Protest "Insult."

The British delegation, which had been waiting at the station since 6 a. m., lost its temper when Ettel failed to arrive on time. The head of the delegation, Counsellor Greenway, told Iranian authorities that the delay so that Ettel could breakfast was "monstrous, insupportable, and an insult to our country."

Iranian soldiers, headed by Gen. Ahmad Ahmedi, military governor of Teheran, stood guard at the station to see that no Germans escaped.

About 800 Germans remained in the legation compound, camped in tents. Several hundred are women and small children. A visit there yesterday showed most of them were very depressed, especially those wanted by the Russians. There was no evidence of trenches or machine guns with which, rumor had it, they intended to defend themselves to death rather than yield. On the contrary, they seemed to desire to give themselves up as quickly as possible to prevent any direct action by the Russians, who are only 90 miles away at Kazvin.

DENIES FINLAND MADE ANY MOVE FOR RED PEACE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—Hjalmar J. Procope, Finnish minister, issued a denial by his government today that there had been overtures looking to settlement of hostilities between Finland and Russia.

Procope said he had been instructed "particularly to state that no representative of Finland in any neutral country has taken the initiative to approach, thru the good offices of the American minister, or otherwise, his Russian colleague in order to find out whether negotiations would be acceptable on the basis of a restoration of the Finnish-Russian frontier of 1939."

REVEAL NEW U. S. AID TO BRITONS NOW IN FRANCE

To Set Up a Refugee Pay Office in Grenoble.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Sept. 13.—The extent to which Washington, D. C., has become the agency for British interests in continental Europe was stressed today with the disclosure that an American consulate is to be established at Grenoble to take care of the large number of Britons who have taken up residence there following their expulsion from the Mediterranean coast region.

Some 5,000 English subjects remain in France and are paid regular remittances thru the American consulates. Heretofore, there has been no American consulate at Grenoble.

Speculate Over Reprisal Action.

Reports that Berlin was envisaging reprisals for the delivery of all German and Italian citizens in Iran [Persia] to the British and Russians gave rise to speculation here as to whether such reprisals would affect the British remaining in France and other continental countries. Aside from the large number of English here, many also have remained in Italy.

A number have been interned in the occupied zone of France, but many well-known persons are free both in Paris and Berlin. Gordon Craig, noted theater artist, is living in Paris, and the author, P. G. Wodehouse, is reported living without molestation at Hotel Adlon, Berlin, after his release from a concentration camp. Wodehouse was seized during the Nazi blitz in France.

Sees British Régime Change.

Meanwhile, much interest was taken in diplomatic circles in Vichy in an article in the Swiss newspaper, Journal de Geneve, from its London correspondent which suggested that public opinion was being prepared there for the departure of Winston Churchill as prime minister.

The article quoted a London Times editorial calling for the grooming of a successor to Churchill, which, it said, indicates that something is being prepared behind the political scenes.

GERMANS DECREE DEATH TO FRENCH FOUND WITH GUNS

VICHY, France, Sept. 13 (AP).—Gen. Ernst von Schaumberg, German military commander of Paris, in a new effort to quell terrorist opposition in occupied France, announced today that unauthorized possessors of firearms would be liable to execution after trial before military courts.

As terrorist activities continued in various parts of France Gen. Von Schaumberg ordered also that penalties for illegal possession of "war material of any sort" be increased to make persons so accused subject to the death penalty.

Terrorists, said the French official information office at Vichy, failed in an attempt to blow up local government offices at Limoges, capital of the Haute-Vienne department.

At Perigeaux, Marseilles, and Limoges, all in the unoccupied zone, police rounded up about 15 followers of Jacques Doriot, rightist leader, on charges of unlawful assembly, it was reported here.

The Paris radio reported that 1,000 persons were arrested yesterday at La Rochelle, on the Bay of Biscay, in mass police raids on cafés and restaurants.

HAMMOND ORGAN

Children must be smarter these days

. . . or the organ must be simpler to play!

THE fact that so many modern children can play the Hammond Electric Organ must be due to the fact that the organ is easy to play! To avoid all arguments . . . and to state a simple truth . . . we proudly admit that the Hammond Organ IS easy to play . . . easy enough to be mastered by a child. Nor is that the Hammond's sole claim to acceptance in your home: It brings you the world's most beautiful organ tones with cathedral crescendo or drawing room whisper.

It brings this music to your home economically—both from point of purchase and point of upkeep, the cost of which is negligible. Besides accommodating your financial budget, the Hammond is built with a respectful eye to your space-budget—the smart, modern console is so compactly styled that it fits into a space less than 4 feet square!

All these things we can recite to you . . . but it will be when you see, hear and play the Hammond Organ yourself, that you'll decide that THIS is the instrument to make your home a pleasanter place in which to live. Why not make this Great Moment tomorrow!

The Modern console, shown, and the Gothic console, for church use, $1250 complete. Only $125 down for immediate delivery, the balance in conveniently budgeted terms.

CROWN PRINCE JOHN ARRIVES FOR VISIT TO LUXEMBURGERS

Crown Prince John of Luxemburg, heir to the German occupied duchy between France and Germany, arrived in Chicago on a good will tour of Luxemburg communities yesterday. He is 20 years old. Accompanying him were Pierre Dupong, prime minister of Luxemburg, and Fred A. Gilson, secretary of the Luxemburg consulate in Chicago. The prince will visit with 25,000 countrymen here and will attend meetings of Luxemburgers in Port Washington, Wis., today; Aurora, Tuesday; Dubuque, Ia., Wednesday; Remson, La., Thursday, and St. Paul, Minn., Saturday and next Sunday.

Crown Prince John.

JUVENILE HOME PRISONER, 14, IS ARMY DESERTER

J. Lee Bivians, 14 years old, was held in the Juvenile home yesterday for army authorities. He was picked up Wednesday night while sleeping on a newsstand at Clark street and Diversey avenue, and told police he had been absent without leave for 73 days from Lowry field, Denver, Col., where he was a gunner. Bivians told police that he ran away from home in Gloucester, N. J., last March, and joined the army in Denver on May 24, telling the authorities he was 18. His mother corroborated the lie, he said, explaining that if he were in the army she'd know where he was and not have to worry about him. Bivians is the first army deserter ever held in the Juvenile home here.

HINT JAP SHIPS SET TO RESUME BRAZIL SAILINGS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 13 (AP).—Japanese shipping lines, apparently acting in the belief that the Japanese-American crisis is blowing over, were reliably reported here today to have decided to resume shipping operations between Japan and Brazil. The operations were suspended last month.

Shipping circles here said if the Japanese resume their activities it is probable the Panama canal would be reopened to Japanese ships, inasmuch as navigation around Cape Horn is uneconomical and dangerous.

TELL OF MYSTERY U-BOAT FLOTILLA BASED AT DAKAR

Subs Fly French Flag; Crews Speak German.

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa, Sept. 13 (AP).—A story of mysterious nightly comings and goings of 15 submarines at Dakar, whose masts fly the French flag but whose crews speak German, was told today by two Danish seamen who have just reached Capetown.

The seamen, Karl Nielson and Carl Peterson, said they escaped from their ship at Dakar, French port on the west coast, the night of June 23 in a 12 foot rowboat. They said they had been held prisoner for a year. They were picked up by a British patrol boat.

Tell of Mysterious U-boats.

"Many strange things happen at night in Dakar harbor," one said. "The submarines are always coming and going. In the daytime they fly the French flag. Yet many of their crew talk German.

"When we arrived at Dakar in June, 1940, only two or three submarines were based there. When we left there were about 15."

[Capt. Edward W. Myers of the American ship Robin Moor, torpedoed and sunk in the South Atlantic May 21, said after his rescue that he believed the attacking submarine was based at Dakar.]

In addition to the submarines, the two seamen said, are the 35,000 ton warship Richelieu, three 7,600 ton cruisers, the Gloire, Georges Leygues, and Montcalm, each armed with nine six inch guns, two destroyers, and three gunboats, all French.

Richelieu a Floating Fort.

"The Richelieu has been temporarily repaired," said the seamen. "In the absence of drydock facilities, the best the French and Germans will be able to do is to use her as a floating fort. We were told there is a hole 100 feet long below her water line."

The Richelieu was disabled when the British exploded depth charges under her in Dakar harbor on July 8, 1940.

Nielson and Peterson said that when they escaped nearly 30 allied ships were held in Dakar with most of their crews.

F. D. R. Speech Put Nazis in Blind Alley, Say Turks

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 12 [Delayed] (AP).—The first Turkish comment on President Roosevelt's shoot first address came today from the official radio which declared: "Germany finds herself in the same blind alley as she did in the last war. The important thing is—how will Germany react?"

M'NUTT REPLIES TO USO: 'NONE OF YOUR BUSINESS'

Angered by Dewey Over Building Delay.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 13 [Special].—Thomas E. Dewey, who raised 13 million dollars for the United Service organizations, and Paul V. McNutt, who has charge of building the army recreation centers for whose operation the fund was raised , took off the gloves today for what looks like a knock down, drag out battle. Both are visitors here.

Dewey, chairman of USO, declared in a statement yesterday that the government agreed to put up 15 million dollars' worth of quickly built wooden structures in the right places. "We raised $2,250,000 more than our goal," he added, "but the government hasn't produced a single building—not one.

"It is costing the USO considerable additional money—$300,000 already—to carry out the program while we wait for the government. We have had to rent quarters in 90 communities and this is money we did not figure on spending."

"None of USO's Business."

McNutt, federal security administrator, under whose jurisdiction the spending of 15 million dollars of federal funds for recreation buildings comes, picked up the New York district attorney's challange tonight, saying:

"If it's a fight Tom Dewey wants, he will get it. It is none of the USO's business what we do about buildings or how or where we build them. All they have to do is give service and I don't mean lip service. Quarrels won't help them. Let them help rather than hinder. The only ones to suffer in a fight like this will be the service men."

Back of the Dewey and McNutt statements is a long and bitter row which started in the early days of the USO drive which ended officially yesterday. A chief cause for the fight—and for the delay in the construction of buildings—is a difference of opinion as to what kind of structures should be built.

Army officers and the officials of towns near camps want large buildings of brick and stone.

"We are not interested in 1944," said Dewey. "We want buildings that can be thrown up in 10 to 20 days. We need them now. This long term planning of long distance centers is hardly excusable."

McNutt declared: "Everything is being done to expedite the buildings."

Thus far the government has not turned over even one building to the USO, altho the ground for many was broken many months ago. Charles Taft, McNutt's assistant, presided at ground breaking ceremonies at Fort Dix, N. J., June 12, but the building is far from complete.

Dewey charged that altho the people of the United States had given liberally and promptly their efforts were being stymied by governmental delay.

McNutt admitted that "government processes are a little slow." "But," he said, "we will get there. Certain elements are trying to make a political football out of a very delicate thing. Certain men see this as an opportunity to hit the administration with another stink bomb. I won't let them do it. I am going to wield a wild and wicked shillelah to beat it out."

So incensed was McNutt at Dewey's criticism that he hinted he was going to carry the row to President Roosevelt on Monday.

Sees F. D. R. Bottleneck.

Harper Sibley, permanent president of the USO, who lives here, shook his head unhappily over the whole situation.

"I'm afraid," said Sibley, "the biggest bottleneck is the President's desk. But I don't want to criticize our President at a time like this.

"The boys in the camps are getting restless, but bids for 58 new buildings are being received now. They should go into construction within three or four weeks—I hope."

Dewey Backs La Guardia for New York City Mayor

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—Declaring it would be "most unfortunate if New York City should be turned back to machine government," District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today indorsed Mayor Fiorello La Guardia for the Republican nomination for mayor in Tuesday's Republican primary. La Guardia, seeking a third term in city hall, found himself opposed on the Republican ticket after the Court of Appeals, the state's highest tribunal, upheld on Thursday John R. Davies' right to a place on the ballot.

Special machinery and equipment were procured long before defense production began to take priority. After two years of preparation, actual production began this summer.

A Great Modern Piano Factory—The Wurlitzer factory at DeKalb, Illinois, is one of the most efficient in the world. Wurlitzer designers, engineers and craftsmen are top-flight men noted for their skill and advanced production methods. They are constantly finding ways to reduce manufacturing costs without sacrificing Wurlitzer standards of excellence.

Enormous Sales Volume—In spite of all these economies, it is possible for us to offer this value today only because more Wurlitzer pianos are sold than those of any other name! Because the Wurlitzer business idea is to manufacture many pianos at a small profit instead of a few at a big profit.

TWO FOUNDERS OF LEGION HIT MOVES FOR WAR

Charge the President Has Broken Faith.

lated to lead this nation into the very vortex of a shooting war."

Clark said this policy, if pursued, would result in the loss of millions of lives of American boys in Europe, Asia, or Africa.

"The most dangerous thing which has happened to our liberties in the United States in our lifetime," he continued, "is the declaration by the President that without any authorization whatever by congress—the only authority empowered by the constitution to declare war—he intends to proceed to commit acts of war.

"Such is the price the American people may have to pay for the privilege of having the President and his two sons entertained by the Prime Minister of Great Britain on a British man-of-war."

Clark told the listeners that it seems incredible that the determination of an overwhelming majority of the Americans to stay out of war can be overridden by only one-fifth of the citizens.

"Tail Wagging the Dog."

"But when you reflect," he continued, "that the tail which so vigorously is trying to wag the national dog includes the international bankers, most of the great metropolitan press, a combination of motion picture producers, a combination of the great broadcasting agencies, all of the 'kept' columnists who infest the daily press, and the whole force of the enormous executive department of the government itself, you may understand how dangerous is our situation."

Clark then charged that "the propaganda of the war party, the brazen effrontery of such war claquers as Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, and the shocking recommendation of General Marshall [army chief of staff] for authority to conduct any number of new AEFs without further action by congress, all give evidence of the desperate lengths to which the war mongers in and out of the government are willing and eager to go."

Denunciation of Russia.

Of Russia, the speaker declared that much has been said concerning the four freedoms—of which one is freedom of religion.

"Can anyone conceive," he asked, "of American boys being sent to their deaths singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" under the bloody banner of the hammer and sickle—the emblem of cruel extirpation of all religion?"

On May 27, Clark pointed out, President Roosevelt said a victory for Hitler would mean that our right to worship would be threatened because "the Nazis are as ruthless as the communists in the denial of God."

"Thus saith the President," Clark continued, "and I agree with every syllable of that noble pronouncement. Yet the war party is demanding that we make common cause with Stalin, forget those precepts of our President, and risk our own liberties and our great destiny to maintain the cause of one system of heathenism against another.

"We have heard much of the right of little peoples, with which we all must and do agree. But how can it be maintained that American blood, or even American armament which we may need for our own defense, or even American money wrung from the toil and sweat of American taxpayers, shall be poured out to protect Russia in its possession of the half of Poland which it stole by its unholy collaboration with Hitler in the rape of Poland?

"Shall we weaken our own defenses by sending our own defensive material to defend the portion of Rumania which Stalin seized with the connivance of Hitler, against the rest of Rumania which Hitler grabbed with the acquiescence of Stalin? Shall we send American planes which we need ourselves to fly the soviet emblem and fight against the planes which we sent to Finland when that heroic country was wantonly attacked in a bloody foray by that great democrat, Josef Stalin, autocrat of all the Russians?

"An Evil Agreement."

"Shall we fight to maintain Stalin in the possession of the little Baltic states which he seized under an evil agreement with Hitler?"

The speaker asked what more paradoxical situation has arisen than the spectacle of Thomas W. Lamont, senior partner of Morgan and company, attending a meeting of sympathy for soviet Russia.

Clark was equally biting in brief mentions of Col. William Donovan, "that great liberator of Yugo-Slavia," and of Wendell L. Willkie, "Field Marshal Willkie of Lambeth Walk."

Clark asserted that events of the past few weeks illustrated the danger of participation in old world feuds. He pointed out that England and France, sworn allies, are now engaged in recriminations and strife.

"The last desperate stand which we are now making for peace—for the prevention of the entrance of our country into the bloody chaos of the European cataclysm important as that is, has yet more momentous implications," Clark continued. "In all likelihood when we speak for peace tonight against the mechanized panzer divisions of power and propaganda, which are seeking to subdue the great 80 per cent of the American people opposed to war and to commit them to the shambles against their will, we are also making a last stand for democracy in the United States, for the American form of government as it came down from the fathers, for our democratic scheme of life as we inherited it. Our generation owes a sacred obligation to enjoy it and to pass it on as a holy trust to our children and our children's children."

Challenge by Fish.

Fish challenged the President to send a war declaration to congress—"which we will vote down by more than two to one."

"I accuse President Roosevelt of having deliberately tried to put America into an undeclared war in his radio speech last Thursday night," Fish said. "I accuse him of not taking the American people or the congress into his confidence by defining what he meant by defense zones.

"I accuse President Roosevelt of spreading war hysteria and fear thru the use of half truths, perversions of the truth, and poisonous and false propaganda and of trying to instill fear of a German navy and invasion of the United States.

"I accuse President Roosevelt of having broken faith and the promises and pledges he gave the American people before election when he ordered our navy and air forces to open fire on German submarines and raiders practically all over the seven seas."

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—Gen. John J. Pershing became 81 years old today, observing the occasion quietly at Walter Reed hospital where friends said he had been undergoing his annual physical checkup. They reported that the health of the man who commanded the AEF in France in the World war was better than a year ago and in general was "remarkably good."

KEEP MILWAUKEE SAFE, CITY'S AIM AS VETS GATHER

Close Downtown to Autos During Convention.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 13.—This safest large city in America is taking heroic measures to maintain this record thru a national convention of the American Legion. The community of 648,000 population is surrendering its normal transportation facilities for the protection of 75,000 visitors, including the pranksters, the hilarious, and the motorized reproductions of French locomotives.

At 6 a. m. tomorrow barricades against private automobiles will close about 150 square blocks in the downtown area, from the lake front 21 blocks west to 11th street and for the seven blocks between State and Clybourn streets. The barricades will remain thru Wednesday night.

On Tuesday, parade day, even the fire department vehicles will not cross the business district unless there is a third alarm. The fireboat won't lift bridges unless it receives a special summons. Newspapers are to be delivered downtown by speedboat and pack back. Mail pickups will be postponed until after the parade.

Essential freight deliveries to the business district are being made between midnight and 9 a. m.

ADVANCINGPEACE ONE OF AIMS OF LEGION FOUNDERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 13.—The preamble to the constitution of the American Legion, pledging the members to promote peace and to uphold and defend the constitution of the United States, was recalled here today as the Legionnaires gathered for their national convention in Milwaukee.

Hundreds of resolutions dealing with national and foreign policy are scheduled to be considered by the men who, 24 years ago, were among the soldiers sent abroad to make the world safe for democracy. The Legion preamble is:

"For God and country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

Legion Notes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 13.—Explosions of toy cannons, fire crackers, strange appearing vehicles, water pistols and various electric shocking devices served notice on Milwaukee that the Legion has taken over. Various laudatory lyrics concerning a lady known as Mademoiselle from Armentieres could be heard exuding from various hotel rooms.

Traffic policemen's whistles apparently delighted fun loving Legionnaires and local cutups who joined the fun. The blasts of these implements could be heard on every corner and traffic policemen appeared a bit perturbed.

Some excitement was stirred up by a slot machine raid by the police morals squad on the Disabled War Veterans of the World War club at 726 North Water street. Ten streamlined slot machines and Joseph Deuster, who said he is agent for chapter 41, DAV, were taken to police headquarters.

Commander Warner predicted today that a "second generation Legion" would be formed unless the Legion opens its ranks to soldiers of the present.

Sniping over the issue of whether local food and drink purveyors would or would not use paper cups, dishes, and drink containers continued today. Irate comments were made by Legion leaders, and Commander Warner pleaded that the Legionnaires be "treated like human beings."

CONFESSED GOON EXAMINED AFTER BEATING CHARGE

David Goldblatt, 42 years old, who yesterday signed a petition charging that state's attorney's policemen suspended him from a door and beat him until he confessed participation in the murder of Anton Gorczak, 43, cleaning truck driver, on April 23, later in the day was examined by four physicians. On Tuesday they will file a medical report with Acting Chief Justice John F. Haas of the Criminal court, who ordered the examination.

Goldblatt is being held in the county jail with Samuel Ginsburg, alias Samuel [Doc] Gaines, a partner with the Capone gangster, Murray Humphreys, in the closed Klever Shampay Cleaners. Goldblatt said that Ginsburg paid $300 to have Gorczak beaten to death. He said Gorczak had been taking business from the Klever Shampay firm. Search continued yesterday for Thomas Russo as the man who struck the blows, and a fourth man whose name is not known.

Drs. M. H. Levy and Constantine Theodore of the county jail and Dr. Andrew Toman of the Bridewell examined Goldblatt along with Dr. Harold S. Hulbert, who represented Defense Attorney Harold Levy. First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley denied that Goldblatt had been mistreated.

NEW ARRIVALS SWELL LEGION'S ANTI-WAR GROUP

New York to Fight Moves to Aid Russia.

ON W-G-N TODAY.

At 8 p. m. W-G-N will broadcast a convention preview with Milo J. Warner, national commander, and Mayor Carl Ziedler of Milwaukee participating.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Herman F. Luhrs.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 13.—Arrival of delegations from Indiana and Michigan, and first stragglers from New York today strengthened the report that the American Legion convention might be stampeded against a strong pro-administration war pronouncement.

Delegates from Michigan and New York expressed determination to stand behind state resolutions against aid to communist Russia. Indiana spokesmen said the matter of war or peace had been hushed at the state meeting, but that a lively floor fight is expected here.

"Our state convention passed a resolution opposing aid to the communists and the 46 members of this delegation are definitely behind this resolution," said Herman F. Luhrs, Michigan state commander and chairman of the state delegation. "The communists and the Nazis are the same thing as far as we're concerned. They both aim at world conquest."

New York Group Instructed.

A. C. Puttbrese, retiring state commander of Michigan and candidate for national vice commander, concurred in the statement of Luhrs. Glen W. Cooper, vice commander of Steuben county, New York, said the delegates from that state had been instructed by the state convention to oppose any aid to communist Russia.

"Our state convention passed two resolutions which in a general way supported the President's foreign policy," said State Adjutant William E. Sayer of Indiana.

"That does not mean, however, that the delegates go right down the line for the administration. There is at least a 50-50 split on the question. The war or peace matter was shushed at our state meeting, but I expect a good fight here on the convention floor."

Reports were current that the camp of National Commander Milo J. Warner was a bit fearful that a convincing orator might lead the convention away from an all-out indorsement of the administration foreign policy.

Commander Contest Narrows.

Meanwhile convention delegates began to drift into Milwaukee, and hotel room and lobby conferences concerned the political strategists. Reports were that the fight for national commander had narrowed to a two man tussle between Lynne Upshaw Stambaugh, attorney from Fargo, N. D., and Edward N. Scheiberling, Albany, N. Y., lawyer.

Scheiberling is said to be a strong booster for the Roosevelt administration, but the Stambaugh stand on the question of intervention has not been made known. Convention politicians expressed puzzlement over the continued silence of Raymond Fields of Guthrie, Okla. Strongest competitor of Warner at last year's convention, Fields has made no utterance as yet, nor has there been any pronounced activity in his behalf.

Elmer J. Reider of 4903 Lake Park avenue, Chicago, descended on Milwaukee today and proclaimed himself "the original Elmer of the Legion" and the "buck privates' candidate for commander."

Resolutions Pour In.

The convention resolutions assignments committee continued to struggle in silence with routing of resolutions to various committees. Members did not amplify their statements that there are many controversial resolutions on war or peace and aid to Russia.

It was reported, however, that the resolutions for and against intervention were about equally divided. These resolutions, which must be introduced by a post, are said to be couched in quite definite and sometimes lurid language.

MEDILL-TRIBUNE POST NO. 348
CHICAGO

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The huge float which will represent the Medill-Tribune Post, No. 348, in the American Legion parade in Milwaukee this week. The discs represent silver dollars and are labeled to show spectators where the dimes collected on Poppy day go.

Honors Poppy Girls

The 32 foot gold, red and silver float which will represent the Medill-Tribune post, No. 348, in the annual American Legion convention parade in Milwaukee, Wis., this week has just been completed. It honors the girls who sell poppies on the annual Poppy day, and huge silver "dollars" show the spectators where their dimes go.

Miss Phoebe Mizen, 24 years old, 219 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, an attractive blonde, will represent the poppy girls. Attired in a silver gown, she will stand atop a large gold platform at the rear of the float. Hidden floodlights will illuminate the float from all sides at night. Legion shields are carried at the front and rear, and red festooning hides the wheels of the truck on which the float was erected.

The huge silver dollars show that the Poppy day receipts go for aid to widows and orphans, scholarship awards, hospital care, community service, rehabilitation, child welfare, and disaster relief.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 13 (AP).—The "Flying Illini"—25 fledgling naval aviators, all of whom attended the University of Illinois—were honored today at special "commencement exercises" marking completion of their preliminary 30 day training.

Dr. Albert J. Harno, provost of the university; Dr. C. M. Thompson, president of the Alumni association, and Arthur C. Humphrey, president of the St. Louis alumni, took part in the ceremonies at the naval reserve base at Lambert field. Humphrey presented the cadets with special "U. of I." wings.

BATTLE RECORD SHOWS AEF IN ACTION 200 DAYS

48,900 Americans Killed in 13 Engagements.

On page 6 of today's picture section are pictures of the American army overseas in the first World War.

BY OLIVER E. REMEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 13.—Now, 23 years after, with the 1941 encampment of the American Legion in full swing, it is timely to recall what the men of the combat divisions of the American Expeditionary Force did in the first World war, and what sacrifices they were called upon to make.

Twenty-nine of the 42 combat divisions which reached France were in action 200 days, the 1st entering an active sector on the Picardy front April 20, 1918. First American troops arrived in France in May, 1917.

During the 200 days, the AEF engaged in 13 major operations, 11 in cooperation with the English, French, and Italians and two which were distinctly American.

These two were the battle of St. Mihiel and the battle of the Meuse-Argonne.

Total casualties were 286,330, of which 48,900 were deaths in battle or of wounds.

Deaths from disease and other causes were 27,790.

Activities of the combat divisions, and their losses in dead and wounded, segregated in the three classifications indicated, were as follows:

> "We hope we are not again at the threshold of such an era. But if face it we must, then the United States and the rest of the Americas can play but one role:

EXPECT 200,000 AT HOLY NAME FIELD SERVICE

Pageant Tonight in Lake Front Stadium.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Archbishop Stritch.

The Holy Name society said yesterday that all is in readiness in Soldiers' field for a vast demonstration of massive pageantry, brilliant ritual, and Catholic devotion at 7 o'clock tonight. Society officials expect 200,000 worshipers in the lake front stadium.

Only two other religious observances in the city's history may be compared with the plans for tonight's public holy hour, which will combine love of country with adoration of "Christ the Eucharistic King in solemn benediction of the most blessed sacrament."

Former occasions were the eucharistic congress of 1926, when an estimated million worshipers surrounded and filled Soldiers' field, and the Jewish patriotic-religious pageant of 1933, when about 150,000 persons attended on one occasion, with 65,000 at a repeat performance.

Archbishop Heads Procession.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, who will lead a procession of nine bishops and archbishops, 1,000 priests, and 5,000 altar boys into the field, will deliver four meditations during the services. He also will pontificate at the solemn benediction when the service comes to its devotional climax in a triple salute "to the Eucharistic King from land, air, and sea. Rose petals will fall from the sky; trumpets will sound His praises; cannon fire will do Him honor."

A two-fold preliminary program will open tonight's event. It will be composed of a formation of Holy Name society men who will be led into the stadium by massed musicians of half a score of Catholic high school bands and a high school drum and bugle corps. The Rev. Dr. Edwin V. Hoover then will conduct a sacred concert by the Cathedral Symphony orchestra.

After the concert, patriotic themes will form back drops for induction of 100,000 new members of archdiocesan Holy Name societies. The new members will be presented to Archbishop Stritch by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Daniel Byrnes. The first act of the new Holy Name men will be the adoration of the blessed sacrament in the service leading the solemn benediction. Archbishop Stritch will deliver his four meditations.

Special Car Service.

Provisions for postponement of the demonstration until next Sunday night have been made in event of stormy weather. All transportation lines have made provisions for moving the great throngs to the field from all parts of the city. Car owners have been urged to bring full loads to cut down the number of vehicles.

W-G-N and the Mutual system will broadcast the event from 9:30 to 10 with the Rev. Edward V. Dailey, editor and publisher of the New World, official archdiocesan publication, as commentator.

Discuss War with Congressman

Constituents call on Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz of the 7th district to receive assurances that he will not vote to send American boys to fight on foreign soil. Shown, left to right, are Mrs. E. V. Dodge, Mrs. John W. Maselter, Mr. Maselter, Mrs. Frances Mitchell, Congressman Schuetz, Mrs. Margaret Dunn, and Thomas Zovel (behind Mrs. Dunn).

SCHUETZ SAYS IT AGAIN: HE'LL NOT BACK A NEW AEF

Dozen Constituents Hear New Promise.

Before a dozen men and women constituents, Democratic Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz of the 7th district yesterday reiterated a promise made earlier in the week: "I will not vote to send American boys to fight on foreign soil."

"Do you feel confident we will not slip into war thru the back door?" asked John W. Maselter, 4950 North Bell avenue, spokesman for the group.

Warn Him Not to Waver.

"We will not," Schuetz insisted. "War will not be declared until both houses vote on it and concur."

Maselter assured the congressman that he and others in the group would go to Washington to uphold Schuetz in his stand, if necessary; but warned him that, conversely, they would be there also if he wavered. The group interviewed Schuetz in his office at 3620 North Kilbourn avenue shortly before he left for Washington, D. C.

Hasn't Heard of "Union Now."

When Maselter asked Schuetz his opinion of "Union Now," the congressman said he had never heard of it. Asked if he sanctioned aid to Russia, Schuetz answered, "I don't like Russia and I consider communism dangerous, but circumstances might force us to deal with the devil."

The congressman evaded questions on rising taxes and the national debt. He said he would continue to vote for goods for Britain, "if they pay for them."

MRS. PAUL FITZ SIMONS SENDS WAR WARNING TO 72 CONGRESSMEN

Newport, R. I., Sept. 13 [Special].—Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons, society leader and mother of former Gov. William H. Vanderbilt, announced today that she was sending the following letter to 30 senators and 42 congressmen:

"We are shocked and outraged by the usurpation by the President of powers resting wholly in the congress. His order to the navy is a declaration of war as is the juggling of geographic boundaries to conform with and abet the war mongers' determination to involve the United States.

"Unless congress immediately reasserts its sole authority and gives serious and thoughtful consideration to the edict of over 80 per cent of the citizens who are emphatically opposed to war except for actual United States territorial defense, it will prove its supine relinquishment of its constitutional responsibility and also prove its collaboration in the destruction of our republic."

Mrs. Fitz Simons' first husband was Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt who perished on the liner Lusitania. She was awarded the Victory medal of the Society of Social Sciences for her work during the World war.

CITES HIGH COSTS TO JUSTIFY DIME FARE ON BUSES

The Chicago Motor Coach company in defending its 10 cent bus fare Friday before the Illinois Commerce commission asserted that its costs of operation have been increasing over the last 10 years, while its average rate of fare has been steadily reduced.

Exhibits submitted by Oscar W. Isaacson, controler for the company, showed the average cost of operating a bus one mile in 1932 was 26 cents, and has risen to 32.78 cents at present. The average rate of fare collected in 1932 was 9.87 cents and is now 9.03 cents, Isaacson said. The company's adult fare is 10 cents, but the rate to school children is 5 cents. Also, revenues from riders transferring to the "L" lines are split with the "L," and a special 7 cent fare is charged for riders transferring from suburban railroads.

Total operating expenses and taxes in 1940 were $4,713,381, compared with $3,416,966 in 1932, Isaacson said. The hearing was continued to Sept. 24 by Assistant Commissioner William E. Helander.

2½ MILLION HEAR PARK CONCERTS; DROP OF 500,000

Two and a half million Chicagoans listened to the 36 free Grant park concerts during the summer, according to a joint statement issued yesterday by the Chicago park district and the Chicago Federation of Musicians, which sponsored the programs. The total audience was about 500,000 below that of 1940. The only world famous personage appearing at the park this year was Giovanni Martinelli, celebrated tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, who attracted an audience of well over 100,000. Martinelli sang in the 1941 Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field while in the city.

SENATE TO QUIZ CHAPLIN ABOUT 'DICTATOR' FILM

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—The senate subcommittee investigating the dissemination of war propaganda today subpenaed Charles Chaplin, movie comedian, for testimony Oct. 6 on his picture, "The Great Dictator."

Chairman D. Worth Clark [D., Idaho] announced the committee also had subpenaed Anatole Litvak, director of the film, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," and William R. Wilkerson, editor and publisher of the Hollywood Reporter, a trade journal, to appear the same day.

Clark said Wendell L. Willkie, representing major movie producers, had agreed to produce witnesses for his group, but added that others not represented by Willkie would be subpenaed.

Clark said the committee wished to ascertain Chaplin's motives in producing "The Great Dictator."

FAMILY OF SEVEN KILLED AS TRAIN SMASHES AUTO

Four Children and Mother Among Victims.

"Manners for Motorists," a series of safety lessons in pictures, is published on page 7 of today's Graphic section.

A family of seven was killed yesterday when their car was struck by the Grand Trunk railroad's Maple Leaf Limited at the Kennedy avenue crossing in Highland, seven miles southeast of Hammond.

The streamlined steam locomotive struck the automobile amidships, carrying it three-quarters of a mile into the adjoining town of Griffith, according to Chief Walter Swets of the Highland police. Four members of the party were strewn along the tracks, but three were still in the car when the train was stopped.

All Lived Near Highland.

The victims were Andrew Schafer, 36 years old; his wife, Anne, 34; a daughter, Alby, 13; three sons, Marvin, 6; Buster, 12, and Harold, 16, and Mrs. Schafer's father, Cyrus Haynes, 60. All lived at Schererville, four miles southwest of Highland. Schafer was a house builder.

The locomotive fireman, H. M. Whitmore of Battle Creek, Mich., said he saw the car approaching from the north, but thought the driver would stop. The automobile, however, moved directly into the train's path.

State Policeman Laurence Miller said the crossing is unprotected except for warning markers, but that the view is unobstructed for half a mile on either side.

The train, which left Chicago at 10:40 a. m. Chicago time for Toronto, Ont., was traveling east about 60 miles an hour, according to Chief Swets. It crushed the car and hurled Schafer, who is believed to have been driving, to one side. But his wife, Harold, and Haynes were still in the wreckage, which was wedged in the locomotive, when the train halted.

Neighbors said they believe the entire family was killed. The family is believed to have been returning from a shopping trip in Hammond.

The locomotive was slightly damaged, but the eight car train resumed its journey after an hour and a half delay.

Pedestrian, 82, Killed.

BLUNDERS COST NAZIS SYMPATHY OF ARGENTINES

Forget Pain of 'Allies' Alliance with Reds.

BY HAROLD TATAM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 13.—A slight cooling in the Argentine people's pro-allies sentiments following the entry of Russia into the allied ranks was quickly sensed here, but if the pendulum has swung back with a jerk it is due more to the many blunders committed by the Nazis than to any weakening of the dislike for bolshevism.

The arrest of several Argentine citizens in France, supposedly in retaliation for activities of the congressional committee investigating anti-Argentine elements, and the German ambassador's protest against uncomplimentary remarks about Nazilsm made in the senate have helped to weld public opinion behind Senator Palacios and others who would give short shrift to the ambassador, Baron Edmund von Thermann.

Millions Spent by Embassy.

Possibly the outstanding revelation of the investigating committee was that the foreign office has been constantly advised by the Argentine embassy in Berlin since 1938 of the ramifications of Nazi activities in Argentina without producing any visible governmental reaction. Another disclosure by the committee was that the German embassy has employed in anti-Argentine activities funds arising from the balance of commercial transactions which, according to the agreement signed between Argentina and Germany, should be used "exclusively for the purchase of Argentine produce." These funds amounted to millions of pesos and the committee reported that their misuse was "consented in or winked at by the foreign office."

The investigating committee's second report showed that the German embassy in Buenos Aires spent no less than 6,000,000 pesos in 1940. A normal figure would be around 600,000. The United States spent 500,000. The German embassy has a larger personnel than Great Britain, the United States, and France combined. The committee says the employés are mostly inspectors who are employed collecting taxes the Nazis levy on Germans in Argentina and pursuing those who listen to American and British broadcasts.

Hit Chamber of Commerce.

The report also says the German chamber of commerce pays less attention to commerce than to Nazi propaganda, that its commercial activities, in fact, are not apparent.

Amazingly simple dodges have been used by the German embassy to hide the origin and destination of much of the money it handles. In one week it drew bearer checks for more than 500,000 pesos. When embassy officials, uncommunicative at the outset, were cross-examined by the investigating committee, they finally confirmed, by admissions or implications, the whole story.

Volberg, reputed to be Hitler's own agent, was asked if he was aware that Georg Bein, ostensibly the representative of the Leipzig fair, received 10,300 pesos "to help the fair along" from the German embassy on March 25, 1941. He said he knew about it. Did he know that on March 26 Bein paid El Pampero, the Nazi subsidized newspaper, 10,300 pesos? He said he did not know it but admitted it was probable. On March 27, El Pampero paid Hugo Stinnes, Ltd., the sum of 10,300. After that Volberg learned that El Pampero had cost the German embassy more than 100,000 pesos in two months. Asked if he was aware that the paper could not exist 24 hours without a German subsidy, he said he was.

The committee's inquiries and Ambassador von Thermann's indiscretions appear to have provided deadly ammunition to the legislators who in both chambers propose to demand the expulsion of Von Thermann.

STRIKE HOLDS UP SHIPS LOADED WITH U. S. ARMS

Seamen Demand Bonus for Braving War Zone.

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—The AFL Seafarers' International Union of North America called a walkout today over a war bonus dispute, ordering its members off all ships bound for axis or allied ports.

John Hawk, union secretary-treasurer, said: "We are not against carrying material to England, but since the Nazis are sinking boats regardless of location we want to protect our men. The operators show no signs of negotiating."

In New York harbor three ships with cargoes for American bases in Bermuda and the West Indies canceled their sailings as the crews walked out.

Military Supplies Held Up.

They were the freighters Trader and Banner, which the Alcoa Steamship company said were loaded to the hilt with military materials, and the Alcoa cruise liner Evangeline, which was to have left for Bermuda at 2 p. m. with 225 passengers, the majority of them armament workers. The Evangeline's cargo was said to consist chiefly of foodstuffs.

The union is seeking war bonuses from the Alcoa line for voyages to Bermuda and the Caribbean, and increased bonuses from other lines for trips to the Red sea, Persian gulf and other dangerous areas.

Hawk said the strike would affect the union's 20,000 members on ships in all Atlantic coast and Gulf ports.

Spread of Strike Threatened.

He said the strike would spread to ships of the Calmar line, Seas Shipping company, and Waterman Steamship company unless the lines granted increased bonuses for voyages to Africa and China. He declined to disclose the size of the bonuses being asked, but William A. McKay, business agent of the Baltimore unit, said the union was seeking $250 for members on ships bound for war zones and "a certain amount for each port touched in danger areas."

Perhaps You Remember

THIS IS NOT the first time that you have called upon Dodge automotive plants and men to meet a National Emergency. You probably remember that you called them to the colors once before; that you found their service good; that their dependability was not a catch-word, but a watch-word, in France and on the training fields at home, for the highest mechanical excellence.

Now again you have called Dodge to the National Defense. And Dodge has swiftly answered. Already many thousands of its highly trained men have been transferred from the work of building motorcars to the more urgent and crucial tasks of building army trucks, tanks, guns and airplane assemblies. Again Dodge is throwing its great industrial weight into your program of Defense. And, as you require, Dodge will again remain a defense force, with every ounce of its energy, every inch of the way.

You May Also Recall

You may clearly remember that the first time you called on Dodge for aid in National Defense, its motorcars were reaching the very peak of their first young success. Then suddenly, remember, there were fewer of them because there were fewer men to make them, and less material to make them with. Perhaps you also remember that it was these fewer Dodge cars, and the qualities inherent in them, that helped to lay the lasting foundation for a world-wide reputation for Dependability.

Later—A Quarter Century

Now again Dodge moves full speed ahead in the service of the Government of the United States. Dodge does this with full knowledge of its duty and full confidence in your own respect for the spirit that is Dodge. These cars will, of course, always remain at their finest. You may approach the purchase of your own new Dodge with complete confidence in its enduring value,—its ability to serve you extremely well for even more years than you would normally choose to drive it. It is a firm and final fact that these are the finest cars that Dodge has ever built.

There can be no curtailment of Dodge quality . . . no substitute for Dodge Dependability.

DODGE DIVISION OF CHRYSLER CORPORATION

THE NEW DODGE—D-22—IS NOW ON DISPLAY AT YOUR NEAREST DEALER!

We Pledge Ourselves

To practice and to preach the doctrine of "Our Country First and Foremost."

To act as "Purchasing Agent for the Public," recognizing at all times the fact that the customer's best interest and the retailer's are identical.

To support by word and action fair trade practices and standards.

To prevent, as far as possible, unwarranted increases in the price of merchandise.

To eliminate "scare advertising," particularly that which says or implies "Buy now because prices are rising."

To aid in the simplification of merchandise types for the purpose of freeing labor and materials for national defense.

We Pledge Ourselves

To aid in the development of substitutes for such materials as are required for national defense.

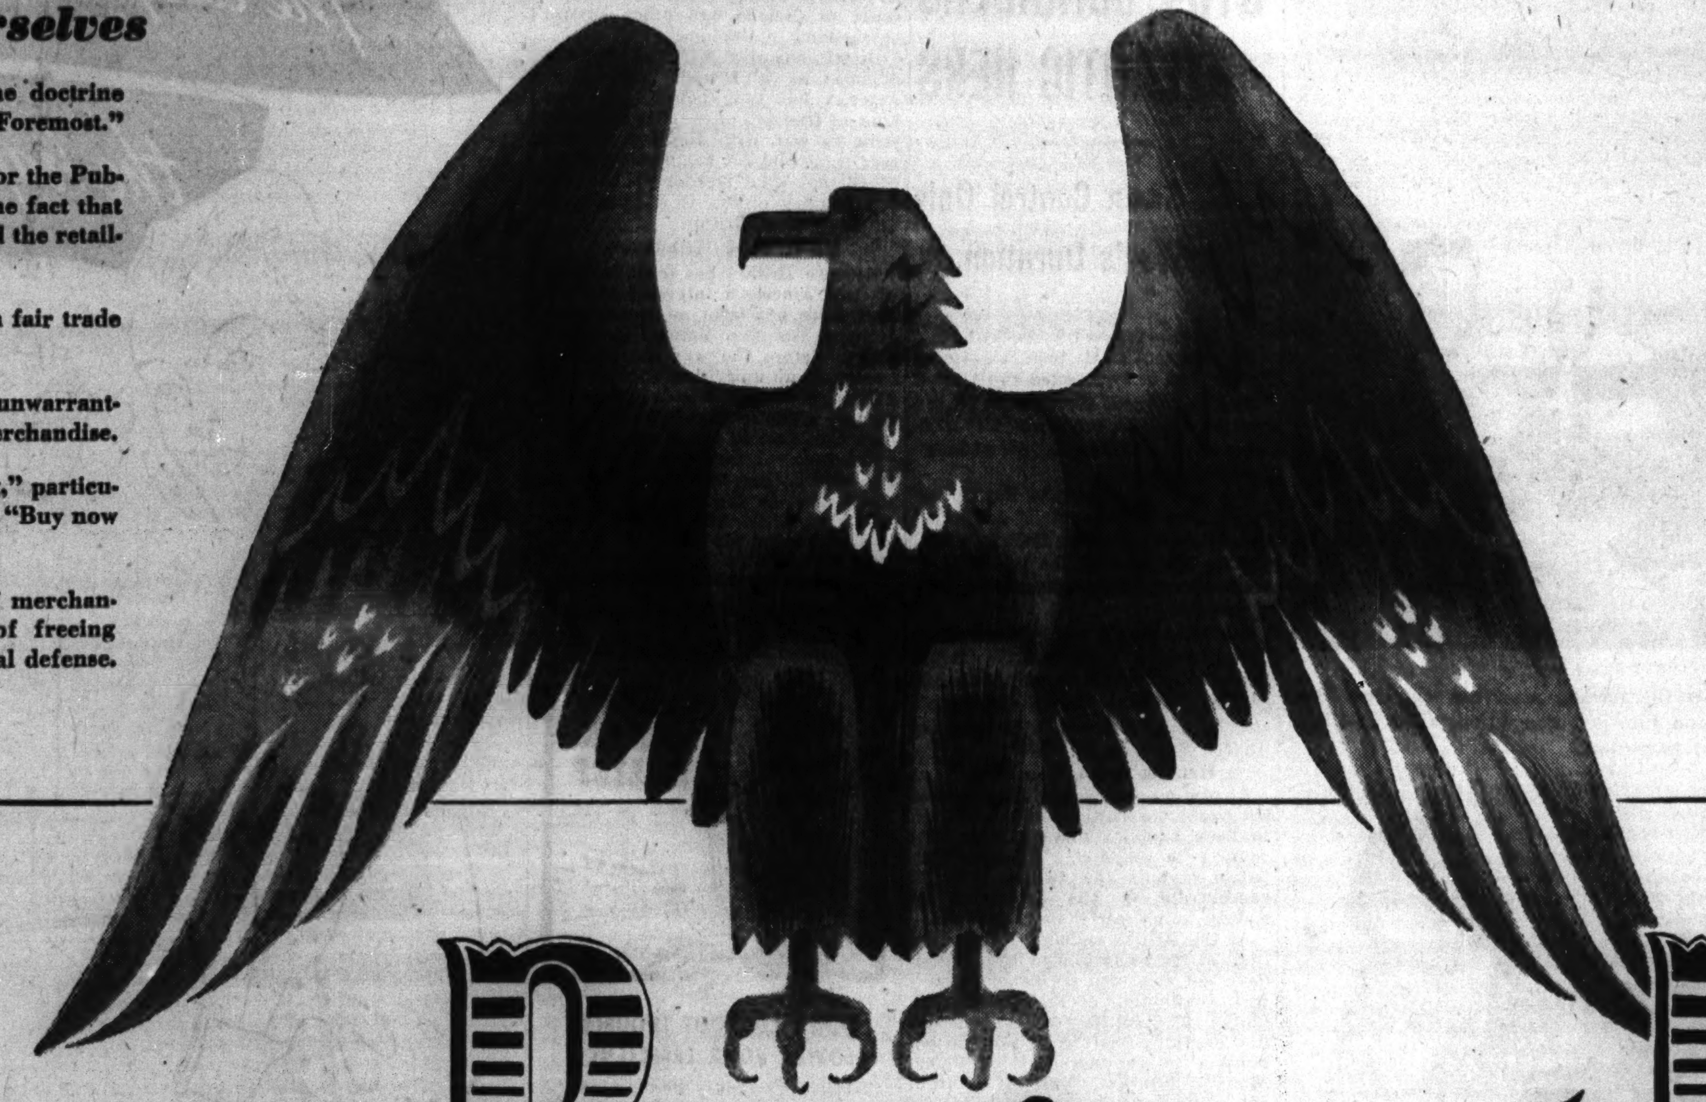
To be prepared to inform customers as to the principal causes of price increases and as to such changes in quality as are made to avoid increases in price.

To recognize the right of the customer to full information concerning the article offered for sale.

To give every encouragement to employees who wish to serve their country.

To make every effort to maintain a high level of retail employment.

To help the United States Treasury sell Defense Stamps and Defense Bonds.



Defense Begins at Home

EVEN in the life of a democratic nation there come times when individual considerations must give way to the needs of a national emergency. Such a time has come to the Americans of 1941, as it has to other Americans in generations gone by. In this world of 1941 speed has so shrunk time and space that the year of yesterday is the mere moment of today, and the wide world of Napoleon is little more than a continent measured by wings and radio. What was remote is now our neighbor and China is no farther than the Rockies used to be. So in a world at war on wings and wheels and the unseen currents of the ether, Defense becomes an emergency. And Defense begins at Home, for morale at home must stand firm behind the men in uniform.

LIVING conditions at home affect morale and you and your retailer are vitally concerned with both. Your interest and his are identical. He is your purchasing agent and he knows that an ample supply of reasonably priced goods is best for you and best for him. The American merchant is not a speculator. He wants a stable economy . . . and so do you. His safety depends on it . . . and so does yours. In a time of National Emergency it is impossible to maintain a stable economy. The enormous demands of Defense disrupt and sometimes stop the even flow of goods. This brings temporary shortages and shortages encourage speculation and unwarranted increases in prices.

FOR many months merchants have been working with manufacturers, with each other and with the Government to preserve as far as possible the steady flow of goods and to prevent unwarranted price increases. They know, as you know, that some prices must be higher, that higher labor and material costs must be met. But they have resisted price increases that could not be justified. That is why most retail prices have advanced so little. The resources of America are great. The ingenuity and energy of Americans are unsurpassed. Where the supply of a material is short an adequate substitute will be developed. America will deliver the goods.

We join with fellow retailers all over America in pledging to our country our loyal and steadfast support and to the millions of our countrymen whom we serve our firm adherence to those high standards of business conduct developed by our American way of life.

AMERICAN SHIP STRUCK BY AXIS RAIDERS AT SUEZ

President's Next Step May Be to Arm Freighters.

would require a considerable number of trained gun crews. The British employ navy gun crews on their armed merchantmen.

Naval arsenals are not producing enough guns to equip the number of vessels being turned out under the two ocean naval program. There is a serious shortage of the new type, all purpose 5 inch gun. The repair and rearming of British naval vessels in American ports also has taxed naval facilities.

If the production of guns could be speeded up, the additional drain on critical raw materials would hamper other phases of the arms program in both the army and the navy, it was said. However, the suggestion was made that merchantmen might be able to use weapons left over from World war days.

Only Course, Says Gillette.

Senator Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], a non-interventionist member of the senate foreign relations committee, said it would be "folly" not to arm American merchantmen in view of the President's "declaration of war in so far as it can be declared without the consent of the legislative branch of the government."

As long as the policy has been laid down, Gillette said, the only course to follow is to permit American vessels to protect themselves in whatever waters they may travel.

In addition to the Arkansan "incident," another attack has been made upon American shipping since President Roosevelt addressed the world last Thursday night. This was the sinking of the freighter Montana off the coast of Iceland.

May Drop Subterfuge.

The Montana, which flew the flag of Panama but was American operated after its seizure from the Danish government, was torpedoed.

In view of the fact that the Montana incident was the second sinking of an American operated vessel flying the Panamanian flag, it is expected that the American government will abandon the subterfuge of using the flag of the Latin-American republic and send such vessels out under the Stars and Stripes.

CANCEL ANTI-WAR SENATOR'S TALK AT NEWARK, N. J.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 13 (AP).—The scheduled address of Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] before the advertising club of Newark on Sept. 24 was canceled tonight because of the belief, Club President Herbert S. Waters said, that Reynolds' talk might be in "conflict with the national defense program."

Waters said the chairman of the senate military affairs committee was booked to speak many months ago. "At that time, the club directors felt that, regardless of the senator's decidedly isolationist position, the Advertising club should continue its policy of listening to both sides of every question.

"However, because of the recent Nazi sea incidents, and the recent, clearly defined speech of President Roosevelt, we feel now that Senator Reynolds' talk might be in definite conflict with the national defense program."

Waters said the withdrawal was "in no sense an indictment of the eminent senator. He is entitled, by the constitution of the United States, to express whatever viewpoints he chooses to indorse. Nevertheless, I feel sure that the people of New Jersey, one of the 13 original states of this country, are 100 per cent against Hitler and, in my opinion, are solidly opposed to the views expressed by Senator Reynolds."

Waters said Robert St. John, former Associated Press war correspondent, had been substituted as a speaker.

TANK KILLS TRUCK DRIVER.

Fairfield, Ill., Sept. 13 (AP).—Walter Lester Hunt, 28 years old, a truck driver, was crushed fatally today while unloading a large water tank at an oil lease in the Johnsonville field near here. The body was shipped to Haileyville, Okla., for burial. The widow and a son survive.

Winner of Plowing Contest

10,000 FARMERS WATCH CONTEST OF PLOWING SKILL

Naperville Man Wins a Championship.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

Ten thousand farmers gathered on the 240 acre farm of Martin Fry, three miles north of Plainfield, yesterday, for the 64th annual Wheatland plowing match. Twenty-nine entrants, including several former champions, guided their tractor drawn plows over sections of a level 40 acre plot. The winners:

Paul Stiefbold, 25 years old, Naperville, first in the championship class; Rollin Boughton, Plainfield, men's class; Clarence Schoger, Wheatland, 19-21 year old class; Robert Erickson, 18, Plainfield, 15-18 year class, and Paul Graver, 12, of Plainfield, boys 14 or less.

What They Had to Do.

The contestants using single bottom plows were required to plow one-half acre in a maximum time of three hours. Two bottom plows were required to turn up three-quarters of an acre in the same time, and three bottom plows had to cover the three-quarters of an acre in a maximum of two hours and 15 minutes.

Judging was done on the following basis: A maximum of 25 points for the opening furrow, 25 points for uniformity of furrows, 25 points for straightness, 15 points for evenness, and 10 for neatness.

As has been the case since 1934, there were no horsedrawn plows. Horse may be used, but experience has shown that they cannot compete in speed and accuracy with the tractor.

It's Like a Country Fair.

Exhibits of needlework, prize vegetables, and other products gave the Fry farm much the appearance of a county fair. Flags and pennants waved in the warm sunshine, and a man with an airplane did a rush business taking folks up for a five minute flight over the farm. Operators of a pony ride also did right well, selling rides to farm boys who probably hadn't ridden a horse since the day before.

REVEAL BRITAIN STILL CONSIDERS ATLANTIC HERS

U. S. Given Control Only for War's Duration.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.—Great Britain has not conceded the United States permanent domination of the western Atlantic, inquiry at the state department and the British embassy disclosed today.

The leasing of bases to the United States from Newfoundland to British Guiana does not mean Britain is giving up her rule of the western Atlantic except for duration of the war, it was said.

After the war, it was acknowledged, Britain, which is inviting the United States to extend its naval patrol closer and closer to Europe, will probably be less courteous in inviting the United States to get out.

Helping Supply Job Now.

At present American domination of the western Atlantic is aiding Britain to keep supplies moving from this country to England. The American patrol permits the British navy to concentrate in the protection of waters immediately about Britain.

At the British embassy it was said that so far as is known the British have not conceded permanent American domination of the western Atlantic. The embassy staff could not find anything bearing on such an admission in the speeches of Prime Minister Winston Churchill or from any other government source.

The embassy said the question is one of "high policy" and in the province of the capital. The only knowledge of such things here would be gained from the speeches of Churchill or other official channels.

No Discussion So Far.

At the state department it was said there has been no official exchanges on the question of dominance of the Atlantic as such. The department would not acknowledge that the American navy is dominating the western Atlantic, declaring that the navy is interested only in patroling waters for the protection of American shipping.

A state department spokesman said he was convinced that the British would not yield domination of the western Atlantic to this country because of Canada and other British possessions in that area.

Britain has always looked upon the Atlantic as a British lake. Altho America has long held to the doctrine of freedom of the seas and even went to war with England in 1812 over this policy, it has been acknowledged that what freedom of the seas this country enjoys is enjoyed with the consent of Britain.

U. S. Fleet Withdrawn.

Because Britain has felt that British and American interests are parallel there has been no recent clash between the two nations over the policy. Before the war the administration, in an unwritten alliance with Britain, conceded British domination of the Atlantic and withdrew the American fleet to the Pacific.

The theory behind this coöperation was that Britain would keep the Atlantic open in the interests of both countries while the United States would concentrate on the Pacific.

QUOTING ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Our Foreign Relations.

I venture to hope it will appear that we have practised prudence and liberality toward foreign powers, averting causes of irritation, and with firmness maintaining our own rights and honor. Since, however, it is apparent that here, as in every other state, foreign dangers necessarily attend domestic difficulties, I recommend that adequate and ample measures be adopted for maintaining the public defenses on every side.

Abraham Lincoln

Washington, Dec. 3, 1861.

COMMODITY OF THE WEEK.

Soy beans highlighted the commodity markets all last week. On a succession of days the price rose the maximum of 8 cents permitted by the Chicago Board of Trade. On Thursday the closing price was nearly $2 a bushel. A year ago the beans were worth no more than 75 cents a bushel.

As this year's production runs a little over 100 million bushels, soy beans have become one of the most valuable crops. This year's harvest will be worth as much as all the potatoes and considerably more than the citrus fruits, with all the emphasis that is being laid on vitamin C. Only cotton, wheat, corn, truck crops, and tobacco are more valuable.

The soy bean has varied uses. It supplies food for man and beast. On the average a hundred pounds of beans yields 15½ pounds of oil and 84 pounds of meal. The oil is principally used for shortening. Other major uses are in making oleomargarine, soap, and as a drying agent for paint. The meal is largely fed to live stock. But the general public thinks of it only as the stuff out of which automobile steering wheels are made. It is as a source of oil primarily that it has been so eagerly sought after recently.

The soy bean is doing a lot for the farmers of the granger states. It has been grown in quantity only since the depression started. Before 1930 total production never exceeded 9½ million bushels. With the price around $2 this year's crop is the equivalent of about 200 million bushels of wheat. In the good old days before the depression the annual export of wheat ran around 200 million bushels a year and the price ranged about the dollar mark. Thus the home market in soy beans has replaced the foreign market in wheat.

The rise in price from 75 cents a bushel last year to $2 amounts to 167 per cent. This compares with an increase of 33 per cent in all farm products in the same interval. Metal products in the meantime, under government control, have gone up only 4 per cent. Thus the farmers of the central states rejoice that the government has smiled upon this particular advance instead of forbidding it.

Thruout the farm area of Chicagoland there is a determination to plant more soy beans next year. This became the general purpose not because it was willed at Washington but because of the dollar and cents incentive. If nature is willing the price system will see that there is plenty of soy bean oil and soy bean meal for every one next year. The old fashioned price system might be considered for use in connection with some other shortages.

ICKES AND HIS TEAM.

The Supply Priorities and Allocations board, at the moment the most exalted of the government's agencies for deciding who gets what, has told Secretary of the Interior Ickes that he can't have the steel for his pipe line. Mr. Ickes desired it in his rôle as oil administrator. It was needed, he said, to meet the alleged oil shortage on the eastern seaboard, a shortage which a senatorial committee has found to be largely nonexistent or easily remedied by other means. The SPAB ruled that for 800,000 tons of steel and the machinery to make the pipe there were a lot of other uses which were a sight more important.

Practically every one will enjoy the humiliation of Mr. Ickes. He has been humiliated before but no matter how often these incidents are repeated they always give pleasure. Mr. Ickes has well been called the Donald Duck of Washington. His squawks are funniest when his tail is caught in a bear trap.

It is to be hoped that the pleasure which this incident has afforded will not blind the public to its significance. Here is a member of the cabinet who is supposed to know, if anybody knows, the administration's problems and its policies. Presumably he knew in advance that the government was going to include all steel production in the priority system. Indeed, it was after the steel priorities had been announced that the pipe line scheme was put forward.

As a member of the cabinet, Mr. Ickes might have been expected to consult his colleagues and the President regarding the diversion of so much steel for his scheme, but that is not the way this administration works. Everybody goes his own way. Stories continually come to public attention, indicating, for example, that the war department or the navy department is hoarding scarce materials and thus impeding the rearmament program or causing needless hardship to civilian industry. Evidently Mr. Ickes felt his prestige would suffer if his fellows in the cabinet were the only ones who could show they didn't know the meaning of team play.

Mr. Morgenthau, who wants the government to release some of its hoard of farm products and thus prevent prices from rising to dangerously inflationary levels, evidently does not talk things over—in or out of cabinet meetings—with his colleague, Mr. Wickard, the secretary of agriculture. The secretary of agriculture has the hoards in his possession. The administration can release them at discretion. The efforts in congress to forbid the marketing of the accumulations were defeated. Whether the government should or should not sell the wheat, corn, tobacco, and cotton it owns is a question about which opinions may differ in and out of the cabinet but it is the duty of the administration to come to its decision and to act as a unit once the decision has been made.

The voices of the administration are forever calling upon the people for unified action but the owners of these voices are themselves unwilling to pull together as a team. It is this group of prima donnas and Donald Ducks who will have the lives of the conscripts in their keeping if we go to war.

POWER TO DESTROY.

Jewelry is generally recognized as a luxury. Even the jewelers, it may be suspected, conceded themselves to be fair game when congress started raking out the corners of the nation's economy to find new subjects for defense taxes. They hardly expected, however, to be subjected to a tax that threatens to force a large proportion of them out of business.

As the tax bill was first drafted a 10 per cent tax was imposed on retail sales of jewelry, among other items. Retailers' organizations protested at this tax, contending that because of the huge number of outlets in their trade a large force of employés would be necessary to collect the tax and chances of evasion would be great.

As a substitute they suggested a tax collected from jewelry manufacturers. Congress acceded to this suggestion, fixing the tax rate at 15 per cent, which would yield approximately the same revenue as 10 per cent at the retail level. Then, however, presumably at the suggestion of the treasury's experts, an additional provision was written into the tax bill at the last moment, placing a floor tax, so-called, on all the jewelry that any merchant has on hand on Oct. 1, the day on which the manufacturers' sales tax takes effect.

There are logical grounds for imposing a floor tax in connection with a manufacturers' sales tax. The purpose is to prevent the retailer with a large stock on hand reaping an unearned profit on otherwise tax free merchandise, or to prevent him competing unfairly with the merchant who has to pay the increased cost represented by the tax on the manufacturer.

But in the instance of the jewelry tax, congress and the treasury seem to have ignored the merchants' ability to pay. Their business is one with a very slow turnover of merchandise, particularly in precious stones and the more expensive items of jewelry. A jeweler may keep these items in stock for years before finding a buyer for them. A great many jewelers do not have free cash equal to 15 per cent of the value of their stock in trade. Because of the slow turnover, they cannot raise the cash by quick sales of the taxed merchandise. The tax, if finally imposed, will force them out of business by destroying their liquid capital.

The destruction of small manufacturing businesses in this country thru the denial of priority governed materials is much in the public eye. To this is now added the destruction of small retailing businesses by taxation. The known views of some of the men who sit high in the councils at Washington give ground for suspicion that this is purposeful, not accidental.

PUBLICITY FOR PRIORITIES.

A middle western manufacturer submitted to the OPM a request for his September supply of a plastic which has been determined to be so scarce that none may be sold except as directed by the OPM. He stated in his request that all of the material was wanted for nondefense use.

In due course he received from Washington a form bearing the signature of the head of the priorities division stating that he might have 95 per cent of the amount of the material he had requested.

Here is a material so plentiful that after taking out all that was needed directly or indirectly for defense there was enough to fill practically every civilian need. And actually the supply situation is probably even better than that. Some factories expecting to be scaled down no doubt asked for more than they expected to get. Nevertheless the government persists in treating this as an acutely scarce material and in keeping control of the supply tightly in its hands.

How much more of this sort of thing there is in the priority system we don't know. The only excuse for the priority program is the shortage of the materials for defense. If there is such an ample supply of any material that all of the defense requirements can be met without placing the slightest strain upon civilian consumption the material doesn't belong on the priority list.

The interference of the government in the distribution of the plastic in question, despite its abundance, casts suspicion upon the whole priority arrangement. It brings to mind again the revelation of William S. Knudsen, director general of OPM, that there is a group in the defense organization which is concerned with forcing little firms to close down so that they will seek defense business to open up with.

This is one of many complaints which have come to the attention of the small business men's department of THE TRIBUNE. Another criticism is of the secrecy which surrounds the control of priorities. In the beginning, the orders making allocations of scarce materials listed the firms receiving allotments and the amount of materials which each might purchase. Every firm was thus informed how its competitors were treated and a basis was provided for the adjustment of any inequities. All this has now been changed and firms are now told only what their own allotment is. This has given rise to suspicions of discrimination in the handling of several scarce materials, particularly when the former executives of firms affected play an important part in determining how the supplies are divided. If the allocation of materials is honest, publicity will be welcomed as a means of keeping it that way.

Editorial of the Day

ALAS, THE DAYS OF CLOCK WINDING.

[Des Moines Register.]

According to the 1940 census information, 83 per cent of all clocks made in this country last year were hand wound. Still, those who have a tender feeling for the old-fashioned things of life may as well kiss clock winding good-by, for the percentage is continually going down.

"Electric grandfather clocks" are now produced in small numbers. There are persons still alive who will recall when father's weekly winding of the parlor clock was a ceremony carried out with solemnity and pomp. It was a responsibility believed to require somewhat more stability of character and a steadier hand than was likely to be found among the women folk of the house.

A fixed time was set aside for it, preferably on Saturday evening, when the week's chores were done and the children were well washed up. When the winding was completed a phase in the family's life definitely had been marked off. Nothing else established so well that time was fleeting, passed beyond recall.

Today the only time some people are aware of the clock and the passage of time is when a storm stops the electric current, and the clock halts!

WAR, THE GREAT ILLUSION

In the courthouse yard of a quiet Illinois town, there is a beautiful bronze cannon. It bears the name "L. Effronte," and it carries a Spanish coat of arms. It was cast on March 25, 1741. It was captured from Spain at Santiago by American forces in 1898. There it reposes, near the building which houses the offices of local government and the forum in which the disputes of the community are peacefully settled by the orderly processes of law. Not far distant is the site where one day, almost a century ago, two Illinois lawyers, Stephen A. Douglas and Abraham Lincoln, held one of their most notable debates on the issue of slavery under constitutional government.

Peace is everywhere evident and the emblems of the orderly procedure of democratic government, but on this beautiful old gun—now two centuries old—is an inscription in Latin, which when repeated sounds like the battle roll of a distant drum: "Ratio Regum Ultima"—"The Last Argument of Kings."

It is not inappropriate. The great debate held between the two great statesmen did not settle any issue. The question of human slavery was finally decided in a long and bloody war from which reason disappeared and in which passion had full sway.

In the years since that great debate men often have held forth on the folly of war, have held it up as the supreme example of human folly, have called it the great illusion. Great peace societies have been organized; great conferences have been held. A great American devoted a considerable portion of his enormous fortune to the establishment of an endowed foundation, the purpose of which is to work increasingly in the cause of peace. Nations have restricted their armaments and have even destroyed a portion of their navies.

But in spite of all this the world in these later days has seen the greatest, the most destructive wars of all times.

According to Ivan Bloch, who wrote a great work on the "Future of War," an analysis of the history of mankind shows that from the year 1496 B. C. to the year 1861 of our era, that is, in a cycle of 3,357 years, there were but 227 years of peace and 3,130 years of war. There were 13 years of war for every year of peace.

From the congress of Berlin in 1878 to the outbreak of the World war in 1914 there were some 20 full dress wars—not to mention numerous small affrays which left the world only four entirely peaceful years.

And since the armistice of 1918 45 countries of the world, about two-thirds of the world's land surface, have been the scenes of wars, revolts, and revolution.

What causes war? Kings, we once said. But now there are no kings.

Munition makers, we said a few years ago, but now we know that was a silly answer.

In reality we do not know. We do know only that we have had wars since the dawn of history and that we are likely to have wars as long as men are ambitious and have passions which follow the dictates of their desires.

Today, in spite of everything, we stand at the threshold of entering the greatest war of all history. What its outcome may be we do not know. Where it will lead us we cannot tell. That it will have the profoundest effects—political, social, economic—of that we can be certain.

But we are here. We can escape it only by being transported to some far distant star. It is a condition which we cannot change; seemingly from which we cannot escape.

It is, therefore, a condition which we must face with all the wisdom as well as all the fortitude we can muster. Here are some of the problems which are brought to those of us who are in the life insurance business:

In the first place, we face the possibility of a greatly increased mortality. War always has been a great period of famine and pestilence. Famine does not threaten us. But it has taken, and is taking, terrible toll of some—of many—of the peoples of the earth. Then we are likely to have such epidemics as the great flu epidemic of the first World war which brought about a mortality rate that for a time played havoc with most of our life insurance companies. The tremendous worry and strain placed upon the entire population cannot help but affect the mortality rate of all of our people.

This is all aside from the increased mortality of armies in the field, the increased accident rate of large numbers of men handling war machines, and the increased hazards due to large numbers of men living closely together.

In the second place, there is the constantly increasing difficulty of making safe investments. An investment is not an individual thing. It is a part and parcel of a whole economic setup. You buy a farm. It is not a thing by itself. It is an integral part of a country. Its value is dependent upon the conditions existing in the country of which it is a part. Hence, if this country enters the war, it adversely affects the value, not alone of farms, but also of factories, banks, and all institutions of the country. It may not be immediately apparent, but eventually it will so prove.

The creation of a great debt, for one thing, places a lien upon every piece of property which a country contains. It places a lien upon the labor of every man, woman, and child, for as it has been said, "taxes are paid by every man who labors." And taxes are also paid out of every piece of property which a country contains.

In addition, insurance companies are faced with the extremely low return upon all their investments, a situation which, as far as can be judged, will continue for a number of years. This lowering of the return upon investments has in effect very much reduced the value of the property upon which the returns are received.

In the third place, life insurance companies are faced with the danger, not alone of high taxes, but of unfair, unreasonable taxation. High taxes upon our property, increased income taxes, sales taxes, these are faced by all citizens alike and by all corporations. As to these, we cannot complain. When we are engaged in a great program of national defense we must realize that it will cost enormous sums of money which must be paid out of taxes to which we all must contribute.

As to these enormous expenditures, we, in common with all our citizens, would ask that we do not be put under control and direction of incompetents, of theorists, of doctrinaires, for as the great Goethe once said, "There is no more terrible sight than ignorance in action."

In common with our fellow citizens we demand that these enormous sums raised by burdensome taxation or borrowed by great bond issues—the accumulated savings of the country over a long period of years—shall not be thrown away in poorly planned endeavors, in crackpot schemes, or in a spirit of wanton waste, and that national preparedness shall not be used as a scheme to force the United States into a form of national socialism.

But in addition to ordinary forms of taxation, life insurance companies have been threatened and continue to be threatened with a direct tax on premiums of as high as $2 per $100 of premiums paid.

There is, I am sure, no disposition on the part of public officials to deal unfairly or unjustly with life insurance companies. But officials are faced with the necessity of raising large sums of money to meet the preparedness needs at a time when everything may be at hazard. Now it becomes the duty of life insurance companies and their representatives to make clear the real implications of a tax such as this. It would not only be an unjust levy on life insurance company contracts already entered upon but it would ultimately be a direct tax on savings, just as if a man were taxed on each dollar as he deposited it in a savings account. This would be a tax not on savings made, but on the very act of making savings.

WHAT IS THE NERVOUS SYSTEM?

WHAT do we mean by the "nervous system?" Where are the nerves? What do they look like?

We know something about muscles because we eat beefsteak and lamb chops. We thus obtain a clear idea of the bundles of fibers which can contract and move arms, legs, etc. We have also a reasonable understanding of the heart and the blood vessels because we can feel the pulse and visualize the beating organ within the chest. But we never catch a glimpse of the nerves because they are buried beneath other structures of the body.

The brain and the spinal cord are encased in thick bone. The former lies within the skull, the latter within the vertebral column [spine]. This is nature's way of safeguarding these delicate organs and may be compared to the lead covering of a cable.

We can think of the brain as the power station of thought, just as the heart is the pump which keeps the blood flowing thru the mains [arteries and veins]. It is located inside the cranium and connects directly with the spinal cord.

The nervous system is divided into two halves. As branches leave the spinal cord, some go to the right side of the body, others to the left. In addition, the twelve cranial nerves originate within the skull and pass to important areas. Some have special functions—for example, sight and hearing.

How does this machinery operate to move a muscle? If one wishes to strike a key on the piano, the thought comes, "I will sound middle C." This creates an impulse which passes down the cord, thence over motor fibers to the arm, forearm, wrist, and fingers. Certain "pulleys" then respond and the act is performed.

Nerves look much like tendons. In other words, they appear as white, tough, glistening cords. The largest in the body is called the "sciatic." This is found in the thigh and is about as thick as one's thumb. The numerous branches become smaller and smaller, until we are unable to see them with the naked eye.

Let us examine one of these figurative wires. If we take a pair of needles and tease apart a tiny segment, even by the use of a hand microscope, we can make out an immense number of fine, whitish threads. Under a compound microscope, we will note that each one is a nerve fiber, which may be two or three feet in length, but so fine that it cannot be seen without the aid of an instrument.

If we will cut across one of these bundles, each part will be seen to consist of a minute cylinder surrounded by a sheath which, in turn, is covered by a thin, protecting coat. We may liken the unit to a cable containing hundreds of wires, each apparently well insulated.

Now, the system works together, controlling and influencing every part including the skin. There are fibers which carry sensation, such as pain. These are called "sensory." The brain is a receptable of information and—via these wires—it receives word that the epidermis is cold. Intelligence then comes to the fore and we close the window, build a fire to keep warm, or don more clothing. We perform all these acts by means of the motor system.

We can understand that all of these miles and miles of communications require nourishment. They are subject to fatigue from overuse, or poisoning from toxins. They are susceptible also to injury by a cut, tear, or bruise. While they will regenerate, the process is long and tedious.

All in all, the organization is the most complex development of human existence. It operates with every glance, with every word we utter, with every object we grasp or touch, with every breath we take, with every step we walk. It continues to labor during sleep, otherwise breathing would cease and the heart would stop.

EYE DROPS.

R. T. writes: Some eye specialists use drops to dilate the eyes of those over 40. Others do not. Why this difference in opinion?

REPLY.

An approximate refraction may be obtained without the use of medicine to dilate the pupils. The procedure, however, is necessary if a complete and accurate check is made.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts 5 points. Then look for the correct answers on page 8, part 2.

1. If the apostle known as Doubting Thomas had been an American he would probably have been a native of California Virginia Missouri Florida.
2. The fluid employed in the operation of hydraulic brakes is Glycerin Mineral oil Water Kerosene.
3. Which one of these is often called the edible weed?
   Burdock Plantain Thistle Dandelion.
4. Doughnuts are prepared by the process known as Baking Boiling Frying Roasting.
5. Which one of these trees grows to the greatest height?
   Sycamore Oak Mulberry Lombardy poplar.
6. As a party game you can readily extend the list of items in today's problem. You deserve one point for each correct completion of the statements below. Take this sample, for instance. "The flower associated with a church steeple would be ——————?" You might reply with "Bluebells." Follow that same principle below.

[b] The flower associated with weather would be ————.
[c] The flower associated with a bird would be ————.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6 average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

CALLS FOR ANTI-WAR EFFORT.

Blue Island, Ill., Sept. 11.—I have been wanting to write you a letter in praise of the tone of those editorials bearing on the foreign policy of our administration. Do not let up for a moment; continue to call a spade a spade and let the quips fall where they may.

For the life of me I cannot understand what has happened to the so-called intelligentsia of this country. Apparently they are either being led around by the nose or they are refusing to use the few brains God gave them. The objectives of the present administration are so transparent that even the smallest child can see thru them. The citizens of this country are being pushed around from pillar to post and in the main are taking it without a whimper. I cannot understand it.

In my opinion there isn't enough propaganda on the anti-war side. We should literally cover the country with literature, we should make the utmost use of the radio and moving pictures, and, in addition, spot our most able speakers for strategic places and times. We are doing a lot, but not enough, and some action such as this should be instituted. If it isn't, I am fearful the worst will happen.

SEPTEMBER MEMORIES.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Vacation days are over, but in its place have come memories enough to carry us thru a long, cold winter.

Lovely days were spent in a boat out on the lake. We watched a little family of wild ducks swim out of the bushes. My husband said: "I must come back this fall for a day's duck hunting." I replied: "You couldn't kill those dear little ducks." He said: "You seem to be enjoying sending a sharp hook thru those dear little fish." [No answer.]

On the banks of the river turtles and green frogs watched us from a vantage point of a fallen tree. Along the river bank were those lavender flowers that smell so sweet and are full of bees gathering food for winter. Across the fields farmers were piling hay high on a wagon. Soon some of us will be shut in, but nothing can take away those memories of a glorious summer!

ANNE JESTY ROGERS.

CATERING TO WHITES ONLY.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—I visited the Manteno State hospital yesterday and found the attendants courteous and kind. However, upon returning to the bus station on my way to Chicago, this sign met my eye:

"We cater to white only."

A sign of this sort is expected in certain localities where education has not filtered in, and where the war of the rebellion is still in its last stages. It is certainly unlooked for in the more civilized communities.

The bus company probably doesn't subscribe to such treatment of its passengers but is merely negligent. Surely the company could find station operators a trifle more imbued with the spirit of "democracy" and "the four freedoms," than those at present operating the station.

BLACK EX-SOLDIER.

OUR ICELAND ADVENTURE.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Inasmuch as Roosevelt violated the United States constitution by sending American troops to Iceland in the way he did, it would be absurd for him to claim any obsolete piracy laws give him authority to send convoys to that island. The officers and men of the Greer should not be blamed in the least if they had attacked that Nazi submarine on sight or sound, for self-preservation is the first law of nature. But Roosevelt is to be blamed for creating such an un-American, unconstitutional mess for our sailors and soldiers—the best in the world.

American troops in Iceland are not giving the least protection to the United States; on the contrary, they invite attack against us and at a disadvantage. Therefore, congress should order the immediate withdrawal of our troops.

TRUE AMERICAN.

LITTLE SHORT OF LINCOLN.

Coloma, Mich., Sept. 3.—It would seem that the measure of a man's greatness is the extent to which he is maligned during his life of leadership. By that yardstick Roosevelt falls only little short of Lincoln.

It is not inconceivable that were we living in Lincoln's day, THE TRIBUNE and all present day Roosevelt-haters would be venting their spleen upon the now most highly revered American.

It must not be overlooked that to achieve greatness, one must be hated as well as loved.

THEY HAVE CHILDREN.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Recently I have read of the difficulty people with children have to find apartments in the city.

We are one of those families, and are living a block and a half from Bateman public school, one of the best in the city. We have to move because our new landlord does not want children in the building.

What are we who have three or more—even one child—going to do? We cannot afford the luxuries of homes in the suburbs.

HARRIET H. MCCALL.

A FAIR UNION'S DUES.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—A letter from Disgusted regarding union dues is not true in all unions and all should not be condemned for the actions of one.

The organization of which I am secretary and treasurer doesn't ask for full dues from a member who works only two days a week, but asks only for a small sum, which is used to keep the member's insurance in force. This does not amount to one-fifth the regular monthly dues.

THE TRIBUNE has been exposing some of the racketeers lately, and it might be that the union referred to is in that class.

A legitimate union organization has strict rules and regulations that are approved by the membership and must be carried out by its elected officers.

I might say that the union that I am an officer of is a railroad union.

I also have had complaints of the same character, and upon same being investigated it was invariably found that there was a different story afterward.

I can speak for no other union than the one with which I am familiar, but the complaint is such that it seems necessary to correct it in that one particular.

BLAMES FOLKS BACK HOME.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—The publicity given to the bellyaches of soldiers affords a sad commentary on the low degree of morale of certain elements of our citizenry.

The green soldier is like the college freshman. Neither becomes of value to his organization until after he has had a year or more of seasoning. During the seasoning period he has either good or bad influence about him, and upon that influence will depend his success or failure. Is it not in order to give our new soldiers some constructive back home suggestions on coöperation and team play so they can become good soldiers?

The only morale that needs improvement is the morale back home. If the home folks snap out of their lethargy and get into coöperation with the national purpose, our soldiers will get along fine.

A self addressed envelope will expedite handling.

TAX PAYMENTS.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About 20 years ago my uncle became unable to continue paying taxes on some Chicago property he owned. I paid the taxes for about 10 years as well as some delinquent taxes [1] securing a tax deed.

2. About 10 years ago he died and my sister was appointed administratrix but in closing the estate she neglected to consider the Chicago property. I now have an opportunity to secure about one-half what it has cost me so far.

3. What must I do in order to give clear title?

4. Will my tax deed be sufficient if the back taxes are paid?

5. How would you handle this in order to secure a part of the investment?

F. N.

1. If you pay the taxes for seven years after getting the tax deed you may have a limitation title.

2. You do not indicate who were his heirs.

3. Court proceedings would be necessary in order to produce a title that a contract purchaser would be forced to accept. We advise you to have a personal interview with an attorney.

4. Probably not, but conceivably you might find a party who would be willing to waive the court proceedings.

5. See 3.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DRAWING OF WILL.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is it customary for the lawyer who draws up a will to keep in his possession a carbon copy of the will signed by the maker and witnesses?

2. What is the purpose of such procedure?

3. Can the client object and ask that it be destroyed?

L. N.

1. We would hardly say that it is customary.

2. Presumably the purpose is to guard against loss of the original.

3. Clearly the client can refuse to sign more than one. If he has signed, then the most practical way of retracing the step if the attorney is unwilling to destroy the carbon, is to execute a new will expressly revoking the one that was executed in duplicate. We see no reason why you should go to such trouble on the bare facts that you state.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CONTRACT OF SALE.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. We did sign a contract, but the seller doesn't care whether the building is sold or not.

2. The brokers demand the commission.

3. They threaten to garnishee my husband's wages.

4. We signed a contract but [5] we did not have the money for it was on a Saturday and [6] what can they do about it?

F. T.

1. Your wording seems to imply that you have written a previous letter but this correspondence is too extensive to permit us to carry in mind the facts of previous letters.

2. If the broker undertook to find a purchaser and did find a purchaser, then presumably he is entitled to his commission.

3. The first step would be to bring suit against your husband. After getting judgment the creditor could reach wages in excess of $20 per week exemption.

4. Your obligation depends on the wording of your contract.

5. This would not give you a defense.

6. See preceding answers. If you write again, please give us a single narrative statement of your facts.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INTEREST ON DEBT.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. About 10 years ago A had some decorating done on a building amounting to about $900. Shortly thereafter, owing to heavy losses, he was unable to meet this bill.

2. He made small monthly payments which seemed agreeable to the debtor, bringing the bill down to about $200. Now debtor sends bill, including an additional $200 for interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, demanding payment.

3. Can he legally charge interest when no agreement to pay interest was made? No notes were signed.

A. B.

1. The Illinois limitation period on contracts not in writing is five years.

2. The statute would not run as long as these payments were kept up. In other words the period would be five years from the last payment.

3. It seems probable that the creditor could satisfy a court as to the presence of unusual and vexatious delay so as to justify the interest claim.

MISS BARBARA PETTIBONE BOWS AT INDIAN HILL

Three Other North Shore Girls Make Debuts.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Yellow gladioli and baby yellow chrysanthemums formed the centerpieces yesterday on the luncheon tables at the Indian Hill club, where Mr. and Mrs. Holman D. Pettibone presented their daughter, Miss Barbara.

Carrying out the yellow theme, the debutante wore a soft wool dress of the same shade with three-quarter length sleeves cuffed in mink. Her little brown hat had mink trimming, and her flowers were brown orchids. With her cocoa silk jersey gown, Mrs. Pettibone wore a shoulder corsage of creamy roses. More than 100 young people, including debutantes and their escorts, attended the party.

Tea-Dance for Lois Mason.

Welcoming guests at her debut tea-dance yesterday in the Winnetka Woman's club, Miss Lois Mason wore a simple white crepe gown belted in gold kid and embroidered at the neck in gold. The debutante received with her father, Frederic O. Mason, and her mother, who wore a gown of rust crêpe. The party was a simple one, including both the debutante's friends and those of her parents. Her cousin, Miss Lois Pittman, and 18 North Shore Country Day school classmates assisted her.

Between 5 and 8 o'clock yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gale Harris were at home in Fisher lane, Winnetka, to present their daughter, Miss Cynthia. The debutante wore a simple white crepe gown, topped by a little jacket painted in multicolored flowers. Her mother wore hydrangea blue crêpe. After the tea Mr. and Mrs. George D. Smith and their daughter, Mary Frances, gave a dinner party for Miss Harris' assistants and their escorts.

Jelke Guests Go on "Cruise".

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke took their guests on an imaginary cruise to Latin America at a dinner-dance they gave last night for their debutante daughter, Miss Lana. The party was the second this season for Miss Jelke, who was presented at a tea at her parents' Lake Forest home in July. For last night's dance the Onwentsia club was decorated elaborately in Latin American style, including palm trees and a "Sloppy Joe" bar.

The debutante, who is olive skinned and dark haired in the Latin tradition of beauty, wore a bouffant gray net gown striped in panels of tiny pale pink ruffles. Mrs. Jelke's gown of pale silvery blue faille was encrusted with beads of the same color.

19,462 UNFILLED JOBS AVAILABLE TO CHICAGOANS

Chicago employment agencies still have 19,462 unfilled jobs, Frank J. Graves, chief inspector of placement bureaus for the Illinois department of labor, announced yesterday.

A month ago, Graves reported that 24,672 jobs were going begging in the city's 375 private agencies. The drop of 5,210 in the number of jobs available is reflected in relief rolls, which show that 3,035 fewer persons received relief in Chicago in August than in July.

An all time low for the Chicago Relief administration was reached last month when only 132,865 persons received aid, Commissioner Leo M. Lyons reported. It was the 12th consecutive monthly decline. The number of persons receiving relief in July was 135,900; 143,400 were on the rolls in June.

REDS WILL OPEN THEIR 'WORKERS'' SCHOOL ON OCT. 6

Police Say Teachers Are All Communists.

On page 4 of the Graphic section is a story by Willard Edwards telling how communists in America are lying low in key positions.

The fall term of the Workers' school, which offers its students a "Marxist education," will begin Oct. 6 in its new quarters at 64 West Randolph street. A pamphlet issued yesterday announces the courses, the instructors, and the fees charged.

The school was started here in 1932 and has been located at several places since that time. Its present quarters include seven rooms. A book store, which offers communist literature, is operated in connection with the school.

Investigators for the police department industrial bureau call it a school for communism. Lieut. Make Mills, head of the bureau, said that the 31 instructors listed in the school pamphlet are all recorded in the police department files as active communists. Many have been arrested; several have served jail sentences.

Sentenced to 15 Years.

Otto Wangerin, a labor organizer who lectures in the school on trade unionism, was sentenced to serve 15 years in prison by an army court martial at Camp Dodge, Des Moines, Ia., in 1917, for refusing to put on a uniform or to appear for drill, according to Lieut. Mills' files.

Robert Wirtz, who teaches "Fundamental Principles of Communism," served four months in the Lake county jail in 1939 for taking part in a riot at the Chicago Hardware Foundry company plant in North Chicago where a strike had been called. He was charged with instructing strikers to disregard a court injunction. He formerly attended the Northern Illinois State Teachers' college and Northwestern university.

Eric Thomas, who has for his subject "The Jewish Peoples in the Anti-Hitler Front," served 30 days for rioting in Hammond, Ind., in a Red demonstration in 1930.

Secretary of Reds' League.

Jack Kling, secretary of the Young Communist league, was fined $200 in 1935 for taking part in a disorderly demonstration. He was sent to the Bridewell when he did not pay the fine. He lectures on the history of the struggle of the soviet union against Hitlerism.

Elmer Luchterhand, who teaches American history, was committeed to a hospital for mental patients in 1932 for taking part in a disorderly demonstration of communists in Madison, Wis. He is a former student of the University of Wisconsin.

Some of the other teachers in the school are Mrs. Romania Ferguson, colored, who studied at the Lenin institute in Moscow; Claude Lightfoot, colored, who went to Russia in 1935 and was elected to the presidium of the seventh world congress of the Communist Internationale, and Milton Cohen, who served with a communist brigade in the Spanish revolution.

Lightfoot, who has been a candidate on the communist ticket for state offices several times in the last five years, was fined $100 in May, 1934, in the Municipal court for participating in a disorderly communist demonstration.

Denies Communist Control.

Jim Cole, the school secretary, denied that it is operated by the communist organization. He said that while many of the instructors are communists, the school is self-supporting from the fees charged students.

Cole, described by the police as a member of the communist executive committee for the Illinois and Indiana district, said that approximately 1,000 persons attend the school's three terms each year. The fees are $3.50, $3, or $2.50 for each course of one hour and a half each week for the term.

Police say that Frank Meyer, a former student at the University of Chicago, is the school director. He has written many articles for the Daily Worker, communist paper, and the Communist, the organization's magazine.

EXPECT CHICAGO COLLEGE ROLLS TO GAIN 10,000

53,000 Students Will Be Registered This Fall.

Turn to the front page of today's Graphic section for a story of the University of Chicago's half century of growth.

Chicago will be the magnet for more than 53,000 college students this fall.

Under the stimulus of increased job opportunities, the result of arms production, at least 10,000 more students will enroll in colleges and universities in this area than registered last fall. In the larger schools, the accent will be on engineering. Classes will open next week.

Northwestern university again will attract more students than any other educational center in Chicagoland. More than 15,000 full and part time students will enroll in its 12 schools on the Evanston and Chicago campuses.

ROTC Unit to Be Boosted.

The physics and chemistry departments of a new $5,000,000 technological school are scheduled to open in Evanston, and an evening engineering course is planned for the University college on the Chicago campus. For defense, naval ROTC until will be increased from 270 to 325. The Midshipmen's Naval school will continue with an enrollment of 920.

Among Northwestern's new courses will be "Dictatorships in the Modern World," taught by Dr. William Montgomery McGovern, whose book "From Luther to Hitler" has just been published.

The university will open one new building—Lutkin Memorial hall of the school of music, on the Evanston campus. The new skyscraper Wesley Memorial hospital on the downtown campus will be ready for use early next year.

U. of C. Expects 7,800.

The University of Chicago expects about 7,800 students. New courses there will follow a preparedness pattern. An institute of military studies and a free eight week course in chemistry and mechanics for workers already in the preparedness industries will be offered. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the university, announced that several natural science faculties have been commissioned by the government to work on military secrets.

An arrangement between the university and Marshall Field & Co. will enable many students to attend classes on the Midway who could never have hoped to do so before. The department store will offer part time work to a number of freshmen and students entering the university from junior colleges. Their courses will be arranged according to the demands of their work.

POSSE, HELPED BY FLYER, FINDS BODY OF HUNTER

Indiana state policemen and a posse of volunteers, aided by an airplane pilot, yesterday found the body of a hunter, apparently killed by accident, in a heavily wooded region south of Lowell, Ind.

The dead man was Arthur Sigman, 44 years old, of 226 Wildwood place, Hammond. He left home on Thursday carrying a .22 caliber rifle, with the remark that he was going to shoot squirrels. His relatives became alarmed when his automobile was found beside a road near the wooded area Friday.

Yesterday, when a search was organized, Nick Jankovich, a Gary aviator, offered to help. Flying low, he saw the body near a wooden bridge crossing a small stream. His information enabled other searchers to reach the scene. A plank in the bridge had collapsed, and the theory of the police was that Sigman's gun was discharged when he fell thru the hole. Death was caused by a bullet wound near the heart.

APPROVAL GIVEN BROOKS BY YOUNG GOP COMMITTEE

Anti-War Resolution Also Ready for Convention.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Timothy W. Swain.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 13.—Senator Wayland Brooks' noninterventionist record in Washington was warmly approved tonight by the resolutions committee of the Young Republicans' state convention. Also drafted was an anti-war resolution which urges unification of all citizens for a defense so strong as to be impregnable from any foreign attack. It expresses unqualified approval of Republican leaders who are working to keep the United States out of war.

Tomorrow the committee will ask the convention to indorse Brooks in this language: "We hereby resolve that Senator Wayland Brooks be commended for his great record in keeping his campaign pledges. We pledge our support to his continued endeavors in so ably representing the will of the people of Illinois."

Brooks Speaks Today.

Brooks and Gov. Dwight H. Green will be the headline speakers at the closing session tomorrow. They may be present when the convention hears the anti-war resolution which the committee drafted tonight.

Much the same position as is contained in the resolution was taken by one of today's principal speakers, Representative William G. Stratton [R., Ill.], who declared that the middle west opposes intervention, stands firm for strong defense, and despises Hitler.

"It is high time," Stratton said, "that the middlewest—the backbone of the country—is heard from instead of being led into a war of no national interest by a fringe along the eastern seaboard."

Army Needs Year's Training.

The young congressman, at 27 years of age the baby of the national house—told his fellow juniors in the G. O. P. that while the American navy is the strongest in the world today it would be "suicide" to involve the army in war.

"Altho progress is being made with the army it still be a year or a year and a half before it is properly trained," he declared.

"President Roosevelt's speech Thursday night reveals how close he has brought us to war step by step, until today we are in a position of actively aiding one belligerent against another, even to the extent of their ships."

Another blast was leveled at the New Deal by Attorney Timothy W. Swain of Peoria, state president of the Young Republicans, who criticized the progress of the rearmament program.

Bungling Assailed.

"Apparently the New Dealers think that mere appropriations of money are the magic wands of achievement," Swain declared in his opening address to the two day annual convention. "If the young people of this country are to make the sacrifices that are being required of them, when is the New Deal going to start stamping out the inefficiencies and bungling of our arms program?"

The young GOP leader declared the record shows "staggering appropriations" but only "miniature achievements."

"The funds made available for the preparedness campaign now amount to about 45 billion dollars," Swain continued. "After a year of inefficient and stumbling efforts by the administration, only 18 billions of this amount have been allocated in the form of actual contracts, and only about 7 billions have been spent. This includes some production placed 'on order' for Great Britain a long time ago."

Get Anti-War Resolution.

Late tonight the convention resolutions committee was struggling with a mass of resolutions covering a variety of subjects, and including one against American participation in the war. This will have the personal support of John E. W. Timm, the chairman, a firm noninterventionist.

Another resolution, offered by James L. Atkins, Decatur, former Young Republican chairman of Macon county, would place the convention on record as no longer considering Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Presidential nominee, the titular head of the party.

Atkins' resolution stated that Willkie should virtually be read out of the party because he had labeled his campaign pledges "mere campaign oratory," had broken faith with the people, and had declared it his intention to eliminate from public office persons who disagreed with President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

Besides Gov. Green and Senator Brooks, other state officers scheduled to appear before the youth of the party are Lieut. Gov. Hugh W. Cross, Attorney General George F. Barrett, Treasurer Warren Wright, and Auditor Arthur C. Lueder.

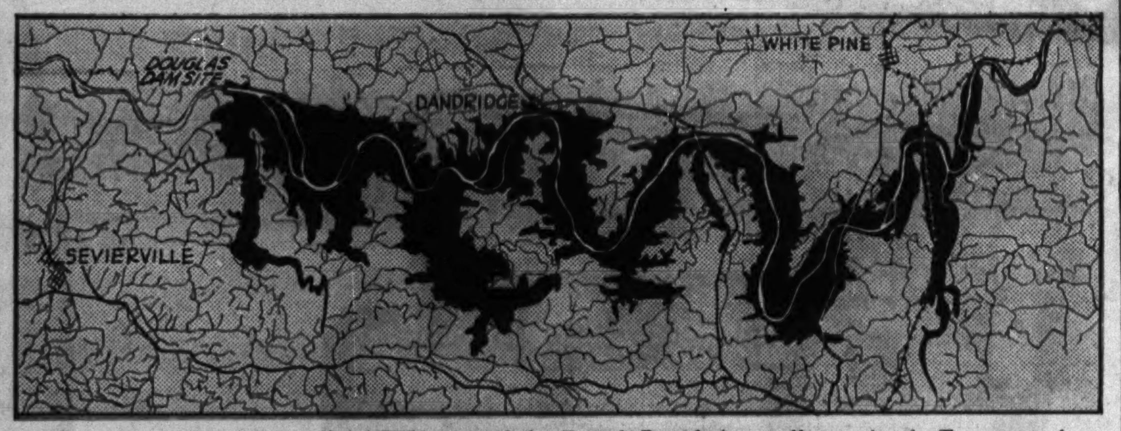
Charges TVA's 'Dragon' Threatens Fertile Land



This reproduction of an official TVA map of the French Broad river valley region in Tennessee shows the reservoir which would be created by the proposed Douglas dam (indicated at left). Paul Goddard, a Dandridge, Tenn., newspaper editor, charges that fertile lands in the valley would be ruined by the reservoir, which he calls "the dragon" because of its shape. If the map is turned upside down the resemblance to a dragon-like figure appears even more striking.

2D ARMY UNABLE TO TRAIN IN VITAL PHASE OF 'BLITZ'

Lack of Equipment Is Bar to Infiltration.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Winnfield, La., Sept. 13.—Soldiers of the 2d army, gathered here for maneuvers, will not have an opportunity to learn the infiltration methods used so successfully by the Germans on European battlefields. The constantly plaguing shortage of equipment—in this instance a lack of airplanes and tanks—will prevent them from practicing this effective technique of modern warfare.

The necessity of strong forces of planes and tanks was demonstrated by Nazi soldiers in executing this form of attack.

Under the German technique, dive bombers first blast enemy defense positions, then a lightning thrust is made by tank columns. Close behind the tanks came the infiltration of motorized infantry, which mop up the area before the opposition can reorganize or launch a counterattack. The movements are so swift and well organized that the infiltrated infantry is able to hold the quick gains until stronger forces arrive.

Success Demands Practice.

These blitzkrieg tactics require a maximum of painstaking practice by well trained and thoroly equipped troops, plus the support of adequately motorized units, to work successfully.

The plight of the 2d army here is pathetic in this department of modern war. It does not have any airplanes or tanks, to say nothing of trained troops necessary to the success of infiltration methods.

Furthermore, the shortage of armored cars and trucks essential to this technique has been acute. In many instances troops have had to be shuttled—trucks doubling back to pick up walking soldiers—to transport participating units from their home bases to maneuver areas.

Soldiers Are Dirty and Untidy.

An example of the lack of training and discipline among the troops is to be observed in soldiers who pack the streets of small towns in this territory during the present rest period between the preliminary exercises and intra-army maneuvers.

The large number of men needing haircuts, shaves, and clean uniforms comes close to being disgraceful. Shined shoes are not to be seen. The men have had ample time to clean up before leaving camp, but instead they adopt the attitude of soldiers who have been in front line positions for many weeks. Their officers not only fail to enforce discipline in this respect, but do not themselves set an example in appearance.

WILLKIE TO AID F. D. R. BACKERS IN CAMPAIGNS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—Reporting that Wendell L. Willkie has decided to take an active part in the off year elections of 1942, associates of the 1940 Republican Presidential nominee said today he would work and speak for those G. O. P. candidates who have backed President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

Willkie's friends reported he has made three political decisions:

1. He will work within the Republican party to make it one standing for "internationalism."
2. He will spend all his spare time working for the nomination and election of those Republicans who have supported administration foreign policy.
3. He will keep silent in campaigns where Democrats supporting Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policies are fighting Republicans who oppose them.

Willkie, it was said, is anxious to help in the reëlection campaigns of such men as Senators Joseph H. Ball [R., Minn.] and Styles Bridges [R., N. H.], both of whom have supported administration foreign policy legislation.

TVA Project Assailed

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 13 [Special].—Paul Goddard, editor and publisher of the Dandridge Banner and the Jefferson City Standard, is sounding the warning that a dragon is threatening the fertile valley of the French Broad river. His warning relates to the proposed Douglas reservoir and dam.

The young Tennessee editor illustrates his point by publishing a map of the area that would be affected by the dam. The map was prepared by the Tennessee Valley authority. Shadings showing the area in question depict a huge, slithering dragon covering part of the eastern section of the state. The map is more effective held upside down.

Goddard asserts that the Douglas dam would flood 324 farms, with a total acreage of 60,742. It would affect 757 families totaling 3,251 persons; 997 full time farm employés and 1,139 part time farm employés.

TODAY IS 127TH ANNIVERSARY OF NATIONAL SONG

Today is the 127th anniversary of the writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," the national anthem, written by Francis Scott Key.

After the burning of Washington, D. C., by British troops in August, 1814, Key and a companion visited Sir Alexander Cochrane, admiral of the British fleet, to plead for the release of Dr. William Beanes, a Maryland patriot who had been captured by the invaders. Cochrane agreed to free Beanes. The three Americans, however, were placed under guard to prevent their conveying information of a planned attack on Fort McHenry, the chief protection of Baltimore, Md.

The bombardment was started on Sept. 13 and was continued thru that day and almost all night. The three Americans paced the deck of a cartel ship, peering thru the mist to catch glimpses of their country's flag still atop the fort. At dawn of the 14th, fearful of the outcome of the battle, they trained their glasses on the fort. A rift in the mist showed the Stars and Stripes still gleaming above the walls.

At this time Key began to write the anthem on the back of a letter he found in his pocket. That evening, in Baltimore, he completed the words. Some days later an actor named Ferdinand Durang set the verses to the old English drinking tune, "Anacreon on Heaven," and sang them in public. The song soon gained national popularity.

INSECTS UPSET WAR GAMES; PUT 200 IN HOSPITAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Winnfield, La., Sept. 13.—Two hundred soldiers are being treated in the Camp Livingston post hospital near Alexandria for infected insect bites which are interfering with the maneuvers of the 2d army in the swamp country of northern Louisiana.

Chiggers and red bugs are the bane of the soldier who ventures off the highway and the medical department of the army has not been able to do much about them.

Medical officers in some regiments have tried to combat the bugs with sulphur. Soldiers who have tried the sulphur preventive have been taking a half teaspoon full internally each day and powdering their legs with it. This remedy has been of considerable help in fighting the bugs, but is not satisfactory because of the odor.

A private medicine manufacturer also has been experimenting with a preventive and 3,000 troops who massaged teir bodies with his product exposed themselves to chigger-infested grass with a 90 per cent reduction in bites.

Third Payment on Income Taxes Is Due Tomorrow

Third instalments on income taxes are due tomorrow. Mail payments postmarked before midnight tomorrow night will get in under the deadline. Delinquents will be assessed a 6 per cent penalty, and the unpaid balance will become due, according to Nigel Campbell, chief deputy in the office of the collector of internal revenue.

LIEBERMAN QUITS ROAD ENGINEER'S POST WITH STATE

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 13 [Special].—Ernst Lieberman, chief state highway engineer since 1933, today eliminated himself from the political picture by submitting his resignation to Gov. Dwight Green, who accepted it "with regret."

Ernst Lieberman.

Lieberman has been ill for several months, following a heart attack, and finally decided that his health would not allow him to continue his work.

His letter to the governor follows:

"I herewith tender my resignation as chief highway engineer of the state, to take effect at any time that suits your convenience. The state of my health will not permit me to carry the full responsibility and duties of my office any longer. My knowledge of and experience in the highway department are at your disposal if you should ever require them."

In reply, the governor wrote:

"With regret, I accept your resignation, to be effective as of Oct. 1. I cannot fail to take this opportunity to express to you my sincere appreciation of the splendid service which you have rendered to the state of Illinois during the many years you have acted as chief highway engineer. It is my hope that it will not be long before you completely recover your good health and tireless energy."

Lieberman was a member of the Chicago board of local improvements when Henry Horner was elected governor in 1932. Horner brought him to Springfield and after the death of the governor, John Stelle retained Lieberman during his 100 days' administration.

Since Lieberman became ill, shortly after the election of Gov. Green, administration of the highway department largely has been in the hands of Matt Fleming, assistant chief, an employé of the department for 20 years. Fleming has been assisted by Frank N. Barker, who has been head of a highway research project conducted by the United States bureau of roads and the Illinois department.

There was some speculation here tonight whether the post, which pays $9,000 a year would go to Fleming or Barker. Competent engineers now are said to be hard to obtain because of government demands.

HOME BUILDING FEELS IMPACT OF PRIORITIES

Activity in High Priced Houses Slackens.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Builders of homes in the higher cost brackets were warned yesterday that unless the priority situation was cleared up construction of expensive homes, especially along the north shore, would come to a complete halt. A survey of builders of high priced residences disclosed one firm refusing all new orders; another predicting that within six months all building in houses costing over $6,000 would be stopped, and a third predicted that half of the builders in all cost brackets would be out of business within 60 days.

Leonard Downie.

Builders in the lower priced brackets were found to be more optimistic, figuring that if a ceiling of $6,000 to $7,500 [a figure suggested by the Home Builders Institute of America] is set they will get the advantage of priority ratings.

Suggests Modernizing Slums.

Leonard Downie, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, who went to Washington with a group of realtors last week to investigate possibilities for relieving a constantly tightening situation here in the home building field, suggested yesterday that large cities embark on a program of rehabilitation, while waiting for federal action in priorities.

"Chicago is a defense area, so all housing is considered defense housing," he said. "Why couldn't we then modernize our older buildings; clean out our slum areas to make way for adequate housing; convert large buildings into smaller units. The Home Builders Institute of America has urged that priority ratings for rebuilding old structures into modern units suitable for workers in defense areas be issued on a parity with those granted to new construction."

Report "Bootlegging" of Nails.

Meanwhile rumors of bootlegging in building materials still persisted. One hastily formed Chicago syndicate, it was said, had got hold of 80 thousand kegs of nails, bought for cash, and had sold them, also for cash [no checks accepted or any other possible clue to sales] at a profit of $1 per keg.

Definite fear of federal seizure of accumulated materials was voiced by several big firms who foresaw priority blockades and prepared for it by buying needed building supplies. One large builder said he had bought everything he needed for at least 75 residences costing $15,000 or more—from nails to plumbing.

"I can go ahead for at least a year," he said. "But don't mention my name. If you did it wouldn't surprise me to have a government agent take everything."

Seized by Government.

Stories of such action were brought back from Washington by Chicago builders last week. A large subdivider in Philadelphia bought, paid for, and had shipped to him an order of water pipe. He dug the trenches and had just started to remove the pipe from cars on a siding when government agents stepped in and took the entire order for use at some camp.

Builders of both small and large homes agreed that many substitutes easily could be made—such as wooden or concrete beams to take the place of steel—but all pointed out that there are some things that cannot be substituted—copper wires for example.

Licked by Little Things.

"It's the little things that are going to lick us," said Irvin A. Blietz, builder of expensive homes on the north shore. "Nails for example. Roughing in materials for plumbing are scarce and soon will be impossible to get. One of our big problems will be the wiring of homes for there's no substitute for copper."

A few builders of expensive homes said they were going ahead as usual. One of them is George F. Nixon & Co., which admitted having only normal supplies on hand. Its homes range in cost from $20,000 to $30,000.

"Buyers still want to buy," said Walter Warren of that firm, "and we're going to keep right on building."

SEARS BUYS WAREHOUSE.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. bought the two story building at 3539 South Ashland avenue, 82 by 225, which it has been occupying under lease for mail order merchandise, from the Richard and Boynton company, Dover, N. J., for $32,500.

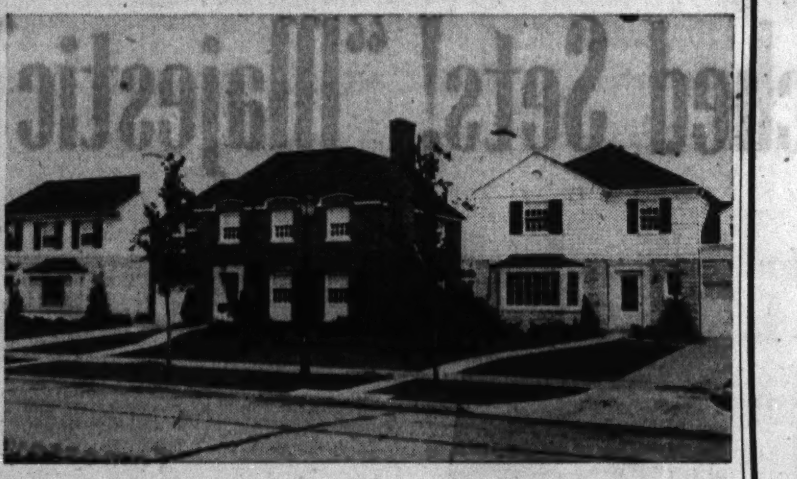
Just Completed in Evanston



Three homes at 309, 315, and 321 Ashland avenue, Evanston, recently completed by George J. Cyrus & Co., Inc., in co-operation with North Suburban Home Builders, Inc., sponsor of a building project in the Oakton school district. The house on the right was sold to Pieter Visser, designer and artist of Montgomery Ward & Co. The other two homes have just been completed and are open to the public. The three houses contain from 6 to 8 rooms and cost from $14,000 to $19,000.

Suburban Building During August Shows a Falling Off

Construction in Chicago suburbs during August slowed up both in all types and in home building as compared with July. Whether this was due to the threat of priorities, which began to be talked about rather freely last month as a possible deterrant to residential construction, or was a seasonal recession, was uncertain. Permits were issued in August for all types of buildings valued at $7,779,005 compared with $8,244,799 in July.

Permits for 929 new homes were taken out during August, with a total value of $5,819,636. In July there were 993 permits, costing $6,489,486. This is a decrease of 64 homes, valued at $669,850. The figures are from the survey of suburban building compiled by Bell Savings and Loan association.

Less During 7 Years.

Looking at the "seasonal" argument to explain the slump, one finds that during the last 10 years August building has been less than July during 7 years. In 4 years August was higher than July.

Comparison of both all types of building and home construction during August with the same month last year is more encouraging for in both instances gains were made. There were $2,739,111 more of all type buildings and $2,169,088 in homes. Permits for 318 more homes were issued last month than during August of 1940.

Talk of priorities during August worked both ways in affecting home building. It deterred some prospective builders and spurred others to try to get a home under way and materials contracted for before priorities interfered.

Eight Months Show Gain.

So far this year 5,597 homes, valued at $37,051,570 have been started, compared with 3,831 costing $24,016,252 for the same 8 months of last year.

In unincorporated area of the four Chicagoland counties which have been zoned and therefore have records of building outside of towns, home construction was active last month. In Cook county there were permits for 196 homes, costing $710,151; in Du Page county, 48 homes, $255,586; Kane county, 36, $124,630; Lake county, 125, $258,950. This is a total of 405 homes, costing $1,349,317. In building of all types there were permits totaling $1,509,922 in the four counties' unincorporated areas.

Joliet Led in Homes.

Joliet made a spectacular climb to the top of the home building column with 173 homes valued at $780,825. Of these 150, costing $650,000, are being financed thru the Defense Homes corporation, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Gary, leader many times in home construction, was second in value of August homes, with 76 permits, costing $359,700. Hammond was third with 63 homes, valued at $309,000. Skokie was fourth with 24 homes, $194,163.

Then followed Evergreen Park, 22, $176,000; Elmhurst, 19, $158,600; Elmwood Park, 24, $151,175; Park Ridge, 16, $140,050. Highland Park was tenth with 12 homes, costing $135,089.

LOUIS READY TO FIGHT, IN RING OR THE ARMY

May Enlist After Nova Battle.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Greenwood Lake, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Joe Louis, heavyweight champion of the world, and his astute and cautious guardians and managers, John Roxborough and Julian Black, were asked this afternoon to weave together a skein of contradictory items anent patriotism and pugilism, shooting and shadow boxing, the inspiring martial roll of drums and the clicks of spinning turnstiles.

Joe says he is ready to join the army immediately, and now is debating whether to enlist or await the processes of the draft. He says he is delaying enlistment now, pending the fulfilment of several pressing sports matters—his 19th defense of his title against Lou Nova in the Polo Grounds, New York, Sept. 29; attendance at the world series, which opens in Yankee stadium Oct. 1, and his personally sponsored horse show, which will be held at Joe's Spring Hill farm, near Utica, Mich., Oct. 4 and 5.

Louis Seems Sincere.

We became convinced that Joe wants to get into the service. He is married and he will be 28 years old next May 13. He has been a fine citizen, before and since he became champion of the world, and has friends who should be able to do him some good if he wanted to pull the big duck. But he says he is ready to do any kind of patriotic service, from kitchen police to riding his thorobred steed, Flash, in a cavalry charge.

Joe wasn't loquacious, at this late date. But he seemed sincere as he talked of army life today. Some of the fancy writers recently have been giving Joe's talks on war a good old Dixie flavor by writing his statements in plantation dialect. We have been in every southern state, also Detroit, Joe's adopted home, but every time we try to print dialect we get mixed up with mid-Indiana. So we hereby are quoting Joe straight away and, besides, he never told us "Ah sure is honin to git a shootin piece in mah han's."

He's Ready for Anything.

Said Champion Louis: "I'm anxious to do anything the government wants me to do. I've said before I'm not choosey and, unless I enlist after the Nova fight, I'm ready to go along just like all the other boys who are drafted.

"I understand Mr. Tunney [Lieutenant Commander Gene Tunney of the naval reserve, former heavyweight champion of the world] is doing some good work in the navy and I would like to do something like he's doing, but, at the same time, standing ready to get into the fight in if the shooting starts."

"I can do anything in a parachute or behind a gun that Max Schmeling has done and I hope people will believe me when I say I'll be just as willing as they say Max is.

"Until I decide where I can best enlist or whether I should wait for the draft, I'm training hard. When I go into the army, I want to go as the champion, and that's what I'm going to be after the fight on Sept. 29."

Managers Keep Hands Off.

It has been hinted that Managers Roxborough and Black, tho good American citizens, have not been seen waving flags in an attempt to stir Champion Joe to a patriotic frenzy. We found them skittish about discussing certain phases of Joe's impending enlistment or induction into the army. But both appear sincere in their stated determination not to influence Joe in asking restoration of the 3-A deferment, which Joe's draft board in Chicago recently moved up to 1-A.

Said Roxborough: "Before the selective service board in Chicago decided to change Joe's rating, we had accepted an invitation from high army officials of the 6th corps area for Joe to spar in exhibitions at Great Lakes, Camp Grant, Rantoul field, Camp Custer, Selfridge field, and other camps in Illinois and Michigan. All of us had hoped that this would lead to Joe's enlistment and a chance to do moral building work of the kind Lieutenant Commander Tunney and other athletes are doing in the navy. Then came the action of the Chicago draft board.

The Champion Is Popular.

"I'd be insincere if I said I wanted Joe to become a supposedly obscure boy in a draft camp. I know his popularity [Joe's biggest gate was $1,015,012 for the second Schmeling fight and the Max Baer-Louis affair went over $1,000,000] and I know he could continue to be a credit to his race and sport in a morale post until such time as actual fighting begins

"I also know he is the most obedient human I ever saw and will happily accept any order of a superior

Stretch Run by Favorite Fails by 4½ Lengths

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 13 (AP).—The big bell rang again tonight on Sam Riddle's Kentucky farm, for another son of Man O' War won today—and War Relic did it the hard way by beating the great Whirlaway in the $25,000 Narragansett Special.

The tremendous final drive that has made Whirlaway both whacky and famous failed as the 3 year old War Relic won going away to sweep under the wire four and a half lengths out in front to stun the crowd of 50,000, which had made Warren Wright's champion the odds-on-favorite.

Alf Robertson, who had brought Whirlaway home ahead in his last three outings, said he had no excuses to make—Whirlaway just was beaten by a better horse today.

Evens an Old Score.

War Relic's victory, which was worth $22,400 to his owner, evened an old score for he was nosed out by Whirlaway in a much-disputed race a month ago at Saratoga in their only other meeting.

Only four horses were in today's race and it was pretty much a dual affair that bordered on developing into a solo performance. War Relic, which set a steady but not fast pace in covering the mile and three-sixteenths route in 1:57 1-5, led all the way.

Whirlaway, carrying 118 pounds and giving 11 to War Relic, ran last around the first turn. Approaching the five-eighths pole, Jockey Robertson started Whirlaway on a drive from behind—the same kind that has carried him to the 3 year old division leadership.

No Late Rush This Time.

He moved past Howard Wells' Equifox and gained inch by inch on War Relic thru the far turn, but as they straightened out in the home stretch the Riddle colorbearer pulled away again, and Whirlaway didn't show the late speed his backers counted upon.

Equifox came from last at the quarter pole to finish only a length back of Whirlaway. Royce G. Martin's Haltal was last. Both Equifox and Haltal are 4 year olds.

While a victory would have lifted him to third place among the leading money-winners of all time, Whirlaway did advance a notch to fifth in the list by netting $4,000 to make his earnings in two years of racing $324,611.

War Relic paid $8.10 and $2.30 and Whirlaway $2.20. There was no show betting.

RUN DEAD HEAT

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 13 (AP). Two hard-hitting 2 year olds, Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab and R. Sterling Clark's Colchis, raced to a dead heat today in the $10,000 added Eastern Shore handicap. They thrilled an opening day crowd of 15,000 with a rousing finish in which Alsab came from far behind and on the outside to catch Colchis just at the wire. Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Flaugh was third in the field of 10 juveniles.

Alsab and Colchis each picked up $5,875, and this amount ran the Sabath colt's earnings for the year to $78,055, surpassing the $77,275 that Whirlaway earned as a 2 year old last year. They ran the six furlongs in 1.12 3-5 over a slightly sluggish track.

Alsab, which carried top weight of 126 pounds, was conceding nine pounds to Colchis.

REQUESTED WINS AGAIN

New York, Sept. 13 (AP).—Requested won again for Texas Ben Whitaker today before a crowd of 23,701. The bargain son of Questionnaire continued his domination of the 2 year olds campaigning in this area by dashing in with a half length victory in the Cowdin stakes at Aqueduct.

Picked up for $1,300 at the Saratoga yearling sales last year by the Texas sportsman, Requested added another $9,550 to his bankroll with his victory, thereby boosting his earnings to $47,850 for his brief career.

In downing 11 other juveniles he chalked up his seventh stake triumph of the season, and with it brought new interest to his Sept. 23 $10,000 match race at Belmont Park against Mrs. Al Sabath's Alsab.

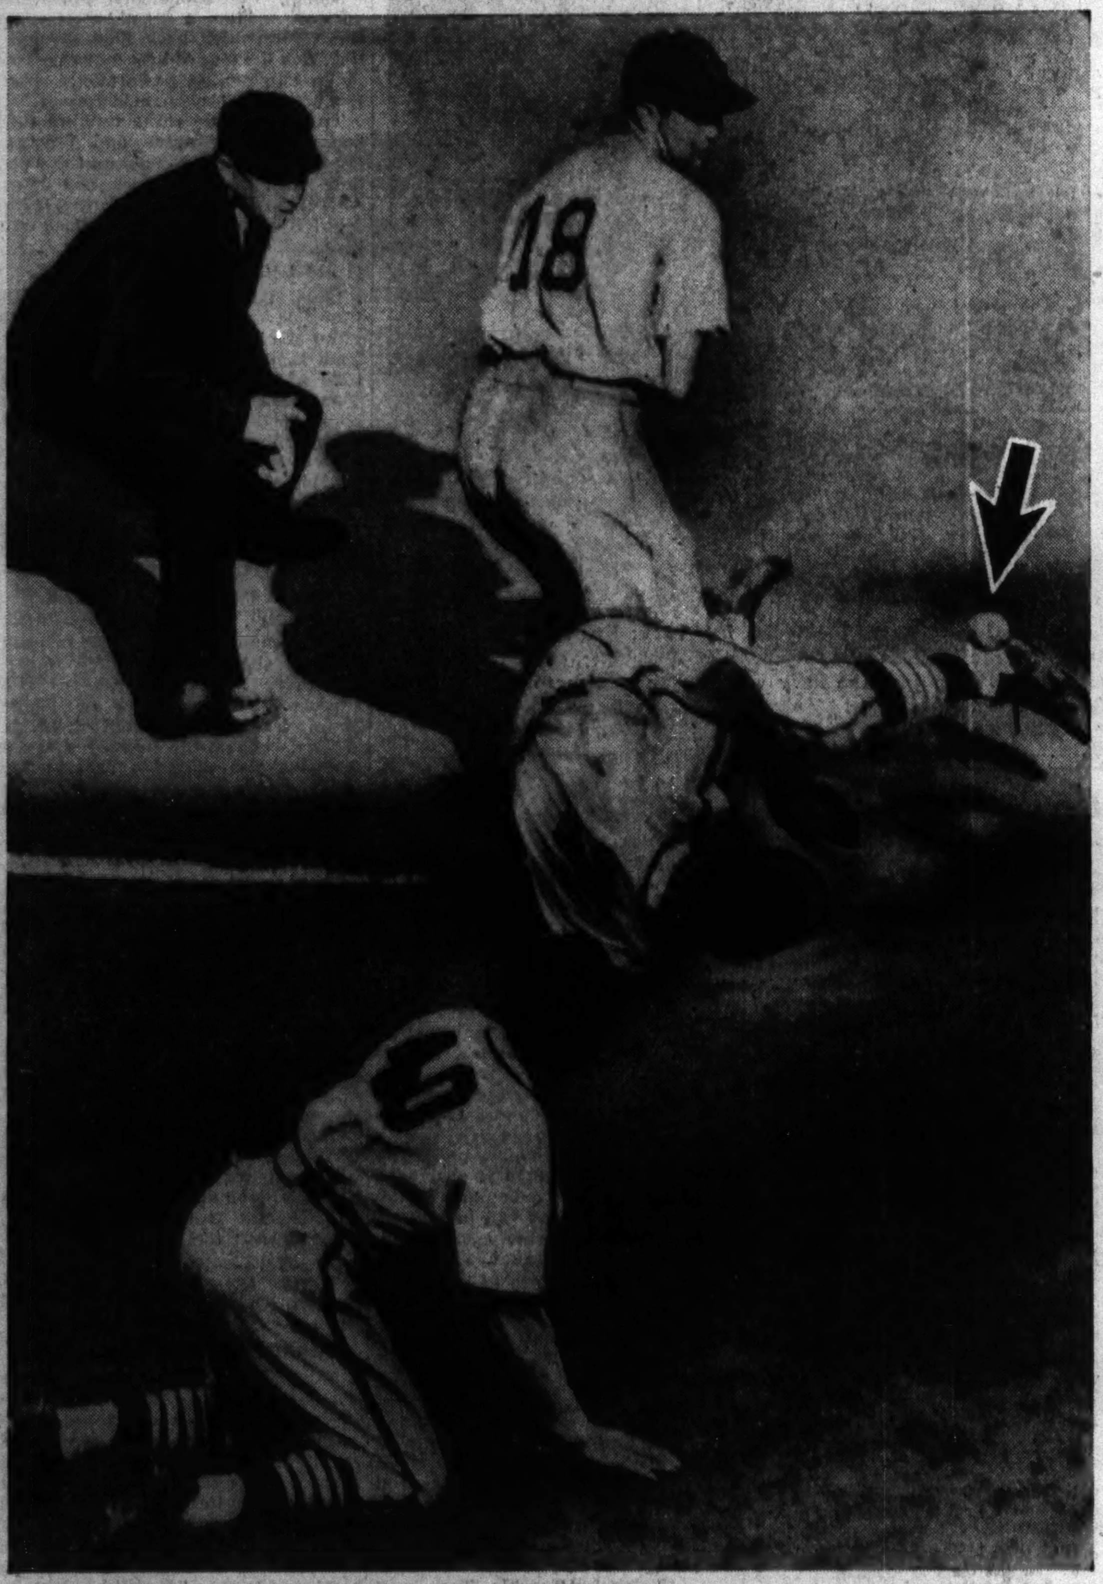
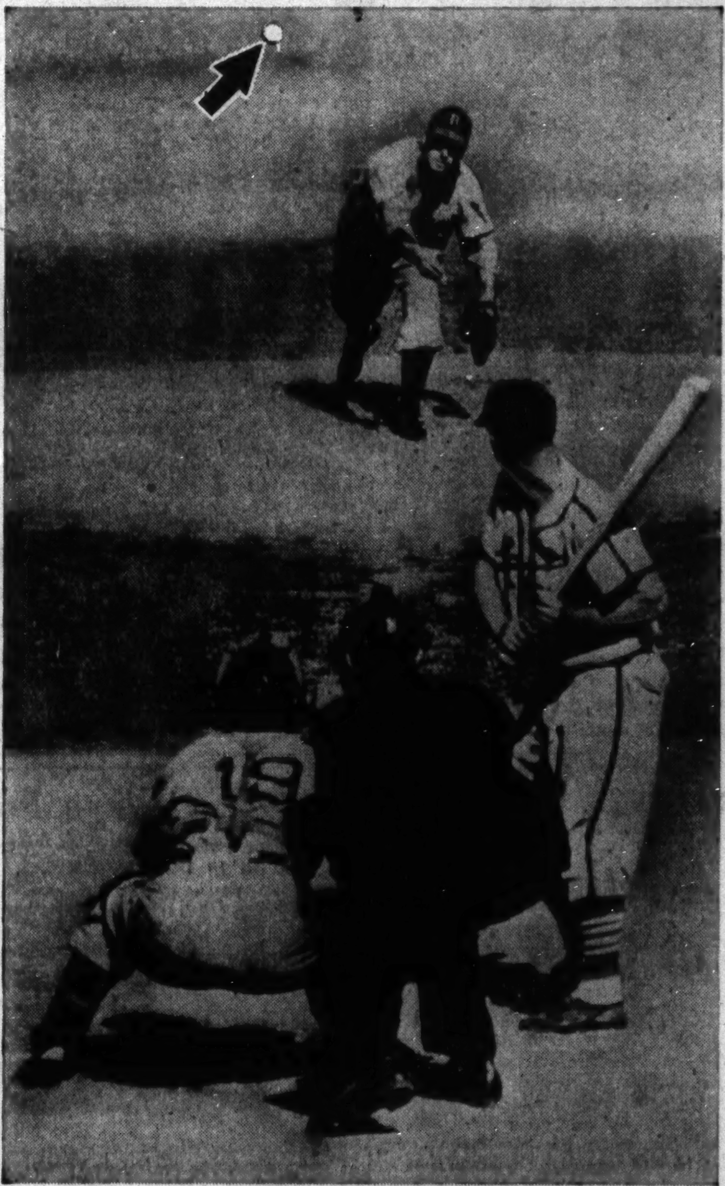
A MONEY GAME—AND DODGERS PICKED UP THE CHIPS!



Frank Crespi, Cardinals' third baseman, is safe at third base in fifth inning of yesterday's game with the Dodgers in St. Louis—safe because the ball (arrow) thrown by Shortstop Reese hit him in the back. Reese had picked up Martin Marion's roller. Marion reached second on the play, but Cards missed their big chance with none out. Billy Southworth (40), Cards' manager, scrambles away from the play. The umpire is Lee Ballanfant. Brooklyn won, 1 to 0, and increased its National league lead to two games.



Dodgers' man of the hour was Whit Wyatt, shown pitching to Jimmy Brown in the first inning. The catcher is Herman Franks and the umpire Babe Pinelli. It was Wyatt's 20th victory. Both he and his opponent, Mort Cooper, pitched three-hit games.

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 13 (AP).—Women's sports came up with another poker faced champion today when attractive and impassive Mrs. Betty Hicks Newell of Long Beach, Cal., missed par by four strokes over a 33 holes stretch at the Country club while defeating Helen Sigel of Philadelphia, 5 and 3, for the national amateur golf title.

The 20 year old Mrs. Newell, who pounds a golf ball almost as hard and in much the same stoical fashion her famed fellow Californian, Helen Wills Moody, did tennis spheroids, trailed only for the first two holes of the scheduled 36 hole tournament final.

Altho she scored a 77 for the morning 18 holes, the new champion had only a one hole margin on the much more spontaneous 22 year old Philadelphia girl at the halfway mark, after being 3 up at the 10th.

Scores Birdies at 19th, 20th.

When Mrs. Newell tossed away half of her lead by taking a six on the 18th, where she was in the rough with her first two shots, Miss Sigel appeared to be getting set for a mighty closing rally.

That, however, was nipped in abrupt fashion as Mrs. Newell pulled into a three hole lead by scoring birdies on the first two afternoon holes. She became 4 up at the 23d and she retained that margin when she completed her third nine of the day in 36, one under par.

Miss Sigel fought back in dogged fashion. The Philadelphia girl, first easterner to reach the final since 1935, won two and halved a third as they played out the last six holes.

70 Foot Chip to the Pin.

The end came on the 33d hole when Mrs. Newell, altho outdriven by at least 25 yards, pounded her second shot to the edge of the green and then dropped a 70 foot chip shot almost dead to the pin. She needed only a half for the championship but she regained her five hole margin, which she had built at the 28th and lost on the next hole, when Miss Sigel missed a 12 foot putt, concluding the contest.

Miss Sigel, making her fifth try for the championship, scored 79 this morning and 10 over par for the day.

After accepting the championship trophy, Mrs. Newell, a bride of four months, was asked if she would consider a professional offer.

"I certainly would," she replied in positive fashion. "My husband Frank and I need a stake to start married life."

GIANTS DEFEAT EAGLES, 24 TO 0, BEFORE 38,747

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept 13 (AP).—Before the largest crowd ever to see a professional football game in Philadelphia—38,747—the New York Giants spoiled the National league debut of Philadelphia's Eagles tonight by shoving over three touchdowns and kicking a field goal for a 24 to 0 victory.

Ohio, with a Squad of 41, Builds for '42

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Sept. 13.—The Ohio State university football cycle, with one exception, is back where it began seven years ago. That exception is most important for while Francis Schmidt, from 1934 on, had difficulty in picking 11 men to start each game from a galaxy of stars, Paul Brown, who succeeded Schmidt last spring, has a squad of only 41.

No small part of the debate by the Columbus downtown coaches concerned the capabilities of the players who were on the sidelines when games were lost on the field. Temporarily, at least, Brown can evade this pitfall. He has received complete coöperation.

The razzle dazzle offense has been laid aside for the more prosaic as well as more rigorous fundamentals of blocking, charging, and tackling. Few fans expect a big dividend this year, but on the practice field the slogan is, "We are building for the future."

Team Lacks Replacements.

The obvious fact today on the Buckeye practice field was that Ohio State not only lacks replacements but that nine of the 22 of the first and second teams as they scrimmaged this morning were sophomores. Eighty-two reported for practice last spring, but Brown explained today that "The squad was at maximum only in the first week. Many of these boys really did not want to work but rather wished to talk about being on the football squad."

Brown hopes to build a reserve squad after classes start Sept. 30. The freshman football players will not be used to demonstrate maneuvers of varsity opponents. They will be given a course in the style of football Brown hopes they will play for Ohio State in 1942.

That system, which gained 81 victories in nine years for Massillon High school, as compared to six defeats and two ties, is a composite of lessons taught by several outstanding college coaches. It includes an unbalanced line [the tackles playing side by side], a line and backfield

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Cubs yesterday gained a split in their two game series with the pesky Phillies by wresting a 5 to 4 decision from the visitors in a contest that required 11 innings, two hours and 21 minutes, and considerable heroics, all of them interesting to the sparse audience of 3,771 paid customers and 1,500 boy guests. It was the eighth victory for the north siders in their last 10 starts, and enabled Claude Passeau, last of a quartet of Cub pitchers, to register his 14th triumph, against 13 defeats.

The first three Chicagoans to appear in the 11th all reached base, causing the ouster of Johnny Podgajny, who yielded 14 hits during his tenure. Stan Hack touched it off with a double, and, after Lou Stringer had taken a stroll, Phil Cavarretta beat out a bunt toward third. Rescuer Rufus Melton then appeared just in time to pitch four consecutive balls to Bill Nicholson and force Hack home with the winning run.

They Tie It in Ninth.

Pinch Batter Clyde McCullough and Stringer were the heroes of the ninth inning uprising with which the Chicagoans tied the score at 4 to 4. McCullough, swinging for Tot Presnell, third Cub hurler, opened the inning with a sharp single to center and moved to second on Hack's sacrifice bunt. Stringer then smashed a double over third to send McCullough home.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 13.—Edgar Smith suffered a bad case of futility in the first inning and his mates remained in a similar mood for nine innings today as the White Sox absorbed a 3 to 1 beating from an Athletic team which was filled with rookies fresh from the minors.

One of these rookies was Dick Fowler, a right handed pitcher just recalled from Toronto. Young Richard was deprived of a shutout only because Taft Wright lifted one of his pitches over the right field wall in the second inning for his ninth homer of the year. Fowler struck out four, walked only two, and the six other hits off him were harmless.

Eddie Finishes Strong.

Smith was even better than Fowler in the last seven innings, but that first inning was too much of a handicap. It began with Benny McCoy drawing a pass. Felix Mackiewicz, late of Wilmington, Del., lined a single to left center, sending McCoy to third. Smith then walked Frankie Hayes on four extremely wide ones to load the bases.

Bob Johnson picked on the first pitch and cracked it into left for a single, scoring McCoy and Mackiewicz. Eric Tipton, another rookie up from Toronto, caromed a single off Smith's bare hand to reload the bases, after which Sam Chapman's tremendous fly to Mike Kreevich let Hayes romp home with the third run.

Sox Miss Two Chances.

After that Smith was frisked for only two hits, a single by Al Rubeling of Toronto in the fourth and a single by Tipton in the eighth, but his 15th defeat of the season was assured.

Myril Hoag, first Sox hitter of the day, walked and moved to third on two infield outs, but expired there as Luke Appling bounced out. Wright's homer arrived in the second, but an inning later he grounded out to retire

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 13—Brooklyn's front running Dodgers this afternoon recorded a run that may easily develop into an invitation for them to test their skill on the Yankees in the world series. With first place at stake in the National league race, a pair of ex-Chicagoans teamed up with their bats to hang up the mighty tally that let another Chicago alumnus, Whitlow Wyatt, triumph with his whitewash brush and at the same time drop the Cardinals two games behind the pace.

This was one time in the dizzy campaign that the Dodgers had to have what it takes to get them where they have been trying to go since last April. For seven innings they didn't have even one hit to show off the speed balling of Morton Cooper. They had two passes, but that's all.

Meanwhile the Cards had fashioned three hits off Wyatt, not to mention the chances offered by passes, a hit batsman and the only error of the struggle. But the Dodgers finally crashed the barrier in the eighth.

Walker, Herman Turn Trick.

A daffy mob of 32,691 was riding high on Cooper's possible no-hitter when Dixie Walker, ex-White Sox, stepped up with one out in the eighth and crashed a two bagger into right center. Next was Billy Herman, of Cub fame. He passed up two pitches on the inside. The next was a called strike. Then Capt. Billy clouted a double which reached the wall in right center, Walker galloping home with the day's only tally. The other Dodger hit was a ninth inning single by Lew Riggs, who was restored to the lineup before the rubber battle of the three game series was launched.

The Dodgers now figure they are resting easily because of what remains of their contribution to the season. They have 14 more to play, seven with the tail end Phillies and two with the Braves. Moreover, having played two more games than the Cards, much of their present lead is on the win side. They have captured three more than their pursuers and lost one less. The Cards have 16 remaining on their schedule, none with the Phillies.

Padgett Catches Four Flies.

The most surprising thing about the first two innings wasn't that nobody reached base, but that Don Padgett was successful in handling four putouts for the Cards. The first flaw in the pitching perfection developed when with one out in the third Herman Franks drew a pass from Cooper, but died on first.

It was Creepy Crespi who cracked the hitless spell by leading off in the fifth with a line two bagger into right center. Martin Marion grounded to Pewee Reese, and with ample space in which to make a successful play at third the Dodger shortstop plunked Crespi in the back with the ball. Riggs recovered it quickly, but not soon enough to keep Marion from going to second. Wyatt cleared this hurdle without delay. He fanned Gus Mancuso as well as M. Cooper, and the inning ended on Brown's grounder to Dolf Camilli.

Both Escape Jams.

The sixth was invitation to the Dodgers to get going, but they couldn't accept. After Wyatt had flied to Johnny Hopp for the first out Walker and Herman accepted free passage. M. Cooper's load was lightened a bit when Reiser lofted to Padgett. Camilli refused to bite on bad pitches and also walked, filling the bases, but Brown tossed out Riggs. The Cards also drew a full house in the same inning, but after two were out. Mize singled, Crabtree was hit, and Crespi was purposely passed after Franks' passed ball had allowed the two others to advance. Reese concluded this by grabbing Marion's grounder for a force play at second.

The Cards created a slight flurry in the seventh with their third hit—a single to left by Brown after two were out, but Hopp flied to Reiser.

The Dodgers' third hit was the work of Riggs at the start of the ninth. He lined safely to center, but tried to make two bases and was nailed.

GREEN BAY WILL SEE ITS PACKERS FACE LIONS TODAY

Many New Names Listed for Both Lineups.

BY EDWARD PRELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 13.—Green Bay, a modest sized village [pop. 46,235] compared to the other cities in the National Football league, begins its annual big league existence tomorrow when another football season starts. It is the 23d year for the Packers and their coach, E. L. [Curly] Lambeau.

On the other side of the field at the 1941 opening will be the blue shirted Detroit Lions, who broke even with the Packers in two games in 1940. After beating Green Bay here, 24 to 17, the Lions were walloped in Detroit, 50 to 7.

Both Are Rejuvenated.

Things have changed since then, tho. It's a new deal for the Lions, with Bill Edwards, fresh from Western Reserve, having succeeded Potsy Clark as coach. The Packers, too, having yielded the championship to the Bears last season, brought in more than a few new parts in tuning up the fine machine which finally began to show signs of age. Arnie Herber, of the famed Herber to Don Hutson passing combination, is gone. Others were sent away to make room for new talent.

The Packers, and this goes right down to the last fan, believe they will provide the answer to the question: "Who can stop the Bears?"

The Fans'll All Be There.

The Packers' fans, and they are spread for miles and miles around Green Bay, have all the zeal of those who follow college teams. They will crowd into Municipal stadium, a tidy little bowl seating close to 25,000, prepared to cheer for new heroes. One, especially, has caught their fancy. He is Tony Canadeo, a wraithlike runner from Gonzaga, who outsped defenders time after time on long sweeps in the Packers' exhibition game with the New York Giants here last month. George Paskvan of Wisconsin, will be making his debut at full back.

With all the repair work, tho, the Packers still have a veteran team. There is Quarter Back Joe Laws, for instance, who will be starting his eighth pro campaign. The former Iowan, who played in the first All-Star game, was out during almost all of last season with a knee injury. The knee is as good as new, and a Laws playing all season will make lots of difference. Return of Hal Van Every from the army has been another tonic. The Packers are strong at center, with Charles Brock, George Svendsen, and Tom Greenfield. Their regular tackles, Baby Ray, 248 pounds, and Bill Lee, 235, and a group of veteran guards insure another powerful line.

Lions Have White, Piepul.

The Lions have a rugged eleven, with Whizzer White, as usual, their main offensive threat. Today they pared their squad to the National league limit of 33 by releasing Tom Gallagher, tackle from Notre Dame, and Phil Saecker, an end from Elon. They have two rookie full backs in Milt Piepul of Notre Dame and Harry Hopp of Nebraska. Hopp probably will be in the starting lineup.

A New Soccer Race Is On—57 Teams Start

BY OFFSIDE.

Soccer, practically an all year sport in Chicago, gets back into large scale operation today following a brief late summer letup. Fifty-two teams will compete this afternoon in the opening of the 1941-'42 International league campaign, which will run for nearly 11 months—including play-offs and time out for competition in various cup series.

Among the changes for the new race is the enlargement of the Major division from 8 to 10 teams. The newcomers are the Sparta Ogden Dairy, previously a free lance organization, and the Oak Park Acorns, who won promotion after defeating the Wislas in a three game series last month.

The Spartas, with several lineup changes, will open their title bid against the Swedish-Americans. The Spartas have acquired Joe Werier from the Olympias and William Burda of the Eagles. Missing, however, are Frank Trimmell, who has moved to Milwaukee; Billy Fraser, now with the South Side Swedes, and Ernie Pearson, still under suspension. The Swedish-Americans are minus David Rarity, star half back of last season, who has joined the Carnegie-Illinois Steel team, a new entrant in the first division.

The Vikings, defending champions, may be without the services of Weck Henney, star defense player, when they oppose the Schwabens today. Today's schedule:

FOUR CARDINALS—AND A SAILOR!

Chicago and Springfield Nines Play in Title Game

Peru, Ill., Sept. 13 [Special].—The Lyman-Quirk team, Chicago Baseball Federation champion, will oppose the Springfield Frisina nine, champions of the Illinois Amateur Baseball association, here tomorrow afternoon for the state amateur title. The winner will represent Illinois in the national amateur tournament in Battle Creek, Mich.

Chicago Cards Get Ready for Tuesday Game

The Chicago Cardinals, whose training season has been distinguished by delays, uncertainties, and a rapidly changing personnel, will learn just how well all the loose ends have been tied up when they open Chicago's 1941 National Football league season Tuesday night in Comiskey park. The game will start at 8:30 p. m.

The Cardinals' opponents are the Cleveland Rams, who will be defending their share of the league lead, this having been accomplished by a 17 to 14 victory a week ago over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Jim Conzelman, the Cardinals' coach, was pretty well satisfied when he landed John Kimbrough, Texas Aggie full back, and Paul Christman, Missouri passing wizard, among others, in the draft last winter. Then his head-spinning started. Kimbrough tied himself up with a New York promoter with a fabulous financial arrangement. He was to be the star of the New York Yankees in a new league which has encountered difficulties.

Christman Trouble, Too.

Thru no fault of his own, Christman has given the Cardinal management some beautiful headaches, too. First, he wasn't sure if he would play professional football. Then, after he had decided to join the Cardinals, the army put in a hurry-up call for him. Paul countered by joining the naval reserve. After that he was married last Monday and received a 10 day furlough. Only yesterday afternoon it was definitely learned that Christman will be too busy with his naval duties to play with the Cardinals.

Rally Ties Kenosha, 21 to 21.

Their only test this season has been a 21 to 21 tie last week with Johnny Blood's Kenosha team. Conzelman thought his line lacked aggressiveness and that the backs were handicapped by not being as familiar with the signals and assignments as they will be later. But he liked the way they came back after being behind, 21 to 7, at the half.

Jim has been talking about Ray Mallouf since the first day the Syrian pass pegger from Southern Methodist showed up. He still is as enthusiastic about the freshman and will be disappointed if Ray doesn't sparkle against the Rams. Mallouf completed 12 out of 19 passes at Kenosha and he was throwing a wet, soggy ball. It also will be interesting to watch John Martin of Oklahoma and Avery, Monfort of New Mexico, rookie backs, who had two strikes on them when they joined the Bears' training camp last month. The Bears were so well fixed for backs that George Halas really was serious when he didn't care whether Tom Harmon reported or not.

PURDUE DRIVES ON; FIRST GAME 2 WEEKS AWAY

Bob Chester Stands Out Among Backs.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 13 [Special].—With the opener against Vanderbilt two weeks away, Coach Mal Elward continued his full speed ahead drill program for the Purdue football squad this afternoon, winding up with a scrimmage session.

Among the sophomore prospects who are waging a great battle with the veterans for back field recognition, Bob Chester of Vincennes turned in an outstanding performance, particularly as a broken field runner.

Two out of the three ranking full backs, Bill Buffington and Vincent Snyder, were temporarily on the side lines with minor injuries, and John Andretich, former Mount Carmel [Chicago] High school star, was tried out there.

MARQUETTE DRILLS TODAY.

Lake Tomahawk, Wis., Sept. 13 [Special].—Coach Tom Stidham will grant the Marquette players time out from their fall training tomorrow to take a 24 mile boat ride on Lake Tomahawk to Minocqua. A three hour practice session is scheduled for the morning, however.

Two drills today found Stidham and his aids ironing out flaws which cropped up in the first regulation scrimmage yesterday. The scrimmage was satisfactory to the coaches, considering the early stage of practice.

IOWA DRILLS FOR DRAKE.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 13 [Special].—After pronouncing the squad in good physical shape, Coach Eddie Anderson today gave his Hawkeyes two sessions of review work on Drake plays. The teams meet Sept. 27.

More work on the Hawkeyes' aerial offensive also played a part in the day's practices. Tom Farmer, Jim Youel, Bill Green, Al Couppee, and Bill Stauss did the passing.

HOSKINS, SEELINGER SHINE.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 13 [Special].—Because of their passing ability, Mark Hoskins, a junior, and Len [Bud] Seelinger, a sophomore from Great Falls, Mont., appeared today to have the inside track for the important left half back job on the Wisconsin football squad.

Today's two sessions included contact work, with the first actual scrimmage set for Monday or Tuesday. Five positions appeared to be settled on the first team, Dick Thornally, made over tackle, continuing at center, Dave Schreiner and Eugene Lyons at the ends, Tom Farris at quarter back, and Bob Ray at full back.

GOPHERS' LINE IS STRONG.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 13 [Special.—Dr. George Hauser, who has been producing rock-ribbed lines ever since his one-time teammate, Bernie Bierman, began coaching at Minnesota, seems ready for a repeat performance in 1941. Hauser and Bert Baston, end coach, have 17 of the letter men under their tutelage.

"It should be a good line," he says matter of factly. "It will be virtually the same line we put on the field last season." Four of the seven regulars who cleared the way for the touchdowns that brought an undefeated season a year ago are back again.

Bulwark of this quartet are Tackles Urban Odson, 247, and Dick Wildung, 210 pounds. Also present are Helge Pukema, senior guard, and Bob Fitch, an end.

DON GRIFFIN STARS.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 13 [Special].—Runs by Sophomores Don Griffin and Maurie Gould playing on opposite teams featured Illinois' 45 minute scrimmage game here today.

Playing left half back in a first back field with Jimmy Smith, right half, Dick Good, quarter back, and Myron Pfeifer, full back, Griffin ran twenty-one yards.

Johnny Worban gained an advantage over Good in their fight for the number one quarter back position because of his running, altho both connected on several passes. Gould, Worban, Steve Sucic and Tony Butkovich formed the second team back field.

The draft claimed another Illinois player today when Arthur Pratt, sophomore, half back, was ordered to report to his Ridgewater, Mass., board.

STATE PLAY FULL GAME.

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 13 [Special].—For the first time in a decade a Michigan State squad was sent thru a tough scrimmage session during the first week of practice when, this afternoon, the Spartans played a regulation game. The Green team, composed of first and second stringers, pushed over two touchdowns against a White team made up of members of the third and fourth stringers. The first score was made by Walter Pawlowski of Chicago; the other when Charlie Carey broke loose for an eighty-five yard run. Carey appears certain to be starting full back.

MICHIGAN HAS A LINE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 13 [Special].—A 90 minute scrimmage by the Michigan squad today proved that the Wolverines would have a strong line, if not a powerful back field combination. Coach Fritz Crisler let the reserve linemen, largely sophomores, dominate both teams until the Blue eleven had amassed a 19 to 0 lead, then shot in the number one line. Behind the reserve line for the Blues were George Ceithaml at quarter, Capt. Bob. Westfall, full back, and Chuck Kennedy, Norm Call, and Dave Nelson alternating at the halves. Nelson and Westfall each scored twice on long gains as the Blues won, 33 to 0.

Of particular note were the performances of two sophomore linemen, Julius Franks and Merv Pregulman who starred defensively at guard.

HAMMOND RACE SEPT. 28.

Hammond Speedway's second automobile race program of the year will be held on Sept. 28, the Automobile Association of America announced yesterday.

Ohio Has Green Squad of 41; So Coach Brown Builds for '42

Stickler for Condition.

It is one thing to emphasize speed and another to have fast blockers and runners. Ohio State, sufficient to say, will not be the fastest team in the Big Nine. Neither will it be the most rugged. It should win a few games and it might surprise its most ardent fans or, perhaps, its most over confident enemies.

A valid criticism of Ohio State teams in recent seasons has been a lack of condition. Critics pointed to early scoring rushes against Notre Dame in 1935 and Cornell in 1939 and 1940, when these games were lost in the closing periods, as evidence. Brown is a stickler for condition, which after all, is something a coach should demand regardless of quantity or quality or material.

The center of the line, quarter back, and reserve backs are inexperienced. John Hallabrin, a full back last year, has been shifted to quarter back. Otherwise Ohio State must depend on two sophomores for team direction. Charley Anderson, the Negro left end, will be unpleasantly remembered by Ohio State's rivals, as will Jim Daniell and Capt. Jack Stephenson, tackles. Bob Shaw looks like a good end prospect. Paul Sarringhaus is the most promising of the new backs.

Eight Regulars Graduated.

Ohio State lost 15 letter men by graduation and eight were regular starters. Since compilation of the 1941 roster three players have been declared ineligible and another joined the army. Prior to this Ohio State lost Bill Bell, regarded as the first string center, to the army, but Ed Bruckner was deferred in the draft because of his course of study.

The Buckeyes now are drilling twice a day but this program will be limited to an afternoon session Sept. 22 to lead up to the Missouri game. The Tigers started drill earlier but probably will no more than match total minutes of practice before the inaugural game Sept. 27. From here on the season can be a headache. The Bucks travel to Southern California Oct. 4 and after an open date, play Purdue and Northwestern at home. Following a trip to Pittsburgh, Ohio State concludes with Wisconsin, Illinois, and Michigan. The latter game is at Ann Arbor.

Stress Pass Plays.

The scrimmage this morning included blocking but no tackling, and thus was limited largely to forward pass plays. The teams lined up as follows:

KEPFORD, GRAHAM STAR.

Ike Kepford, veteran right half, and Otto Graham, sophomore, left half, starred in Northwestern's first scrimmage yesterday. Kepford and Graham, comprising the half back combination on the second team, collaborated in a touchdown shortly after they went into action. Graham pitched a twenty yard pass to Kepford over the goal line for the score after both players had advanced the ball on long off-tackle sweeps.

Others in the second half back field were George Benson, senior full back, and Dick Erdlitz, quarter back.

Among punters who turned in creditable performances during the workout were Bill De Correvont, Don Kruger, and Tuffy Chambers, seniors, and Graham and Don Buffmire, sophomores.

HOOSIERS DRILL ON TIMING.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 13 (AP).—Indiana university football players drilled on timing of plays, blocking, and covering of punts and the kick-off today in practice for their season opener with Detroit here Sept. 27. Coach Alvin N. [Bo] McMillin announced the first practice game would be played next Saturday.

Varsity, Frosh Game Canceled at Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 13 [Special].—There will be no freshman-varsity game this year, it was announced today by Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame. Since classes do not start until next Wednesday and the schedule opens Sept. 27, Leahy explained, the only time such a game could be held would be next Saturday, after the freshmen were together only three days. Such an exhibition would do neither the freshmen nor the varsity any good, Leahy said, and would be dull for the spectators.

This afternoon's drill saw the varsity getting a respite from the hard work of the week, with a review of everything covered so far, while the second team and reserves scrimmaged. The second string lineup, in which some of the members of the third and fourth teams were inserted to give the coaches a better slant on their talents, was made up of the following:

ENDS—Matt Bolger and Norm Barry.
TACKLES—Lou Rymkus and Larry Sullivan.
GUARDS—Pat Filley and Bob Walsh.
CENTER—John Lanahan.
QUARTER BACK—Tony Girolami.
LEFT HALF BACK—Don Hogan.
RIGHT HALF BACK—John Peasenelli.
FULL BACKS—Creighton Miller and Chuck McNeill.

Miller's line plunging and Peasenelli's runs and receptions of passes from Hogan featured the scrimmage, altho the scrubs braced well to prevent scoring toward the end of the workout. Barry and Bolger also made some good catches for short gains.

SHOT PUT FOOLS BETTORS; TAKES $5,000 HANDICAP

Distance Runner Pays $14.80 at 1⅛ Miles.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Shot Put's numerous Chicago friends miscalculated yesterday. They decided that the mile and a furlong Hawthorne handicap wasn't quite long enough to give Mrs. Marie Evans' distance champion a chance to assert his stretch running talents. So the 15,000 spectators who gathered at Hawthorne let him go to the post as the 6 to 1 third choice in this $5,000 stake.

Thereupon Shot Put taught them a lesson. After settling into his customary place among the trailers in the early stages, he began moving up very swiftly on the last turn. The big field was a hard jamming pack at the head of the stretch but Shot Put was right up there in a contending position as they headed home.

Then Willie Garner sent him up to engage in a hard duel with Pink Gal, which had taken command with a rush. Steadily Shot Put wore her down and held a lead of three quarters of a length as they went under the wire. Meanwhile the Nash Brothers' Burning Star was closing stoutly to take third place away from the 3 to 1 favorite, Red Dock.

He Keeps On Going.

Even after that hard hitting stretch run, Shot Put wasn't thru for the afternoon. He kept right on going for another complete circuit of the track as a conditioner for the defense of his distance championship in the two and a quarter mile $50,000 New York handicap at Belmont Park Oct. 4.

It's not very often that Shot Put pays off at $14.80, $8.20, and $4.80 in a Chicago area race—but those were the prices which went up yesterday. Pink Gal, closing at 19 to 1, returned $16 and $9.60 for place and show. Burning Star's show price was $4.80. Coupled with Plowshare, the latter had been the 5 to 1 second choice. The winner's time was 1:52 2-5.

Three Jockeys Set Down.

The stewards meted out penalties to three jockeys during yesterday's program. Bill Thompson was hit twice—five days for rough riding on Honey Roll in the first and another five for the same offense aboard Myrica in the seventh. Eddie Wielander got 10 days for reckless work on Pelter in the second and Charles Bianco got five for failing to keep Sabariel straight in the stretch in the first race.

Don MacAndrew, who is leading all the other riders at the meeting, ran his total to 12 with three more winners. He had brought in four on Tuesday, two on Thursday, and three on Friday. Yesterday he scored on Joe W. in the second, Latent in the third, and Alspur in the seventh.

officer. He's showed in many ways he's an unspoiled boy, and the army should have no reluctance about utilizing his sports talents until such time as he is needed on the firing line.

"Tho there are a dozen boxers in the naval reserve and a few in the army who have been able to get furloughs for professional engagements, we are seeking no matches of any kind for any date subsequent to the Nova fight. We expect to handle Joe's private business affairs while he is in the army, but will seek no furloughs for boxing matches."

He Still Intends to Tour.

Said Manager Black: "Unless Joe's draft board moves things faster than the routine indicates, Joe will start his tour of the 6th corps camps about the second week in October. I believe his experiences on this tour will help decide where he could render the biggest service to his country under the present state of affairs. But, keep in mind that Joe had no ideas about ducking hard work in some fancy job. When the fighting starts he'll be handy."

Representatives of Mike Jacobs present at the training camp here today, went to some lengths to put the pish-tush on reports that the Nova battle may be Louis' last under the Marquis of Queensbury rules.

Said Jacobs' press agent, Walter St. Denis: "Joe's got five more defenses of his title to go to beat the record of all 14 other Queensbury champs combined, and that includes Jim Corbett. They defended their titles 23 times with Dempsey and Jeffries tops with five each."

NEW DISCOVERY, rating close up and full of run, went to the front readily when reaching the homestretch, then was kept under urging to the end. SWEET PEASE, improving her position steadily when gaining stride, came to the outside and finished willingly under punishment. SHE'S RIGHT, lacking early speed, was shaken up vigorously and finished gamely on the outside.

Winner trained by W. R. Sallee. Went to post at 2:55. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

JOE W., never far from the leaders, was sent up on the outside with a rush, caught PELTER when straightened into the homestretch, then was forced wide while wearing the winner down under a drive. PELTER, going in her best form, overhauled MY MOMMY to gain a clear lead, but gave way inside the last eighth while drifting out. LOTTERY bettered her position steadily, but failed to menace the first two.

LATENT, placed forwardly and on the outside of the leaders, went to the front with a rush at the stretch turn, lost ground on the bend, but continued strong and drew away at his leasure. KNOCK KNOCK, sluggish and racing wide early, was placed to severe punishment in the last five-sixteenths and finished stoutly while weaving between horses. GOAL TO GO was kept wide from the beginning, but closed with good courage.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-furlongs [chute]. Claiming. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

DE KALB, away quickly, opened up a wide lead soon after the start, increased his advantage until reaching the homestretch, then tired gradually but had enough left to withstand REMOTE CONTROL. Latter, saving ground when outrun for five-eighths, came thru on the inside entering the homestretch, and finished stoutly. PRAIRIE DOG, racing on the outside, made a weak bid when straightened away in the stretch, then maintained an even pace to the end.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Three year olds and up. Allowance. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25; $10 to groom of winner.

Winner trained by L. V. Bellew Jr. Went to post at 4:28½. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

O PLAY, away slower than usual and trailing her field to the turn, rallied strongly when placed to pressure, entered contention in the last quarter of a mile, then, finishing resolutely, was up in the last strides. CONSCRIPT, taken under light restraint after getting into stride and rated close up, responded to intermittent punishment in the last three-sixteenths and just missed. DOUBLRAB, setting a fast pace after overhauling ANNIE ALONE, was shaken up briskly in the last eighth after holding a clear advantage but gave way suddenly inside the last sixteenth.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and an eighth. Three year olds and up. Handicap. Purse $5,000 added. Net value to winner, $4,770; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250; to groom of winner, $10.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Shot Put, $14.80 straight, $8.20 place, $4.80 show; Pink Gal, $16.00 place, $9.60 show; Burning Star, $4.80 show. Winner trained by D. McEachern. Went to post at 5:00½. At post ½ minute. Start good. Won driving, place same.

SHOT PUT, tardy at the beginning and permitted time to get into racing stride, swung to the outside when bettering his position, closed in on the leaders willingly to reach a contending position rounding the final curve, continued strongly under stout pressure, and wore PINK GAL down in the last sixteenth. He was worked out an additional mile. PINK GAL steadied within striking distance of the leaders, went up fast rounding the last turn, was urged hard to gain the lead, then held on stubbornly under punishment. BURNING STAR, racing kindly, fell back nearing the last bend, then rallying to punishment came with a rush in the drive.

ALSPUR, under mild urging while following prominently, went to COLONEL JOE stoutly entering the homestretch then finishing gamely under punishment when assuming the lead in the last eighth, came away under vigorous handling at the close. COLONEL JOE, in hand for the first three-quarters, was sent into the lead with a rush after eight furlongs, but weakened under severe punishment in the final straightaway. CRUCIBENNA, sluggish for the first mile, responded gamely in the late stages and was best of the others.

ESSJAYTEE, avoiding crowding at the first turn, was taken to the outside when straightened on the backstretch, reached contention without effort, then, overhauling DUCK STANS, drew out steadily. DUCK STANS hustled along from the start, went up between horses to gain the lead, saved ground, but was no match for the winner when caught. VALDINA LEO rushed hard to the first turn and, under stout urging to hold the lead, gave way nearing the final bend, but, holding on gamely, outstayed CATCHEM.

DUCK HUNTERS! RESERVE THOSE BLINDS AT ONCE

Demand to Exceed Supply on Opening Day.

BY BOB BECKER.

If a hunter is planning on visiting the Illinois river [or other popular duck hunting areas] on opening day he'd better get busy at once on a reservation for a blind, decoys, and a boat or he may miss out on the fun.

Duck hunters in the middle west already have reserved blinds for the opening of the 1941 waterfowl season, which gets under way on Oct. 1 in the northern tier of states and Oct. 16 in the central zone, which includes Illinois and the famous Illinois river marshes.

Big Demand for Blinds.

We were reminded of the big demand for hunting accommodations on the opening day when the owner of a large marsh near Lacon reported to us as early as Sept. 3 that he had every blind in his place already sold out. Not even standing room left, he said. But in this and other open marshes where one may rent blinds and decoys for a daily fee, there should be plenty of room for shooters after the opening day. Our preliminary survey of hunting spots along the river shows that prices for blinds, decoys, and boats will be about the same as last year.

Interesting reports are coming from the observers who have been flying over the Canadian marshes to make rough surveys of the waterfowl on them. Ducks Unlimited, the organization of sportsmen that operates thru the voluntary contributions from American sportsmen who are interested in growing more waterfowl, sends out thousands of men to check up on the duck crop. This year there are about 2,000 of these investigators.

2,000 Men Survey Marshes.

So far reports from these 2,000 [they've been in the farmland of the western duck country] show good duck numbers in several localities, substantial gains in Alberta, and a big increase in duck population in Manitoba. Just how many more ducks will be on the wing this fall will be determined by Ducks Unlimited's airplane survey of the great northland, where the bulk of North America's waterfowl population is produced.

The census survey party reached The Pas recently on the first leg of this airplane flight—the one that really tells a story to the duck hunters.

Patsy Records Best Time in Gas Buoy Race

Southern Cross, Commodore Robert Benedict Jr.'s 56 foot cruising yawl, and Patsy, Lawrence J. [Buddy] Bates' 43 foot racing yawl, were the major winners of the Jackson Park Yacht club's second Calumet Gas Buoy race of the season yesterday. The Southern Cross covered the nine mile triangular course in 1 hour, 26 minutes, 45 seconds; Patsy's elapsed time was 1:29:35, corrected to 1:24:03.

Moore Nears Retirement.

All boats completed the course. It was one of the last races to be conducted by Race Committee Chairman William Moore, who is retiring at the end of the season after 25 years of yacht race judging.

The Jackson Park Motor Boat club's annual speed boat and cruiser race, postponed after last Sunday's rouh weather, will be held today starting at 1:30 p. m. off 56th street. Summaries:

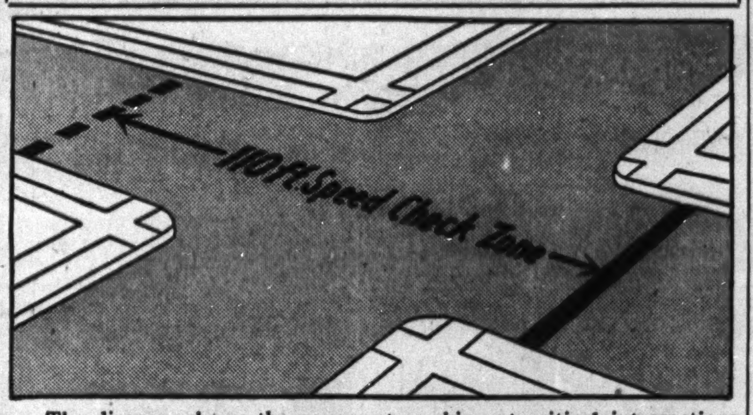
MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

Fort Wayne Clocks Crossing Speeds



The diagram shows the pavement marking at critical intersections where Fort Wayne, Ind., motorcycle police click stop watches to check the pace of automobiles. The markings are in black and white paint.

TRAFFIC SURVEY MAY HELP BREAK MOTORING SNARL

BY HAL FOUST.

Last week's traffic survey in Illinois and Indiana's Calumet area, the most comprehensive in history, is expected to establish and to measure the needs of motor transportation. It will serve as a guide for improvements in regulations and in construction, including superhighways.

The field notes on 4,000,000 automobile trips were compiled in one day by 9,000 observers. The analysis by the Cook county and the Illinois highway departments will require several weeks.

"The study," said Maj. George A. Quinlan, Cook county highway superintendent, "will be invaluable in determining locations for superhighways in Chicago. We'll learn where such construction would perform the greatest service to the greatest number of motorists.

To Solve Toll Problems.

"If the superhighways are to be built as toll facilities, we'll learn whether it's worth the dime tariff to avoid the delays of travel over the present pavements. We'll learn how many motorists would get more than a dime's worth of benefit from using the superhighway. We'll learn whether the number of prospective dimes is adequate to cover construction, financing and maintenance costs.

"We'll have a measure of the intolerable congestion on the west side during rush hours. We'll learn whence this traffic originates and whither it is bound and how it can best be served.

"We'll find out how much of the traffic on the Outer drive is detoured miles from a direct route because there is no serviceable direct route for its trips. On the north side, we'll learn of mileage that would be eliminated by a northwest superhighway for the thousands of trips between the loop and the northwest side, relieving congestion on east and west streets as well as on the lake front. On the south side, we'll weigh the barrier to travel between Indiana and Jackson park.

One Way Traffic Relief.

"I expect the analysis to show locations where one way operation of parallel streets could afford appreciable relief promptly. Superhighways will require years for completion. I also expect the analysis to show locations where parking restrictions are needed to ease travel difficulties.

"The one-way principle, with its inherent advantages of greater carrying capacity with reduced hazards, might be favored not only for certain city streets but also for certain rural highways at least on occasions. The homeward rush on week-ends of dense recreational travel might be given exclusive use of certain two lane pavements and might be given three lanes of certain four lane pavements. The light countermovement might be detoured.

"On the rural system I think we'll find that the four lane pavements have not been extended far enough from Chicago. Congestion occurs 30, 40 or 50 miles from the loop where main highways are only two lanes wide.

Find Rural Bottlenecks.

"The survey also will point out rural bottlenecks that might be eased by parking restrictions, especially where important highways traverse village Main streets."

The Cook county highway department is analyzing the figures for a five county metropolitan area. The Illinois highway department is analyzing data from outside this area. Its observation posts were located to give special attention to traffic patterns into and around large cities. The Indiana highway department simultaneously surveyed traffic in the Calumet industrial area.

FT .WAYNE POLICE USE WATCHES TO CHECK DRIVERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 13.—City motorcycle police are using stop watches to time the speed of automobiles crossing certain intersections. Intersections selected for this enforcement effort are those with bad accident records. They are distinctively and conspicuously marked with painted black and white stripes on the pavement.

"It's not a speed trap because drivers are amply warned of the speed check zones," said Police Lieutenant Custer A. Dunifon, head of the traffic division. "We want the drivers to glance at their speedometers when they see the painted stripes on approaching one of these intersections. We are trying to maintain Fort Wayne's record as the safest city in Indiana."

Appointment of William P. Winslow, for three years manager of the Pontiac zone in Pontiac, Mich., as manager of the Chicago zone is announced by D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager for the Pontiac division of the General Motors corporation. Winslow succeeds Clyde G. Riley, who resigned as Chicago manager to become a Pontiac dealer on the west coast. Winslow joined General Motors in 1924 and 10 years later became assistant zone manager for Pontiac in St. Louis.

A headlight that folds completely out of sight in the daylight, leaving smooth and unbroken fender lines, will be a feature of the 1942 De Soto cars, comments L. G. Peed, vice president of the De Soto division of the Chrysler corporation. The lights are recessed into the front fenders. They are controled by a lever just beneath the instrument board.

The 1942 Chevrolets will be equipped with cast iron pistons as they have since the car was brought out in 1912, says J. M. Crawford, chief engineer for the company. In the last 21 years the company has manufactured more than 85,000,000 pistons of this type. Crawford said that the alloy iron used in the Chevrolet pistons was selected after extensive tests for maximum hardness and strength.

LOW COST ROADS; OIL TREATED, ARE A MOTORING AID

But Narrow WPA Bridge Spoils This One.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 11 [By mail].—A survey tour in the Tribune road car, following recent heavy rains, found that the extended mileage of low cost, oil treated, secondary roads in Sangamon county do indeed perform all-weather service. But a mishap probably prejudices this report of the findings.

Ray V. Tilley, county highway superintendent, has developed a 20 foot, oil stabilized road with a seal coat of buckshot gravel or stone chips bound with light asphalt, costing approximately $7,500 a mile including culverts but not bridges. It appears to serve well in locations similar to those on which the state highway department, with exacting specification prescribed by the United States bureau of public roads, has been spending almost three times as much per mile for bituminous macadam.

Economical for Farmers.

Townships in Sangamon county, thru black, muck, and clay flats, are giving farmers an all-weather, narrow oil road at a cost of $120 a mile. Some of them carry as much traffic as lightly traveled state highways with political sponsorship that cost $30,000 or more a mile to build and require more than $120 a year for maintenance and amortization.

We were completing the survey, about 9 p. m., approaching Curran, southwest of here, prepared to write glowing compliments to the county and township road builders of Sangamon county. At the crest of a small hill, doing about 35 miles an hour on a narrow township road, the headlights picked up the white concrete of a new, small bridge, a WPA project.

Some Poison Ivy, Too.

There were no warning signs, no lights, but we touched the brakes just to be cautious. The wheels slid. Wet clay had been tracked onto the oil roadway. We slid into a slushy new fill, lacking surface treatment, on the approach to the bridge. We were stuck.

An armload of freshly cut weeds on the right of way failed to furnish enough traction for the rear wheels to pull. A farmer with a tractor pulled us the necessary 10 feet for $2. And now we've discovered that the weeds included some poison ivy.

Florida Relents: Dead Men Need Not Pay These Debts

At every session of the Florida legislature for more than a decade, farmer members have blocked efforts to remove roaming cattle from the highways, bane of winter travelers. This year the rustic legislators relented a bit. Under the new law, the owner of the animal can't collect damages, if the driver of the car is killed in the collision.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

TRUCK DRIVERS, BEWARE.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Division street parkway, from Sacramento to Kedzie avenue, has become a policeman's paradise as a truck "trap." Having driven this stretch for several years between 5 and 5:30 o'clock, I have seen a policeman sneak out from the bushes, cross the parkway and stop a truck for driving this short distance, less than a quarter of a mile, almost every evening.

Most of these trucks belong to vegetable peddlers and small owners who can't afford to pay fines just to give these park policemen something to do. Do they get commission on every ticket they write? Why aren't signs posted at either end prohibiting trucks? They must necessarily travel either Grand avenue on the south or North avenue on the north of Humboldt park to avoid this trap.

I hope you print this to warn those who haven't yet had the pleasant experience of "pulling over to the curb." And I don't own a truck either—and I'm a woman. E. M. S.

NIGHT DRIVING.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Your article on night driving is, in itself, a lesson and a very good one at that.

Labor day week-end I drove to Detroit. The trip was on U. S. 112. The traffic was sparse. Drivers simply refused to dim their lights. I have found a method of curing this temporary blindness.

When approaching, dim my lights as the front fender is even with the other fellow's car's rear fender, flash on the bright driving lights. I've found it works. Would you care to try it?

FRANK MATERNO.

ON NARROW STREETS.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—A suggested remedy for traffic congestion on Chicago's narrow streets:

Millions of dollars have been spent widening streets, but there are still hundreds of streets in all neighborhoods where it is the next thing to impossible to drive thru, due to cars parked on both sides. Driving lanes could be cleared if the tree banks were used for parking. This gives a space of 10 to 12 feet on both sides of the street which could be used for parking at a comparatively small cost. The city could condemn this space, build one foot wide concrete runways, cut curb away at these runways, and have either angle or straight parking.

I refer to such streets as Wilson, Leland, Kenmore, Winthrop, and Argyle on the north side and similar conditions elsewhere in the city. This should step up traffic considerably and also might relieve some of the heavy boulevard travel during the rush hours. C. B. FARNAU.

KEEP TO RIGHT.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Thanks for a fine and long needed article on headlight courtesy. I have never written a letter to any newspaper or any person connected with one before, but this particular article seemed so much to the point, and suited my own thoughts so well that I thought you should know some one appreciated it.

I have been following all of your articles for several years, and have long admired your judgment. That is, every reference you have given to a place that I know personally has been correct and fair, so I must suppose that you are as accurate and just when beyond my ken.

So let's have more safe driving articles. How about hitting the road hogs who refuse to keep to the right on such roads as the Northwest highway [U. S. 14], Rand road [U. S. 12], and North avenue?

EARLE D. HALEY JR.

AT OAK ST. AND LAKE SHORE.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Why not allow continuous auto traffic on the two east lanes of the four lane drive going north from the Drake hotel for all day? Four small lights could be suspended from a cable stretched across the drive, two lights connected to the right standard stop light, showing always green, the other two connected to left stop light standard operating as usual. The point in the middle of the right lane where the Michigan avenue traffic turns north could be cut 25 feet, which would allow cars to make a longer turn and not get in right half of the north bound lanes.

The same arrangement could be made at Division street. G. M. DUNLAP.

HAWAIIANS NEAR PEAK CONDITION; END DRILL TODAY

Coaches Prepare to Reduce Chicago Squad to 20.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The amateur boxing representatives of Hawaii will end boxing drills in Catholic Youth organization center this afternoon for an intersectional match with Chicago CYO color bearers in Soldiers' field Wednesday night. Jackie Wright, coach of the visiting team, made that announcement after each of the 10 boys went four rounds yesterday. He said the Hawaiians were within reach of fighting weight and would hang up the big gloves after today's workout.

The Hawaiians will attend 8 o'clock mass at St. Andrew's church, Paulina and Addison streets, this morning. The most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago and founder and director of the CYO, will say the mass. Thomas O'Connell, boxing director of the organization, will escort the boys after lunch to Wrigley field, where they will watch the first game of a double header between the Cubs and the Boston Braves. They will return to the gymnasium for final sparring sessions at 4 o'clock.

Weed Out 3 Chicagoans.

About the same time 57 candidates for places on the Chicago team will have finished training in their camp at Palos park. After the drill Coach Paddy Kane and his assistants, Dick Fitzpatrick and Lew Radzienda, will order all except 20 of the boxers to return to their homes. Only half the number remaining will be named to the squad. Six of the others will appear in preliminary matches in the lake front arena Wednesday against out of town competition.

Altho Coach Kane predicts his protéges will repeat its victory of last year over the Hawaiians, observers of the daily workouts of the invaders since their arrival last Tuesday are of the opinion that the Chicago team may be defeated this time.

Inamine a Veteran at 19.

Every one on the visiting team, from Paul Inamine, flyweight, to Pane Meatoga, heavyweight, is a capable, experienced fighter. The youngest is Inamine, who is 19, and the oldest, Quintal, who is 26. Inamine, employed as a laborer in a defense factory in Honolulu, has participated in 37 bouts during a three year campaign, winning 33 and losing 4. His victims include Chicago's Harold Dade, whom he beat last year.

Quintal, born in Honolulu and the only southpaw on the squad, has been fighting since 1932. In that span, he has engaged in approximately 60 contests. Ray, who is a hodcarrier in his homeland, won the majority of them.

A Pearl Harbor Welder.

Henry Oshiro, a welder at the Pearl Harbor naval base and 1941 Territorial bantamweight champion, is 20 years old. Richard Chinen, who conquered Al Noto in Chicago last year and is competing as a bantamweight, is 22 years old, as are Willie Minn and Frank Fernandez, lightweight contestants. Chinen is a house painter, and Minn is employed in the United States engineering department in Honolulu. Fernandez, this year's 135 pound Territorial title holder, is kept busy doing odd jobs in Wailuku on the Isle of Maui.

Timothy Cruz, middleweight, defeated only three times in 20 appearances in three years, and Meatoga, 205 pounds, who has lost just one decision in 22 starts in two and one-half years, each is 23 years of age. Dan Fernandez, welterweight, also employed at Pearl Harbor, and Charles Sanico, featherweight, an electrician's helper in Honolulu, each is 24. Dan, who is team co-captain with his brother Frank, hasn't lost a match since beaten by Savior Canadeo a year ago.

Sanford Leads Polo Pelicans to 9-7 Victory

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP).—Laddie Sanford's Pelicans galloped into the semi-finals of the national open polo tournament today by whipping Cecil Smith's Texas four, 9 to 7. This was the only first round game of the tournament and by winning, the Pelicans will meet Aknusti Tuesday. The winner of that game and the winner of tomorrow's semi-final between Westbury and Gulf Stream will meet a week from tomorrow in the final.

Sanford pushed thru five goals today. His team was finely balanced with Winston Guest, George Oliver, and Cocie Rathborne riding behind him. Guest and Oliver each scored twice, while Rathborne devoted most of his time to protecting the goal posts from the sallies of Smith, the 10 goal star. Smith scored two goals, as did Walter Hayden, subbing for the injured Henry Lewis. Harry Evinger scored three times to lead his club. Lineup:

SOUTH BEND MEN REACH FINAL OF WORLD SOFTBALL

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13 (AP).—The Roanoke Rapids, N. C., Romancos and Bendix Brakes of South Bend, Ind., will meet tomorrow for the men's championship of the Amateur Softball association, while Cleveland will play Tulsa, Okla., for the title in the girls' division.

Five thousand fans who turned out today for the semi-finals in the world tournament saw nearly everything in the softball book, including a no hit pitching performance which wasn't good enough to win. Ed Kizelevich of Elizabeth, N. J., fanned 10, and yielded not a single hit, only to see his team lose a 1 to 0 decision to Roanoke Rapids. In the other men's semi-final, South Bend pounced on three Detroit pitchers for 10 hits and a 7 to 2 victory. Stan Corgan of South Bend gave five hits.

Cleveland, after giving the Toronto, Ont., Sunday morning class two runs in the first, rallied for an easy 7 to 2 triumph in a girls' semi-final contest. In the other, Nina Korgan, leading girls' pitcher of the tournament, whiffed 17 and gave one hit as Tulsa defeated the New Orleans Jax Brewers, 1 to 0, in nine innings.

LINDBLOM LOSES TO PHILLIPS IN LEAGUE OPENER

Lindblom, co-champion with Fenger in the Chicago Public High School league, met disaster in its opening game yesterday when it succumbed to Wendell Phillips, 7 to 6, in Normal park. Phillips scored in the second period on a pass from Ranis to Finney, who galloped six yards to the goal. Davis kicked the point. Lindblom, with one minute to play, also took to the air to score, Petrak pitching to Hilger, who ran 30 yards to score. Rolfe's plunge for the point failed. Lineup:

Cubs Conquer Phils, 5-4, on Walk in 11th

Stringer moved to third on Cavarretta's fly to right, and then Nicholson and Dahlgren were ordered purposely passed to get at Lou Novikoff. The mad Russian, whose previous efforts for the day consisted of one single and three infield taps, could do no better, forcing Dahlgren.

The Phils loaded the bases in the 10th, but to no avail. With one out, Danny Murtaugh singled to left, and was en route to the winning run after Stanley Benjamin's double to left center, but Daniel's feet became entangled at third, and he was forced to remain there, after Cavarretta's quick relay. Passeau fanned Joe Marty, and, after Nick Etten was purposely passed, Dan Litwhiler flied to Cavarretta.

Dahlgren Crashes No. 22.

The Phillies collected three runs in the first 1 2-3 innings off of Vallie Eaves, who faced only nine men before Rescuer Ken Raffensberger appeared. The Cubs tied it with Babe Dahlgren's 22d homer in the second, and two more runs in the third, on Hack's single, a walk by Stringer, and a double by Nicholson. Benjamin's triple and a bad throw by Stringer accounted for the Phils' run in the first. In the second, Litwhiler doubled and scored on Merrill May's single, combined with an error by Catcher Bob Scheffing. Livingston's single brought May home.

In the sixth, Marty singled, moved up on Etten's sacrifice, and, after Litwhiler had been purposely passed, May singled, scoring Marty and sending the Phils ahead, 4 to 3.

ROY WEATHERLY GOES BACK INTO DOGHOUSE AGAIN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—Roy Weatherly, Cleveland Indian center fielder, is back in the dog house. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh disclosed today that he had placed Weatherly under indefinite suspension for failure to hustle in the series with the Washington Senators.

The manager made no mention of a fine, but in the club dressing room it was understood he had assessed the outfielder $100 for loafing on an inside the park home run Thursday and for lax play in yesterday's game. Peckinpaugh also ordered Roy back to Cleveland. This is the second time this season Weatherly has been suspended for failing to hustle.

Weatherly stormed into Cleveland tonight and declared he was thru with the Indians.

"I don't care if I ever play with the Indians again as long as Peckinpaugh is manager," Weatherly declared. "They can take the whole club and dump it in the lake as far as I'm concerned. Peckinpaugh accused me of not hustling. I couldn't figure that one out so I told him what I thought of him."

SPOTTING THE PINS

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

A major event in this week's bowling schedule will be the opening tomorrow night of Ted Lyons' recreation on 71st street at Jeffery avenue and the inaugural matches of Lyons' 16-team major league two nights later. The 32-alley center is one of the city's most ornate. . . . The Hoppers and Purchasers, each with three games won, tied for the lead in the first week of play in the "400" league. The Hoppers' 2,373 series was high for the 16-team circuit.

Twenty-two teams opened the North Shore B'nai B'rith league's new season Monday at Howard Bowl. The organization also plans a women's league of eight teams. . . . Hank Marino, one of bowling's all-time greats, threw the first ball as the Italo-American National Union's league began its second season at Gold Coast Friday night.

Lee Saylor shot 280-720; George Calder, 245-691; Eddie Zajac, 257-657; Joe Puccinelli, 235-658; the National Beers, 3,072, and Gold Coast Budweisers, 3,039 in opening matches of Bowling Lanes' major. Nineteen of the circuit's 60 bowlers fired 600 or better. . . . Helleman's Old Style Lagers meet Bowling Lanes' Da-Lite Movie Screens at Bowling Lanes tonight. . . . Legion recreation's 1,019 game and 2,997 series were high in first night matches of the South End Traveling league. Fred Fikejs rolled high solo with 685. West End recreation won three games.

Classic Bowls Tonight on North Center Lanes.

The Sunday division of the Classic league bowls at 8 o'clock tonight at North Center, 4017 Lincoln avenue. The schedule:

Monarch Beer vs. Ambrosia Beer; Blatz Beer vs. Pabst Blue Ribbon; National Bowling vs. Koenig Brau; Schlitz vs. Ruppert Beer.

Members of Monroe C. Crawford lodge No. 1042, A. F. A. M., have organized a 10-team mixed league which will begin firing Friday night at Bensinger's, 131 South Wabash center. . . . Ray Kopinski, a new member of the Gold Crown team who last week shot high series of 663, will endeavor to continue the pace when the North End Traveling league competes tomorrow night. The schedule, with all matches starting at 7 o'clock:

Pepsi-Colas vs. Keeleys at Kaadland; Samuelsons vs. Schambergers at North Town; Budweisers at DeLuxe recreation; Jolly Jacks vs. Nedlogs at Stack & Ryans'.

Efforts of Chuck Ruzick and Clare Steinke have moved the Universal Automatic Musics into a tie with the Fritzi Scheffs for the Samuelson Major lead. Each team has won five of six games. Ruzick has averaged 217 and Steinke 207. . . . Bill Hargadon of the Budweisers whipped up a 692 series, including a 267 game, and Lloyd Strouse of the Gills a 677 total to lead all individuals in the 18-team Randolph league Thursday. The Buds' 3,097, high team count, gave them three in a row over the None Better Ice Creams. The Mineralites hit 3,042 in taking a set from the Keeley Beers.

Edens Climb Into a Tie with Gills.

The Gills won two games from Chatham Post to break their tie in the Stevenson Major, but the Walter Edens went into a deadlock with the Gills at 8 won and 1 lost on the strength of a sweep over Raymer's Kids. Ad Plunge of the Edens was high with 668. . . . Wally Genter led the Koenig Braus to a two-game triumph over the Century Bondeds in opening matches of Stack & Ryan's Major. Genter's 623 was high series.

Dorothy Miller fired a 653 series, which in most of the league's years would have been high for the season, in Congress Women's Major league. Her new team, Goranson's 20 Alleys, piled up 960,951 and 882 for 2,793, to win all three games from the Budweisers. In the Playdium Major, Mrs. Miller was high with 220-579.

Ted Williams Goes Hitless 2d Straight Day.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 13 (AP).—Boston strengthened its grip on second place in the American league today by defeating the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 2, for their fourth straight victory. The Browns, who had beaten the Red Sox 12 times in 21 games before today, were held to eight hits by Jack Wilson.

STOCKS BREAK UP LONG STALEMATE TO GAIN SLIGHTLY

Psychology of Inflation Reported a Factor.

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—The stock market this week broke a lengthy stalemate and leaders today closed the final session with advances slightly in the majority. There were a few fairly strong spots in the brief proceedings, but plus signs mostly were in minor fractions. Numerous issues were unchanged and minus signs were plentiful at the close. Dealings were sluggish thruout.

Such bidding as cropped up, brokers said, appeared to have been inspired by persistent inflationary psychology and favorable individual business situations. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .1 of a point at 43.5 and showed a net gain of as much on the week.

Earnings Reports Aid Rails.

Earnings statements aided some rails despite the unsettled carrier wage controversy. Farm implements did better as recently soaring commodities developed the belief that agricultural prosperity and labor scarcity would expand demand for machinery. Steels, motors, rubbers, oils, coppers, and merchandising issues were virtually at a standstill.

Belief that a long drawnout war was in prospect stepped up buying in the aircrafts and a few specialties that may benefit from the armament drive.

J. I. Case climbed 3⅛ points to a new 1941 high at 87⅛.

CHICAGO LIST STEADY.

Prices were about steady on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday on transactions totaling 16,000 shares. Standard Dredging common, among volume leaders with 1,650 shares traded, gained ⅛ to 2½, a new high.

Other volume leaders were Aviation corporation, 1,800 shares, up ⅜ to 4¼; Borg Warner, 900 shares, unchanged at 20½; Commonwealth Edison, 850 shares, unchanged at 25½, and Consolidated Oil, 600 shares, unchanged at 6.

PRIORITIES SAP BUSINESS VIGOR AND STIR FIGHT

Lag in Retail Trade Most Pronounced.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Trade and industry rallied only half heartedly last week from the Labor day holiday letdown. Retail business particularly showed a lack of its usual September vigor.

Merchants reporting a lagging tendency in sales said it reflected several influences—manufacturers' difficulties in getting raw materials that are under priority rule, slow deliveries to retailers, the unusually fast pace of consumer buying last month, and a tendency of the recent "scare" buying to subside.

The retarding effect of delayed deliveries and scarcities of some kinds of merchandise was even more pronounced in the wholesale and manufacturing industries than in retailing, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

Priorities Pinch Spreads.

The mercantile agency reported that "an increasing number of nonarmament lines felt the pinch of priorities" and declared that "small producers were usually hardest hit." It said also that few wholesalers were able to fill all orders received.

The effects of the priority program on retail and wholesale trade represented only one phase of an acute raw material problem that led more than 1,000 mayors, small business men, and trade and labor representatives from 11 midwest states to gather in Chicago late in the week in an effort to stave off "priority ruin."

Earlier in the week several thousand small business men met in Chicago to talk over priority problems.

Emphasis was placed on the necessity of spreading armament contracts into more small plants and on easing priority regulations as a way out of the raw material pinch that already has closed many factories.

Claim Federal "Hoarding."

The government was accused of earmarking materials that will not be needed for two years or more in some cases.

Growing protests and warnings concerning the plight of businesses that cannot get materials to keep factories going and men at work led the Supply Priorities and Allocations board to order a complete survey of military and civilian requirements.

Announced along with the decision to make the survey was the granting to Leon Henderson, price administrator, of power to decide how much the automobile industry and several other industries shall produce.

The SPAB froze civilian goods factory capacity at present levels by forbidding expansion of such plants.

Cost of Living Mounts.

Meantime, as new statistics disclosed that food costs went up 1.3 per cent in August and that living costs in general rose 0.06 per cent, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. warned that a price inflation already is well advanced and declared drastic action is needed to prevent its spread. He urged higher taxes, price controls, release of government owned farm commodities into the market and a larger flow of Canadian wheat into this country.

Morgenthau's proposal to sell farm surpluses to keep prices from climbing attracted attention because it followed Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard's speech promising farmers that prices would be kept high if the farmers would increase output.

Another development of the week was a series of rebuffs received by Harold Ickes, federal oil coördinator, as a result of his efforts to curtail gasoline consumption in eastern states. The senate committee which investigated the asserted "shortage" of gasoline reported that no shortage exists and recommended that restrictions be removed.

La Guardia Disapproves.

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York disapproved Ickes' oil station "curfew," and priority officials refused to release steel for a pipe line which Ickes had urged.

The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity, now limited to three components—steel and electric power production and railroad freight loadings—moved a shade higher for its first gain in six week. It follows:

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Steel mill act.	136.2	135.5	123.4
Elec pow prod.	149.0	148.2	129.0
Total carloadings	87.5	88.0	75.0

The index is based on 1929-'30 figures as 100.

Fight to Retain World Trade, British Urged

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The British government's pledge to the United States not to use lend-lease materials to foster Britain's export trade in competition with American exporters created little excitement in financial circles this week. Its effect on the market was negligible. At the same time, both in the London and provincial press, the government was urged to see to it that despite the prospective curtailment of exports Britain should organize its overseas trade so as to retain its valuable markets abroad.

The authoritative Financial Times, commenting on the white paper outlining the principles governing the distribution of lend-lease materials, described it as "less revolutionary than it sounds." In principle, says the writer, it is merely an "extension of the selective control which the British government has been practicing for a good many months" and does not imply that this country's export trade "has lost its vital character."

Refers to Sea Meeting.

Stressing that "collaboration in the economic field was the outstanding point in the recent Churchill-Roosevelt declaration, the Financial Times declares:

"Meanwhile, our own government must pay all possible regard in framing the export policy, not only to the specialized nature of the business, but to the fact that markets once lost are not easily regained."

Even the London Times said that the white paper "merely crystalizes the situation toward which the United Kingdom export policy was, in any case, rapidly moving because of the pressing demands on man power for the production of the maximum output of munitions."

Another suggestion for settling any disputes over the distribution of lend-lease materials was advanced by the Liverpool Post. Editorially the paper states, "Perhaps only the United States' entry into the war would be the complete way out of the difficulty, for it would make the conditions equal in both countries."

Rush to Buy Securities.

The London stock markets this week had the biggest rush in business in any one week in the last three years. The Financial News' ordinary [common] stock index is now back at 78.9—the highest point since March 13, 1940, before the Germans broke thru the Maginot line.

The stock market has been firm since Germany's attack on Russia and the upswing was further encouraged by President Roosevelt's speech of Thursday night, but the latest rush to buy is attributed by some competent observers to the distribution of income tax demand notes thruout the country this week.

The staggering amounts shown in the income tax assessments, they say, are acting as an incentive to speculation, since no tax is payable on capital profits. Hence the rush to buy anything which promises to increase in value.

METAL PRODUCTS FIRM FACES NEW CUTS IN OUTPUT

Interstate Metal Products company, with plants in Chicago and Michigan City, Ind., faces further curtailment of operations because of shortages of sheet steel, formaldehyde, cartons, and chromium, L. S. Skobel, president, said yesterday.

For two and a half years, until recently, the company operated on a double shift of eight hours each. Three weeks ago, because of the growing scarcity of materials, the company was forced to reduce operations to a single shift to spread the work, Skobel said.

"We do not have sufficient sheet steel and other requirements to complete orders for metal cabinets and furniture scheduled for delivery during the rest of the year," he added. "We have about 700 workmen and we must have the steel to keep them employed."

COAL CONCERNS DEFY HENDERSON ON ORDER TO RESCIND PRICE HIKE

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 13 (AP).—Eight major anthracite producers sent word to Price Administrator Leon Henderson today that they "cannot accede" to his order canceling a 15 cent a ton increase scheduled to become effective Monday.

Walter G. Merritt, counsel for the companies which produce more than 60 per cent of the nation's hard coal used mostly for heating homes, said Henderson's order intended to freeze prices at Aug. 15 levels indicated he "prejudged the situation."

"Otherwise," Merritt wrote the price administrator, "there could be no doubt in your mind that the record fully supports the contention of both operators and mine workers that prices heretofore announced, effective Sept. 15, are necessary to sustain the present wage structure and to reduce the operating deficits so prevalent in the industry."

Reach Accord in Strike Tying Up Arms Jobs

A tentative agreement halting the strike at the Foote Brothers Gear and Machine corporation plant, 4545 South Western avenue, was reached last night after an all day parley. Details of the agreement were not disclosed but it will be presented for ratification this morning to the 1,000 striking members of the CIO United Electrical and Machine Workers' union.

If the workers agree to the terms, the plant will be opened tomorrow to allow the first shift of workers to resume work on more than eight million dollars in defense orders. The strike, called Friday night, shut down the manufacture of vital airplane engine gears.

Closed Shop Sought.

Main point of difference between the union and the company, it was reported, was a demand for a closed shop.

Officials of the Hillman food stores, where a strike was called Friday night by the newly chartered CIO Grocery and Produce Employés' union, denied union claims that 1,000 employés had left their jobs. They declared the actual number of strikers was little more than 100, most of whom were acting as pickets at each of the seven stores and a warehouse in Chicago and a store in Oak Park.

Deal with AFL Union.

"We are operating 100 per cent," one of the officials said. "The CIO does not have a majority here and we are dealing with the AFL union, the Food Handlers' and Distributors' local, which does have a majority."

A conference was held yesterday in Mayor Kelly's office between officials of three stockyards packing plants and officials of the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing committee, which has been on strike because the companies refused to rehire eight alleged radical leaders of a previous strike which was admittedly illegal. No settlement was reached.

RULE OF FOREIGN SECURITY SALES IN U. S. TIGHTENED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—The treasury ruled today that holders of securities affected by its freezing orders could not redeem them unless given a clearance certificate by a federal reserve bank.

"A further step to prevent the sale in this country of securities which have been looted abroad" was the treasury's official description of its action.

Persons acquiring securities beginning Monday, the treasury said, "may experience considerable difficulty" in obtaining clearance certificates. They will be required to trace the ownership of their securities since April 8, 1940, when the first freezing orders were issued.

Treasury officials said that the dollar value of securities involved was "incalculable," altho it is known to run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

FEDERAL POWER UNDER NEW BILL HELD LIMITLESS

Price Control Perils in Measure Told.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association notified its members yesterday that it had been advised by legal counsel that price control legislation pending in congress would give the government full control over newspapers, labor, agriculture, and all other lines of activity.

The association's general counsel submitted to James L. Donnelly, executive vice president, an opinion on the powers provided in the price control bill [House Resolution 5479].

Provisions in the bill designed to protect agriculture, newspapers and labor from the exercise of the powers contained in the measure fail to provide such protection, the counsel said.

Cite Scope of Control.

"All the powers in the bill apply to newspapers and other publications, except only that no license may be required as a condition of selling or distributing newspapers, periodicals, books or other written material," the opinion said.

"This specific limited exclusion strengthens the bill with respect to all other powers over newspapers, publications, etc. Under the bill, with respect to newspapers and other publications there would be:

"1. The power to fix ceilings on the price of everything that goes into them, advertising, paper and ink, and the price of the publication itself.

"2. The power to regulate or prohibit any 'practices,' including editorial and advertising practices.

"3. The power to buy and sell everything the newspaper or periodical is interested in, including the newspapers themselves.

"4. The power to require licenses, and to suspend or revoke licenses, covering everything involved in the newspaper business, including transportation, communications, paper, ink, labor, machinery, materials, and advertising, excepting only that no license may be required 'as a condition of selling or distributing.'"

Full Power Granted.

After citing similar ways in which agriculture and labor would be subject to control, the opinion said:

"Certainly the full power of control over all these businesses and occupations is included in this bill, just as is the power of control over every other industry, business, occupation, or profession.

"There is such an excess of power in the bill as a whole that the limitations with respect to agriculture, labor, and newspapers and other publications are futile and ineffective so far as concerns their subjugation to full power of control."

SOY BEANS FALL, BUT REGAIN BIG PART OF LOSSES

Soy beans broke as much as 6¾ cents a bushel at one time yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, the result of liquidation and profit taking. The May option touched $1.88, or 14 cents under the top price of Friday. The selling movement ran its course late in the session and a rally cut losses to 1⅝ to 2½ cents.

Action of the grain markets was a reflection of that in soy beans. Wheat finished ⅜ to ⅝ cent lower. Corn, after a break of about 1 cent, rallied to finish unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Oats were unchanged to ⅜ cent lower, and rye was unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Lard declined 2½ to 5 cents per hundred pounds.

Trading in soy beans was not as large as recently and the market was rather easily influenced by relatively small buying or selling orders. Prices fluctuated ¼ to ½ cent between trades at times.

War Seekers Found in Bank Speaker List

The 5,000 bankers who will meet in Chicago Sept. 29 to Oct. 2 for the annual convention of the American Bankers' association will be addressed by an imposing list of interventionist speakers, Chicago and middle western bankers learned yesterday after studying the program.

P. D. Houston.

Rumblings of criticism from midwestern members of the association were heard as preparations for the nation-wide gathering neared the final stage. Commenting on the program as announced by P. D. Houston, southerner, head of the American National bank of Nashville, Tenn., and president of the association, one banker said:

"It looks as if Mr. Houston has arranged the convention with the purpose of drumming up sentiment for administration foreign policy. I don't like it. It makes me so mad I don't even like to talk about it."

"Shower of Foreign Policy."

An Indianapolis banker, observing that one of the speakers is to be Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, charged that Houston "has set up the general program so as to give us a drenching in foreign policy as conceived by the Washington administration." Other bankers expressed similar views.

Among other principal speakers will be Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., and Douglas Miller, author of "You Can't Do Business with Hitler." Miller's anti-Nazi leanings were emphasized by one of the A. B. A.'s announcements concerning the convention program.

Becomes Anti-Nazi Writer.

"Miller, now a member of the faculty of the University of Denver, was in the commercial foreign service of the government for 18 years, and was commercial attaché at Berlin from 1925 to 1939," said the A. B. A. "Since his resignation in 1939 he has become one of the foremost anti-Nazi writers and lecturers. Miller's address will play a part in carrying out the dual convention theme of 'National Defense' and 'Hemispheric Solidarity.'"

The convention program will consist of two general sessions, the annual meetings of the four divisions of the association, and a series of round table conferences.

RADIO COMPANY ORDERS FACTORY FOR ARMS WORK

Continental Radio and Television corporation, maker of record changers, phonograph combinations and radios, 3800 Cortland street, has ordered a new factory to be built for it in the Montrose manufacturing district. It will be used solely for the manufacture of radio equipment under government contract.

The new plant, to contain approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space, and to cost with machinery about $250,000, will be erected at 4150 North Knox avenue. It will be a one story structure, to be completed some time in November.

Continental Radio started business in 1934 with six employés. This has been increased to 850 at present, with the probability of the roster reaching 1,400 under impetus of arms orders.

Negotiations for purchase of the plant were concluded by H. Perry Phelps, vice president and general manager of Clearing Industrial District, Inc., owner of the Montrose area, and R. D. Siragusa, president of Continental.

★SMALL BUSINESS★ MAN'S DEPARTMENT

This department is prepared to help the small business man who is seeking information on priorities, substitute materials, and related subjects. Inquiries should be directed to the Small Business Man's department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. All inquiries will be given careful attention. Letters on subjects of broad interest will be published and commented upon.

OFF-THE-SHELF.

Manufacturers and distributors of goods which are sold from stock have asked the Small Business Man's department whether the priorities division of the Office of Production Management has any solution of their problem of obtaining scarce materials to keep inventories replenished.

Altho the defense supplies rating plan has been in effect four months, there are apparently many manufacturers and distributors of goods going into armament and lend-lease channels who are not aware of the possible application of the plan to their problem of obtaining supplies.

Outline Aims of Plan.

The plan applies directly to producers who find it difficult or impossible to obtain essential materials used in making supplies officially defined as follows:

Materials, parts, or assemblies entering directly or indirectly at any stage into producing material for delivery under contracts or orders [1] placed by the army and navy, [2] for the defense of Great Britian, [3] for the government of any other country whose defense is deemed vital to the defense of the United States, [4] for the coast guard, maritime commission, coast and geodetic survey, Panama canal, National Advisory committee on Aeronautics, and the Civil Aeronautics administration, [5] carrying a preference rating from A-1-A thru A-10, or [6] for any parts used in the manufacture of these goods.

Report on Form PD-25.

To qualify under the rating plan, the manufacturer should prepare in triplicate form PD-25 [report of requirement of scarce materials] and mail it to Joseph L. Overlock, Priorities Division, Office of Production Management, Washington, D. C. The form will be analyzed by a special section of the division and, approved or modified, the office will issue a defense supplies rating order and assign a preference rating of A-10 to deliveries of the amounts of the materials covered.

Upon receipt of the preference rating order, the manufacturer must sign an acceptance and send it to the priorities division. He must execute additional copies of his order for his suppliers.

This is the way the amounts of materials to which the A-10 rating applies are determined:

Each quarter the manufacturer determines from an analysis of his records for the preceding quarter the percentage of sales which went into designated defense uses. He accomplishes this by identifying the defense orders thru the preference ratings attached to them or by customer's certificates showing what part of their business went into defense.

Figures Needed Materials.

Then, from the production schedule for the current quarter, he determines the amount of scarce materials needed for his total requirements. He gets the A-10 preference rating on that percentage of his total needs for the current quarter which was indicated as going into defense in the preceding quarter.

The rating applies to deliveries of specific quantities of designated materials and it may be extended by the manufacturer to his supplier, who, in turn, can extend it further. The manufacturer must use the materials so obtained only for filling defense orders, must not use other ratings to obtain the same materials for the same output, and must not schedule deliveries sooner than necessary.

The application of the rating plan to distributors occurs when the manufacturer distributes his output thru wholesalers, jobbers or dealers. The producer necessarily depends on these distributors for the data necessary to comply with the priorities requirements.

Assured Continuous Supply.

Because the plan was designed to help the manufacturer maintain his stock for defense orders, the distributor is assured [to the extent the plan is successful] of a continuous supply of the product to fill defense requirements.

To participate in the program the distributor must ask his customers for preference rating certificates or orders or a customer's certificate stating the goods were for defense supplies. With his sales thus identified, the distributor prepares his monthly report to his suppliers on form PD-25c [revised], which is known as the customer's certificate of defense requirements. These records must be retained for possible examination by a field inspector of the priorities division.

CHICAGO COMPANIES GET 3½ MILLIONS IN WEEK'S ARMS AWARDS

Sixty-nine Chicago area companies received $3,490,000 in rearmament contracts last week, the Chicago Association of Commerce announced yesterday. This increased the area's volume of awards thus far in the program to $912,878,000.

Manufacturers thruout Illinois, including Chicago, received contracts totaling $10,990,594 last week.

New contracts announced by the war department for Chicago companies included:

Dreis & Krump Manufacturing company, press brakes, $43,576; Guiberson Diesel Engine company, engines, $39,873; Lingberg Engineering company, furnaces, $8,270, Diamond T. Motor Car company, major assemblies, $73,224, and Charles F. Clark, Inc., shoe pacs, $91,592.

Chicago and Pittsburgh Steel Rates Fall Slightly

Steel production in the Chicago and Pittsburgh districts will decline slightly this week. Chicago area output was scheduled at 100.1 per cent of rated capacity, compared with 100.9 per cent last week and 100.5 per cent four weeks ago. Pittsburgh mills will start the week at 99 per cent, 1½ per cent under last Monday. Production in the Birmingham, Ala., and Youngstown, O., districts will remain unchanged at 95 and 98 per cent, respectively.

MAYOR ORDERS DRIVE TO AVERT PRIORITIES RUIN

Plans Board to Save Small City Plants.

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that he will appoint an industrial commission of representative manufacturing executives to supervise a city-wide campaign in behalf of small manufacturers, threatened with disaster because of priorities.

The commission's functions, he said, will be to "stimulate formation of pools for obtaining defense contracts," gather additional information on available plant facilities and man-power and to use its influence in obtaining a proper distribution of surplus materials.

To speed the campaign Mayor Kelly said he will ask the Chicago Plan commission to make available 335 canvassers, at work on the land use survey, to gather information for the new commission.

Act as Clearing House.

The commission, he said, also is to act as a clearing house for manufacturers' problems, recommend solutions and serve as a liaison group between Chicago manufacturers and the federal government.

"It is imperative that something be done—and done quickly—to integrate these small manufacturers for the purpose of obtaining more contracts for rearmament work," the mayor asserted.

"Conditions of the small manufacturers, especially in the Chicago area, are obviously critical."

Fears Flight of Labor.

He said the "cream of skilled workmen in Chicago is rapidly being skimmed off" and declared this flight of skilled labor "presents a serious problem."

Illinois ranks third among the states industrially, yet in dollar value of rearmament orders is 15th on the list, Mayor Kelly said.

"If small manufacturing is allowed to fall to pieces," he declared, "this automatically places the neighborhoods themselves in danger of disintegration. It is a problem that demands the deep concern of every public official and every business man."

OPEN CLEARING HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP).—A clearing house designed to coördinate the potential production of thousands of small manufacturers in the United States in an effort to break a bottleneck in exports to Latin America will be opened Monday by the department of commerce.

The new system, carrying the approval of Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, is designed to spread out among small manufacturers, whose production is not being utilized by the arms program, an estimated backlog of 97 million dollars' worth of Latin American orders.

This backlog, which may prove to be much larger, was disclosed in a department of commerce survey which also showed that 17,000 small manufacturers were producing articles similar to those imported by Latin America.

Exporters who have placed orders and despaired of getting goods, and manufacturers who have received orders and are unable to fill them will be asked to register with department of commerce offices in their areas. A master file will be maintained here of manufacturers with material available to fill orders.

30 Stocks for Income
. . . with well protected earnings—regardless of—
WAR or PEACE or DEPRESSION!

Today, stable income is one of the most desired and, at the same time, one of the most difficult things to secure in common stocks.

It is relatively easy to select stocks giving substantial dividend returns—yields up to 10% or 15%. But there are comparatively few stocks whose dividends are not going to be affected adversely by rigid priorities . . . the risk of inflation . . . the defense program . . . the possibility of a quick negotiated peace.

- We have literally combed the investment market—searching for those securities which will provide relative STABILITY OF INCOME regardless of PEACE or WAR or DEPRESSION
- The list we have selected is recommended as attractive because it contains the stocks of those companies whose earnings will be stable enough—in good times or bad—to pay substantial dividends.
- There are 25 common and 5 preferred issues—yielding from 5% to 8%—all of them earning their present dividends by a safe margin.

Here's an opportunity for the investor to switch out of weak situations, to get out of securities that are going to be hit by priorities . . . by War . . . by inflation and other causes which, obviously, will syphon off earnings.

Send for this list which will be published in the September 15th Outlook for the Security Markets. You will also receive the next three weekly issues with our compliments.

Building of homes of the better class will suffer most thru priorities. No one is sure just what will happen, but if you are planning a new home for this Fall or next Spring the quicker you make your decision, the less it is liable to cost you.

Our houses were planned months ago. Some of them are completed others will be completed in October, November, and December.

The materials for these houses were contracted for at the time the houses were planned. Were we to commence NOW from scratch, the houses would cost $1,000 to $1,250 more.

So, look at the completed houses, and the plans of the ones under construction TODAY.

DO THIS AND AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

Autumn Coming On.

Sept. 13, 1941.

SUMMER gradually is giving way to autumn on the farm. Evidence of the seasonal change may be seen in every field and woodlot. Some of the leaves of the sumac already are a deep maroon shade, while others are turning brilliant red . . . the first of the gay New England asters are showing their bright purple petals . . . the flowers of Queen Anne's lace are withering to provide evidence of their common name—bird's nest . . . Virginia creeper leaves climbing over the farm fences are turning red . . . goldenrod and the yellow flowers of the compass plants form colorful patches in the fields . . . and the farm workers are doing the fall plowing and making plans to pick the corn.

The shagbark hickory trees tell a story of the passing of summer and the approach of autumn. They are the first of the large trees to drop their summer green for autumn raiment. By looking across the open field at distant woodlots, it's easy to pick out the hickories from the oaks, hawthorns, and other trees because the green foliage of the hickories has faded to an unattractive buff color.

The Birds Fly South.

The birds that have been moving silently thru the woodlots also are reminders that autumn is at hand. Warblers such as the black and white and the magnolia left their northern nesting grounds some time ago and have been passing thru Chicagoland on their migration to warmer countries. The bobolinks, favorite summer residents on the farm, left some time ago. Every year we have wondered if these birds loaf around the north country for a while or hurry toward the southeast coast to cram themselves with food before their long migration to South America.

This year C. E. Holcombe, a bird fan of Zion, Ill., was lucky enough to discover the answer to this question. He found the 1941 autumn assembly ground of the bobolinks in this part of the middle west. It was a short distance west of Winthrop Harbor and about a mile from the Illinois-Wisconsin line. He estimated there were at one time more than 1,000 of these birds feeding in a millet field. It seems likely that the bobolink families which nested on the farm were in that great flock recruited from a considerable area of the middle west.

Mulberry Fruit Is Gone.

The farm's mulberry trees have no more fruit. The robins and other birds enjoyed many a meal by visiting these trees all summer. One of the farm housewives was telling us that she is glad to be rid of the mulberries. Her clothes lines are stretched near a mulberry tree each Monday, and the robins caused her a lot of extra laundry work because while carrying the ripe berries in their beaks they occasionally dropped the fruit on her clean sheets.

Violet, the pet skunk that escaped several weeks ago, evidently has gone for good. No one has seen anything of her, and there is no evidence that she ever has returned to the yard for a free meal. The men have had the food waiting for her inside a live trap, so if she returned to the yard she would have been found inside the cage. An opossum wandered into the yard and fell for the lure of free food inside the cage the other morning.

'GO CHICAGO!' A Story of Men

By LLOYD WENDT

IT WAS near midnight, Sept. 30, 1892. Two men ended an earnest conference in the parlor of a little frame house on what is now Blackstone avenue, Chicago. One stretched wearily, seized his derby, and prepared to go. The other, a squat, intense young man with gimlet eyes and bulging jaw, threw himself onto the sofa.

"Judson," he exclaimed, "I wonder if there will be a single student here tomorrow!"

William Rainey Harper

He didn't wait for Judson's reply. Before it could come, William Rainey Harper, president of the new University of Chicago, consisting so far as visible of two incomplete buildings in a swamp, was fast asleep.

Judson grinned. He knew that Harper would be awake again in ten minutes, fuming thru the house in pursuit of one more last detail to be settled before the first classes at 8:30 in the morning. There were some who insisted Harper never slept at all. They called him a steam engine in pants.

No students! What a fantastic idea! Only the man who force-pumped $4,000,000 out of the oil king, good Baptists, and hard-working Chicagoans to build a new university in a spacious but sticky mudhole would dare envision such titanic humiliation. But Judson knew that Dr. Harper really didn't believe it. He expected students by the hundreds, just as he expected the workmen to finish their jobs weeks ahead of schedule, and he expected the building committee to raise a million dollars right in Chicago in three months, and in competition with the coming world's fair. Why, he had even predicted that the University of Chicago would within ten years eclipse both Harvard and Yale in enrollment!

The story of the University of Chicago—now, in its 50th anniversary year, a tremendous institution spreading a 55-million-dollar plant over 100 acres on the south side of Chicago and its influence thruout the world—is not a story of money, nor of books, nor of teaching equipment. It is a story of men. And first and chief in a brilliant procession of them was that indomitable, relentless visionary, little William Rainey Harper.

It was Harper who wanted a great research university in America in the days when research was mostly a mere avocation for teachers. It was Harper who wanted this university in Chicago. It was Harper primarily who raised the money. It was Harper who planted the first unorthodox seeds that now, under another able and pioneering president, Robert Maynard Hutchins, have flowered into "the Chicago plan," and influence education and scholarship over the world. Thus the University of Chicago, now possessing 900 faculty, 7,500 students, total assets of $125,835,441, and an inestimable record of research accomplishment, celebrates its 50th anniversary, not on the day that it was incorporated, nor the day its doors opened, but from the date William Rainey Harper was installed as president, which was July 1, 1891.

When John D. Rockefeller built the University of Chicago around Dr. Harper in 1891-'92 he effected a merger of two of the greatest organizing and selling geniuses of their time. Rockefeller's commodity was oil. Harper's was ancient Hebrew. Both were making their products indispensable to a country which had previously needed neither, and each had a virtual monopoly. America might have been the vastest Aramaic-speaking land outside Abyssinia if Rockefeller had not diverted Harper's energies to the new school on the Midway. The two men saw alike, even if one operated for profit and the other for the satisfaction of accomplishment.

Harper, born in New Concord, O., July 26, 1856, entered tiny Muskingum college in his home town when he was 10 years old. He picked Hebrew as one of his studies because it was tough. Most of the country got along without Hebrew, which at the time was several degrees deader than Greek or Sanskrit, and there were few people to teach it. So, three years after Harper was graduated from Muskingum at the age of 13, he was brought back to the school as teacher of Hebrew.

Harper sold Hebrew to the student body the same way he sold ells of cloth in his father's store and the same way John D. Rockefeller had been selling oil, first in Cleveland, then everywhere; he made the impact of his personality on his hearers the most dramatic experience that had ever happened to them. He soon had huge classes studying Hebrew as if their very lives depended upon it.

But Harper's passion for learning exceeded even his love of teaching. He went to Yale university and took his Ph. D. degree at the age of 19. Then in 1876 he went to Denison university in Granville, O., to teach his beloved Hebrew as a full professor. The same year, at a prayer meeting in Granville, he joined the Baptist church.

In 1878 President G. W. Northrup of the Baptist Union Theological seminary in Morgan Park, suburb of Chicago, wanted a first-rate teacher of Hebrew. He spoke to President Andrews of Denison, and Andrews told him there was no better man alive than Harper.

Dr. Harper went "out west" to Morgan Park. He taught Hebrew as a living, pulsing language that gave new vitality and meaning to the Scriptures. Students poured into his courses. They concentrated on Hebrew to the exclusion of other work. There wasn't time enough for Hebrew in the nine regulation school months, and Dr. Harper organized a summer course so that no precious hours should be lost. That was the forerunner of present summer schools.

Harper wasn't satisfied. Outside Morgan Park were hundreds, perhaps thousands, of people perishing for want of a working knowledge of Hebrew. He started a correspondence course. He organized an institute for the study of Hebrew. Two years later he had five such institutes and was getting so much mail they had to raise the salary of the Morgan Park postmaster.

All the thousands studying Hebrew needed textbooks. There weren't enough, so Harper wrote and published some. He bought special fonts of type and set up a publishing house, issuing two Hebraic journals, one for scholars, another for laymen.

The activities of this young man who was selling the nation Hebrew came to the attention of the man who was selling the country oil. John D. Rockefeller, a Baptist, was a trustee of Morgan Park seminary, and interested in Baptist education generally. He thought he ought to keep an eye on this dynamic young man who could make the country pant for Semitics and the minor prophets. He mentioned his interest to President Northrup.

At Morgan Park Dr. Harper often expressed to his friends, among them Thomas W. Goodspeed, his conviction that a great university should be established in Chicago to serve a great middle western empire then developing. Harper did not want just a college, he made clear, but a university, which would gather together great scholars who would have the time and funds for pure research. "A college teaches," said Harper, "a university learns." He and his friends wanted a university in Chicago. There was one man in the country who could finance such an institution—John D. Rockefeller.

Harper, of course, did not approach Rockefeller with his idea. He was too busy selling Hebrew, an undertaking which was to him as important as it was profitless. But wise old Dr. Northrup thought he saw a chance to bring Harper and Rockefeller together.

There was in Chicago at the time the old University of Chicago, founded in 1859 and moribund since. If Harper would accept the presidency of this institution, Mr. Rockefeller, because of his interest in Harper, might provide the money to build the institution into a strong college. Dr. Northrup induced the trustees of the university to elect Dr. Harper president in 1886. Harper turned down the job. He didn't want just a college in Chicago, backed with a few hundred thousand dollars. He wanted a university, backed with millions. He'd settle for nothing less. At 29 he left Morgan Park for a job as professor at Yale.

John D. Rockefeller had told Dr. Northrup he would make a special gift to keep Harper at Morgan Park. Both the school and the denomination needed him. When the young professor of Hebrew left him flat to go to Yale, meanwhile obstinately setting $4,000,000 as the absolute minimum for a university in Chicago, Rockefeller decided he had better go and see him.

The oil king first met Harper at Vassar, where the little professor was lecturing, and a short time later Rockefeller invited the young man to visit him in New York.

"I was very kindy invited to spend Saturday with Mr. Rockefeller in New York City," Harper wrote his friend Goodspeed, Nov. 2, 1887. "We went for a three-hour drive and then visited in the evening. I write to say that you undoubtedly have a very strong hold upon Mr. Rockefeller's confidence."

Thru the next year the correspondence between Harper and Goodspeed discussed the possibilities for establishing a university in Chicago. Harper insisted that Rockefeller would finance the school when he was ready, insisted that it must be a university and not a college, insisted that $4,000,000 was the absolute minimum for beginning the project.

Meanwhile the professor had not slackened his campaign to put Hebrew into every American home. His institutes and mail order courses flourished. He dived from Yale lecture halls to trains for addresses in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, and Baltimore. When he lectured at Northfield on the prophet Amos the newspapers reported that he took the entire town by storm. When officials wanted him to teach a Sunday Bible course at Vassar it was objected that "if Dr. Harper conducts their Bible study the students might be incited to do too much work." Vassar hired him anyhow.

Rockefeller couldn't resist another meeting with this dynamic apostle of Aramaic. On Nov. 19, 1888, the richest man in the world went up from New York to New Haven and spent two days with Harper. "Almost the only thing we discussed was the University of Chicago," Dr. Harper wrote Goodspeed. "He is clear on the point of $4,000,000, and he proposes to give one million and a half of the first two and one million and a half of the second two. He now wants the denomination to express themselves and commit themselves to a university."

Harper was to have his way. It was to be four million, and it was to be a university.

But when the proposition was tossed up to the Baptist denomination there were a dozen towns and leaders begging for the school. They were not sure a university was required, and they were positive that Chicago was not the place for it. "A university—and in Chicago, of all places!" shuddered the Boston Post. So bitter was the battle that Rockefeller seemed determined to forget the whole thing. Then the Baptists in Chicago, discouraged, indicated they were ready to settle for a college, backed by only one million dollars.

"I am sorry to say that I can hardly agree with you and the other brethren," Dr. Harper wrote wrathfully on Nov. 28, 1888. ". . . if the thing you are wanting in Chicago is only a college I have been working on the wrong tack. . . . it is not a college, but a university, that is wanted. We drop from four million to one million. What will he think of us?"

The campaign to keep the new college out of Chicago became one of personal abuse against Harper. It was charged that his liberalism was undermining Baptist theology. "The pulling and hauling is extraordinary," he wrote Goodspeed. "I fear I will be branded a heretic."

But Rockefeller was just as determined and stubborn as the little professor. He was going to have Harper. If that meant millions for a university in Chicago, so be it.

Rockefeller had first told the Baptists that he would start the university off with a gift of $600,000, to be augmented with $400,000 from Chicago citizens, but on Sept. 6, 1890, he announced he would give $1,000,000, provided Chicago would raise $1,000,000 for buildings and provided further that Dr. Harper would become president.

Harper immediately wrote Goodspeed urging him to move ahead swiftly with plans and outlining suggestions for the selection of trustees, the site, building plans, and the campaign for building funds. But he additionally warned that if they were still thinking merely of a college he'd have nothing to do with it.

Then Harper drew up the conditions upon which he would accept the presidency. Point 7 was that Mr. Rockefeller would give the school an additional million dollars, to be used exclusively for research. Rockefeller agreed if another million would be raised among Baptists and Chicagoans generally.

Rockefeller had Harper. Harper had the promise of $4,000,000 and a research university. Action started on all fronts.

Marshall Field contributed 10 acres of swampy ground as a site, a considerable gift, for the land was valued at $100,000. Men like Sidney A. Kent, Silas B. Cobb, and Martin A. Ryerson joined Northrup, Goodspeed, Frederick Gates, and other Baptists in raising money locally. Henry Ives Cobb was engaged as the architect, and a campaign was on to open the school Oct. 1, 1892. Harper formally took office as president July 1, 1891. He was 34 years old.

Yale did not take kindly to Harper's decision to leave its faculty. "You can't honorably leave," wrote President Timothy Dwight. He was indignant at losing his valuable professor right after he had raised a two million dollar endowment for the language department just to keep him.

But Harper was about to realize a vision, and he went after it with the unswervable determination characteristic of Rockefeller. "It is the opportunity to do something new and different that appeals to me," he wrote Goodspeed. The natural disappointment of a Yale president could hardly stand in his way.

He set up his university plan. There would be the university proper to carry on research, college divisions to teach, an extension division to reach outsiders, and a publication division—the University of Chicago Press—to insure circulation of University of Chicago research among other scholars. He didn't want the university plant idle during the summer months, so he planned a summer quarter.

Then President Harper went out to get the biggest and best faculty the country had ever seen. He didn't want just names. He wanted great scholars and great educators. At the time only two American institutions, Johns Hopkins and Clark university, recognized research—the advancement of learning—as a university's major objective. Dr. Harper believed that generous opportunity for research would attract the men he wanted. In addition he offered high pay.

But the scholars didn't get excited about this new school building in the swamps. The reputation of the city of Chicago at the time frightened the timid, and the university itself was referred to in many circles as "Harper's bubble." Men who had made their reputations with established schools didn't want to go into the wilderness to join a faculty that might become extinct in a year. After all, Harper had only $4,000,000, and he was spending as if he had $50,000,000. They didn't know what Harper was sure of—that there was more where the first four million came from.

At the end of a year Dr. Harper didn't have a single department head. He decided he couldn't get a faculty by writing letters. He'd have to go out after 'em.

He heard that Thomas C. Chamberlin, president of the University of Wisconsin, had reported himself happier in geology research than running a university, and he went up to Madison immediately and hired him. It was a coup, for with Chamberlin came his professor of geology at Wisconsin, Rollin D. Salisbury.

Thus encouraged, Dr. Harper persuaded Harry Pratt Judson, a professor at the University of Minnesota, to become professor of history and dean of the college at Chicago. Judson later succeeded Harper as president of the University of Chicago. He went to Cornell and obtained William Gardner Hale and J. Laurence Laughlin as head professors of Latin and political economy respectively. What sort of suasion Dr. Harper used is not recorded, but Laughlin later said that if you got into the same room with him you were lost.

In England, Richard Green Moulton was a leader in university extension work. Dr. Harper asked him to come to Chicago for a year to organize the extension work. Moulton came and stayed a lifetime. He got Prof. Hermann E. von Holst of the University of Freiburg, in Baden, Germany, as head professor of history; James H. Tufts, in philosophy (later he added John Dewey); John M. Manly, in English; George S. Goodspeed, in comparative religion and ancient history, and Starr W. Cutting in German.

Clark university, one of the two schools in the United States specializing in research at the time, had assembled a most brilliant physics and biology faculty, but Dr. Harper heard that some of the men were dissatisfied and there was danger it would break up.

He rushed to Clark and hired 14 men, among them Charles O. Whitman, head of biology, and the distinguished physicist and later Nobel prize winner, A. A. Michelson. He even offered a job to President Hale of Clark, but this offer was rejected.

When the first faculty of the University of Chicago was complete it included nine former university and college presidents. In addition to Chamberlin they were: Ezekiel G. Robinson, Brown; George W. Northrup, Baptist Union Theological seminary; Galusha Anderson, Denison; Albion W. Small, Colby; Franklin Johnson, Ottawa; Alice Freeman Palmer, Wellesley; Howard B. Grose, South Dakota, and John M. Coulter, Lake Forest.

By June, 1892, 60 instructors for all departments had been named, and Dr. Harper had scuttled his budget. But he kept right on naming more, and a month after the university opened the faculty numbered, not the 72 teachers originally contemplated, but 120.

"It was a great venture of faith," wrote the Rev. Mr. Goodspeed.

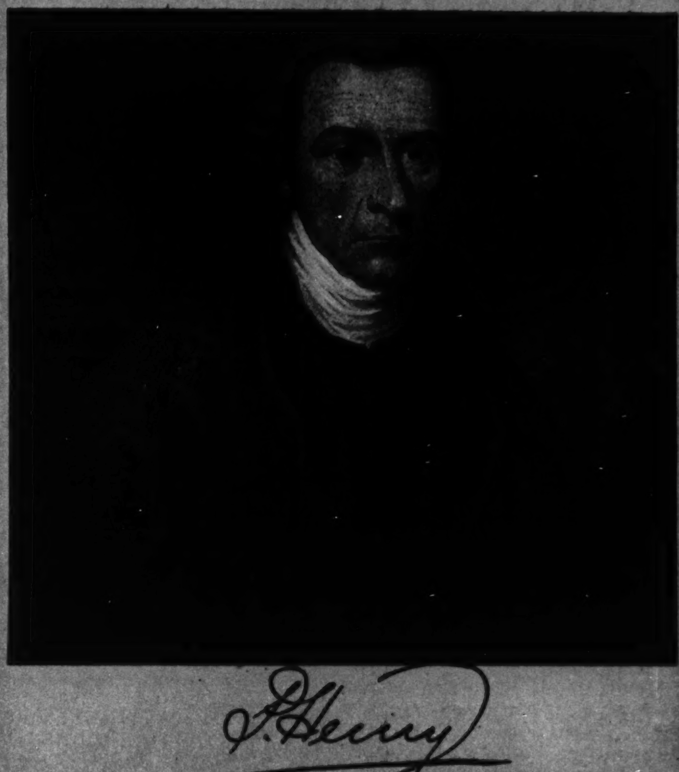
Dr. Harper had complete faith that John D. Rockefeller would not let him down. He said once that he had never asked Rockefeller for a cent of money for the University of Chicago. He didn't need to. Rockefeller was as anxious as Harper to build a truly great university. He thought that Harper was spending wisely, even when he was spending money he didn't have. He paid the bills.

The opening of school did not mean that things ran smoothly. In the first place, the buildings were not completed. The biology department had to spend its first week on field trips because the flats in which it was to be housed just off the campus were not vacated by their tenants. The students had no common meeting place, and a temporary structure had to be erected after classes had started. When rains came students and faculty got about the campus on planks. Prof. Alonzo A. Stagg, first professional coach in the west, had to take the boys to Washington park to teach them the first principles of football.

In the second place, the university was continually in the red. It stayed that way for 13 years. Mr. Rockefeller, who did not in any way control the management of the university, did propose from time to time that the budget ought to be balanced. Dr. Harper finally yielded in 1905. He showed a surplus of $26. But he was planning how he would spend the income from 50 million. Early the following year he died at the age of 49.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.



P. Henry

PATRICK HENRY, most famous American orator of revolutionary times, was born at Studley, Hanover county, Virginia, May 29, 1736. Favored with little formal education of any kind, he early in life failed twice at the business of keeping store and proved himself utterly incapable of managing a farm. At the age of 24 he was admitted to the bar, after a brief period of preparation.

In 1765 he was elected to membership in the Virginia legislature, becoming that same year the author of the celebrated "Virginia Resolutions," which in effect were a declaration of resistance to the Stamp act and an assertion of the rights of the colonies to legislate independently of Great Britain. In his address advocating the adoption of the resolutions he uttered these often quoted words:

"Cæsar had his Brutus, Charles the First his Cromwell, and George the Third . . . may profit by their example."

As he mentioned the name of the ruling sovereign of Great Britain there were cries of "Treason," and Henry concluded:

"If this be treason, make the most of it."

In 1774 and 1775 he was a delegate to the Continental congress, and in the last named year, while participating on March 23 in the second revolutionary convention in St. John's church, Richmond, he made the speech containing these immortal words:

"I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

This challenge was hurled in support of his resolutions for arming the Virginia militia, which were adopted by the convention. Henry was appointed to the command of the state's military forces, but soon resigned. In the Virginia convention of 1776 he favored postponement of the Declaration of Independence on the grounds that the colonies were not yet ready. First elected governor of Virginia in 1776, and reëlected in the two subsequent years, he stanchly supported Washington during the war, and it was he who dispatched the George Rogers Clark expedition from Virginia to the Illinois country.

Chosen a delegate to congress in 1778, he declined to serve. From 1780 to 1784 and again from 1787 to 1790 he was a member of the Virginia legislature, and from 1784 to 1787 he again was governor. He refused to serve as a delegate to the Constitutional convention in 1787 and led his state's opposition to the ratification of the constitution.

From 1794 until his death on June 6, 1799, Henry declined in succession the following offices: United States senator, secretary of state in Washington's cabinet, chief justice of the federal Supreme court, governor of Virginia (he had been reëlected), and minister to France.

BENCHLEY'D RATHER BE WRITER

Looking at Hollywood

with JOHN CHAPMAN

Hollywood.

BY FORCE of circumstance or public demand, a number of Hollywoodians are doing one job with good enough grace when they'd rather be doing something else. The ambition of Director Richard Wallace is to own and operate a big undertaking parlor. Leo McCarey, one of the best directors, is at heart a disappointed song writer, and his library is full of slightly corny tunes of his own composition. Carole Lombard yearns to be a director, and Joan Crawford intends to hold Louis B. Mayer to his promise to make her a producer some day. James Gleason, a splendid actor but an equally able writer, would rather write than act. And champion of those who'd rather write than act, but who find themselves in front of a camera most of the time instead of in front of a typewriter, is Robert Charles Benchley.

"Myron Selznick got me another acting job the other day," Bob told me recently, "and I called him up and gave him hell. 'Get me a writing job,' I said, 'or I'm going home. That's what I want — a writing job.' And he said: 'But writing jobs are scarce and hard to get. Besides, they don't pay as much.' So I expect I'll be going back to New York pretty soon—even tho I haven't got a job. Like a darn fool, I euchred myself out of being the drama critic for the New Yorker, and now I have to pay to see all the shows. I spent five months in New York last winter without doing a thing, and it cut into my patrimony."

"But you do have work in New York," I said. "How about those Benchley shorts?"

"Well, you can't call that a steady job. We make six a year at the eastern studios, and we're up to the end of 1942 now. It takes 10 days to make three of them, and we do this twice a year."

Benchley has had quite a surge of acting these last few months. He played himself in Walt Disney's "The Reluctant Dragon." He recently finished enacting a wacky show manager in the Columbia musical, "You'll Never Get Rich," in which he tries to keep Fred Astaire out of the draft. He also recently finished playing a baffled hotel night clerk in "Three Girls About Town," in which he lugs a corpse from room to room. He is now engaged in playing another actor's agent in "Bedtime Story," in which Fredric March and Loretta Young play a goofed-up version of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne.

There is only one spot of ointment in all these flies: He is doing a bit of writing for William Dieterle's film history of American music, "Syncopation." "Dieterle," says Bob, "has just discovered Mr. Dooley, and he wants me to do a sort of Dooley-Greek chorus comment on events since the turn of the century, which will run thru the picture. And then I'll have to play the part."

Benchley doesn't hate acting or do it with bad grace. He says he just can't act. "All I can do is play myself, and it gets monotonous."

His career as a player began as a stunt and has continued by what he considers a series of miraculous accidents. Back in 1922 or 1923 he was drama editor of the old Life—the one that was devoted to conscious humor —and he and his fellow theater critics put on a show. They were to act in it for one consecutive performance, and stage stars were to turn the tables by writing criticisms. Benchley turned up with his vague, nonsensical, and now famous Treasurer's Report, and Laurette Taylor roasted his hide off. Irving Berlin saw the act, thought it funny, and asked Bob if he'd do it in the third "Music Box Revue." The plan was to leave it in the show for a couple of weeks—long enough to amuse the intelligentsia, who always catch things early — and then drop it when the revue got down to ordinary customers. Well, the ordinary customers liked the Treasurer's Report as much as anybody, so Benchley had a run of nine months at the Music Box and afterward took his act into vaudeville.

Lap dissolve now to 1928. In the interim Benchley had done no more acting, confining himself to writing whimsical sketches, reviewing all the new plays, and conducting a historic persecution of "Abie's Irish Rose." In 1928 sound had burst upon the movies with fury, and Benchley happened to know a fellow with the Fox Film company, and this fellow kept pestering Bob. The movies, said this guy, wanted to know if comedy would hold up on a talking screen, and he thought Bob's Treasurer's Report would be a good test. Benchley evaded him for a long time and went his merry way. One early morning, after a particularly merry way, Benchley came home to his hotel apartment and found that this Fox Film pest had left another urgent call. So he called the fellow, routing him out of bed, and listened to the usual plea that he make a sound movie out of the Treasurer's Report.

"Yes, damn you, I'll do it, and how do you like that?" said the pranksome Benchley.

This film was an almost immortal test of whether movie audiences would laugh at something they heard instead of at something they saw, like Chaplin dropping a gob of ice cream down Mrs. Van Astorbilt's back. It was one of the first sound films; the Jolson picture had been a silent with the sound dubbed in, so it didn't really count. And it succeeded well enough so that Benchley made a few more, including a museum piece called "The Love Life of the Polyp," with Benchley doing a blackboard lecture.

Benchley made six shorts for Fox in those pioneer days, but they caused no great stir. He continued his career as a literary goof, writing volumes like "From Bad to Worse" and "My Ten Years in a Quandary," and shifting from the very old Life to the very new and still self-conscious New Yorker as the drama critic. In 1937 M-G-M bagged him, bringing him out for a writing job, and again chance made him an actor.

Metro had a Pete Smith short about mattresses, based on a lot of solid research made by a leading mattress manufacturer. The script needed lightening up, so the studio asked Benchley to put in some gags. He put them in, and the studio began looking for an actor to read the lines. One day a producer said to Bob: "Why don't you do it? You've got a funny face. Did you ever do any stage or movie work?"

Benchley said he had been with the "Music Box Revue" and had made six shorts for Fox in the old days. "Fine," said the producer. "Let's get those shorts and look at them." So Benchley called Fox to borrow some prints. This studio had no record of a man named Benchley ever being on the pay roll and had no record of any such shorts as he was talking about. But anyway Metro used him in its little number about mattresses, and this turned into the howl about "How to Sleep." Ever since then Bob has been doing animated lectures on how to do something, either for M-G-M or Paramount.

Seeing Benchley on the screen in anything is always a pleasure to most people, because he is always modest, almost always on the dumb side, never made up, and always the essence of hearty good nature. Among comedians he is unusual, for he is boisterously happy. Most comedians are brooders; Ed Wynn, Bert Lahr, Jack Haley, and so many others carry the woe and weight of the world around when they're offstage or offscreen. Only occasionally do you find bubbling, sunny tempers like Jack Oakie's, Joe Cook's, or Bob's.

With only one exception—Benchley—the first-string New York drama critics are a quiet, solemn lot. Brooks Atkinson, Burns Mantle, Richard Watts, George Jean Nathan, even John Mason Brown, can sit thru the most hilarious show of the year without emitting more than faint chuckles. But Benchley is famous for his belly laugh; if something strikes him funny he is not afraid to admit it, and his gleeful ho-ho's and ha-ha's were high spots in my 12 years of professional theatergoing — 12 years, incidentally, of complete personal silence.

"The last show I reviewed," says Bob, "was Jim Thurber's and Elliott Nugent's 'The Male Animal.' There was some guy in back of me who laughed out loud at everything. He knew Thurber was supposed to be a wit, and he wanted to show that he appreciated every line, so he laughed at every line whether it was funny or not. When I wrote my review I said that some jerk in back of me spoiled my evening by laughing loudly all the time—and then I sat back and said to myself, 'Why, what about yourself?' I'm getting very self-conscious about my laughter."

I asked Benchley if he had any other writing projects in view, and he said he'd been working on a history of the reign of Queen Anne.

"It will probably go on for years and years," he said.

"But why that?" I exclaimed.

"O," he said, "I suppose because it was about the shortest reign in English history."

A Benchley turned serious historian! O, well, all comedians are supposed to want to play Hamlet—and Bob wouldn't be a bad historian, because he has always been a good reporter.

He was born 51 years ago in Worcester, Mass.; took an A. B. at Harvard, sold advertising for the Curtis Publishing company in Philadelphia, did industrial personnel research in Boston, went to work on the New York Tribune as a Sunday feature writer in 1916. One of his sons, Nat, is now a writer of repute on the Herald-Tribune staff. Bob was secretary to the aircraft board during the World war. In the jazz age he and Dorothy Parker were editors of Vanity Fair—in the days when Vanity Fair was smarter than salt in a wound and, to a few of us, just as painful to take. Many of Benchley's effortlessly made quips, like "slipping out of one's wet clothes into a dry martini," have ricocheted around the world, and it has always been suspected that many of the acid cracks credited to Mrs. Parker really were Bob's.

Benchley has three homes. The main base is Scarsdale, N. Y., where Mrs. Benchley—the former Gertrude Darling, whom he married in 1914—maintains a year-around establishment. The New York branch is at the Royalton hotel, a 44th street antique which also houses George Jean Nathan. In Hollywood Bob lives in a bungalow at the Garden of Allah, which is a cozy nest of conviviality. Current Benchley intimates here include John McClain, a former New York ship news reporter turned scenarist and glamor boy, and John O'Hara, introvert author of introvert literature.

Hollywood's Reluctant People

HOLLYWOOD is full of people who started out to be something else—for, after all, the movies are not something that everybody would perpetrate deliberately—and a few of these people, like Bob, still yearn for other pursuits. Donald Crisp has been a frustrated sea captain all his life and should have been born in the days of Yankee clippers. Laird Cregar became an actor because there was nothing else to do; he's so big he wouldn't fit into any ordinary job except blacksmithing —and the blacksmith trade hasn't been so hot the last 20 years. John Loder, youngest British cavalry officer in the model T World war, went to Germany during the occupation, afterward set himself up in Germany as an import-expert business man, and would have remained such until day before yesterday had it not been for the 1929 depression. Sam Wood, another first-flight director, was a Los Angeles real estate man and became interested in the movies as an investment. Being cautious, he thought he should find out how movies are made before he put any money into the business, so before he knew it he was a producer-director.

Henry Fonda, an able actor on either screen or stage, began as a set designer and still would like to be one. He recently has done some excellent murals of characters in "The Wizard of Oz" for his children's nursery. I fancy that Joan Blondell would rather be a doting mother than a film comedienne. And Orson Welles, the boy actor, would much rather be a director and producer. Hollywood's reluctant people are among its most interesting inhabitants.

IPANA TOOTH PASTE

Teeth are brighter—smiles sparkle when Gums are Firm and Healthy!

Guard against "Pink Tooth Brush"... Help keep your gums firm and healthy—your teeth bright and sparkling... with Ipana and Massage!

THOUSANDS of dentists will tell you that gums, as well as teeth, need regular daily care . . . because sensitive gums are a real threat to bright and sparkling smiles!

Today's creamy foods do not give our gums the vigorous chewing that they need to be strong and healthy. Gums are apt to grow flabby and tender—frequently signal their distress by a tinge of "pink" on your tooth brush.

See your dentist when "pink" shows on your tooth brush. Find out if it means trouble ahead. But usually you will learn that lack of exercise is to blame! And your dentist's advice, like that of thousands of other dentists, may simply be "the healthful stimulation of Ipana and massage."

Ipana is specially designed to do two things: (1) clean your teeth to natural brilliance; (2) with massage, help firm your gums. So each time you brush your teeth, massage a little extra Ipana onto your gums. That invigorating "tang"—exclusive with Ipana and massage—tells you that gum circulation is quickening, helping gums to new firmness.

Get Ipana today. Let Ipana and massage help you to firmer gums, brighter teeth, a more attractive smile!

Nation-wide survey recently conducted among thousands of dentists showed that dentists personally use Ipana 2 to 1 over any other dentifrice. And it also showed that more dentists recommend Ipana for patients' daily use than the next three dentifrices combined—paste, powder or liquid.*

Stalin's Reds Lie Low in America

But They're Still Around, in Key Positions, and Dies Knows Them

By WILLARD EDWARDS

Washington, D. C.

ALL'S QUIET on the Red front in the United States—for the moment. When Hitler launched his offensive against soviet Russia on June 22, communist-inspired strikes against arms factories came to a sudden halt.

Sabotage in aircraft factories ceased. Explosions and fires in munition plants became rare. Riots in shipyards were no more.

Russia had become England's ally and therefore, under President Roosevelt's policy, ours. It was to Josef Stalin's interests that the production of war weapons in this country be speeded up—not hampered. Russia had been promised a share of those weapons.

But the communists are not idle these days. Quietly they are strengthening their position in labor unions. They are placing men in key positions in arms plants. Most of all, with an administration which has always been friendly to the communistic cause and which is now openly aiding soviet resistance to the Nazi advance, they are invading the government organizations set up to speed our arms program.

And when hostilities cease between Russia and Germany, as they eventually must, the communist party in America will be more powerful than it has ever been before. It will be in a position to strike stronger blows in its campaign to overthrow the democratic form of government and substitute the worker state.

These are the considered opinions of the man who knows more about Red activities in the United States than any other individual outside of the communist leaders themselves—Congressman Martin Dies of Texas, chairman of the house committee on un-American activities. For three years, with a large staff of investigators, he has been investigating subversion in this country and has amassed monumental evidence showing the soviet conspiracy within our borders.

"In one way," he says, "the German invasion of Russia was a break for Stalin. He may lose the war in Europe and win it in the United States.

"The American people were becoming aroused to the Red peril in this nation. Even the administration was beginning to purge itself of communists.

"Then suddenly the picture was changed. Bloody Stalin became our friend and ally. The Daily Worker, official organ of the communist party, became a champion of the 'four freedoms.' Strikes and sabotage against the defense program stopped, but the communists saw their opportunity to penetrate deeper into the industrial and governmental structure.

"When Russia and Germany stop fighting these men will be in a position to resume their attacks upon our form of government unless steps are taken now to root them out. And that is a difficult task with Stalin officially acclaimed by the administration as one of those who deserve our aid."

Dies was not speaking in generalities. He quoted specific instances of communists who have recently obtained high positions in the government's arms production setup.

He called attention to the appointment of Emil J. Lever as principal field representative in the labor division of the Office of Production Management at a $5,600 salary. Lever was a member of the executive committee and treasurer of the Conference of Progressive Labor Action, which sets forth its purpose as the abolition of "the present capitalistic system" and the building of a "workers' republic."

"Lever is a well known communist," said Dies. "Another is Tom Tippet, assistant chief of division of rents in the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, headed by Leon Henderson, also paid $5,600 a year. Still another is Robert A. Brady, employed as head consultant by Henderson at $7,500 a year. Our committee also has the communist records of men employed in the war department itself.

"There are hundreds of communists in the federal government. The President can never prepare this country and preserve our form of government until he cleans house."

In the field of labor the communists have gained a strangle hold upon the Congress of Industrial Organizations, Dies said, and Philip Murray, president of the CIO, seems unwilling or unable to rid the CIO of them. Dies named 21 CIO leaders who, he said, were communists. These men are placing trusted followers of the soviet cause in arms factories, he charged.

Dies pointed to the strike called last spring at the Harvill Aircraft Die Casting corporation, Inglewood, Cal., as a typical example of the communists' sabotage program in this country before Stalin overnight became an ally of the United States, to whom maximum aid has been promised.

Upon the products of the Harvill plant the aircraft factories of the entire Pacific coast depended. The strike there was led by one Kenneth Eggert. The Dies committee investigation showed that Eggert was the section organizer for the communist party in Toledo, O. Eggert was author of an article, which appeared in the communist party's official publication, the Party Organizer, which told how to organize the party in American factories.

Eggert was sent to California to conduct the Harvill strike. He appeared as the representative of the CIO's National Association of Die Casters. As a result of the walkout the OPM was forced to announce that its whole schedule of aircraft production had to be scaled down.

"Are we to flounder in the incredible folly which destroyed France?" asks Dies. "The folly of permitting the agents of Stalin to occupy strategic positions in our defense industries? That Inglewood, Cal., strike was merely a foretaste of a vast program of sabotage which the communist party planned to carry out and which has only been temporarily halted by the Russo-German war."

Another case of sabotage of the armament program which was traced by the committee to its communistic origin was that involving the American Potash and Chemical corporation, Trona, Cal. The union which called a strike at this plant was the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, a CIO affiliate headed by Reid Robinson. Robinson is vice president of the American Peace Mobilization, a thoroly subversive organization, according to committee records.

The strike was led by William R. Gately. In the committee records is a photostatic copy of the 1938 communist party registration card and membership book of Gately.

The Potash corporation is owned by a syndicate of Dutch and English bankers, the committee found. It is one of the four borax-producing plants in the United States. Borax and boric acid are important constituents in the making of glass, and the strike was certified as a defense strike by the secretary of labor to the Defense Mediation board.

As a result of this strike the manufacture of critical and essential items for both army and navy was hampered. Firms in New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio making searchlight batteries, submarine periscopes, storage batteries, and a variety of optical products were forced to slow down production.

Last June, shortly before Hitler invaded Russia, the press carried stories about a defiance of the Defense Mediation board by O. M. Orton of the CIO lumber union. The board had announced that the lumber strike was seriously crippling the arms program. Orton violently denounced the board and walked out of a parley to which he had been summoned.

Orton, the committee records show, is one of the sponsors of American Peace Mobilization, which was organized to undermine the American armament program. He was identified as a member of the communist party by the committee almost three years ago, but the CIO did nothing to purge him from its membership.

The strike last June of 11,000 employés at the North American Airplane plant in California is well remembered by the nation. So harmful were its effects upon warplane production that President Roosevelt was forced to call out the army to take over the plant in order that production might be resumed.

The strike was called and conducted by Elmer J. Freitag, president of the local of the United Automobile Workers' union. Freitag, called before the Dies committee, admitted under oath that he had registered as a communist voter in Los Angeles in 1938 after he had been confronted with evidence to that effect. Freitag was accompanied at the hearing by Lou Michener, chief CIO organizer on the Pacific coast. In the committee files is a photostatic copy of the communist party membership of Michener.

The strike at aluminum plants in Cleveland, O., was led by Alex Balint, head of the CIO union there. Balint was identified in sworn testimony before the committee as a member of the communist party.

The National Maritime union was enthusiastically engaged in calling strikes at docks on both Pacific and Atlantic coasts, preventing the shipment of war materials to Britain, when Stalin unexpectedly became a British ally. The strikes have stopped, with one or two exceptions, but Dies expects them to be resumed as soon as our aid no longer is useful to Stalin.

There can be no doubt that communists control the Maritime union, Dies said. It has its roots in the Marine Workers' Industrial union, which was one of the affiliated organizations in the Trade Union Unity league, an out-and-out communist affiliate. The league was headed by William Z. Foster and affiliated internationally with Red international labor unions, with headquarters in Moscow.

The strike at the Allis-Chalmers plant in Milwaukee, which gained nation-wide attention, was called after a vote had been taken by employés under the leadership of Harold Christoffel, president of the United Automobile Workers' local. It was later discovered that 2,200 fraudulent votes had been cast in order to force the walkout.

The committee files show that Christoffel has a record of affiliation with a number of communist front organizations.

The American Peace Mobilization, the committee found, was organized during the period of collaboration between Hitler and Stalin, with but one single aim—the sabotage of the arms program in the United States.

CIO leaders who backed this organization were listed by Dies as follows:

Reid Robinson, president of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers of America, a man with a very long record of affiliation with the front organizations of the communist party. Robinson is a vice president of the CIO.

Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers' union, about whose membership in the communist party there can be little doubt.

George C. Peacock, president of the National Association of Die Casters, whose union carried on the strike at the Harvill plant in Inglewood, Cal., under the leadership of Kenneth Eggert and Ralph Dawson, two communist party members of public record.

Lewis Alan Berne, president of the Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians, a union whose national organizer, Marcel Scherer, ran for office on the communist party ticket.

E. F. Burke, secretary of the National Marine Cooks and Stewards' association, a union under the complete control of Harry Bridges.

Abraham Flaxer, president of the State, County and Municipal Workers of America, a man with a long record of affiliation with communist party front organizations.

Ben Gold, president of the International Fur and Leather Workers' union, an avowed member of the communist party.

Donald Henderson, president of the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing and Allied Workers of America, an avowed member of the communist party.

J. F. Jurich, president of the International Union of Fishermen and Allied Workers of America, another Bridges union.

Mat Meehan, secretary of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union, Bridges' own union.

A FORETASTE OF FALL

By MARY MEADE

A delicious Hawaiian apple pie comes to the table in its own glass baking plate.

PUT A HINT of the season to come in your early fall foods. Let it be just a hint, tho, as it's too soon to be eating the rich and filling foods of cold weather.

Here are two dishes that do the trick nicely. Beef crumble is good any time of the year, but that toasty brown bread case does suit this season. And glazed onions are the perfect vegetable accompaniment.

BEEF CRUMBLE IN BREAD CASE

(Serves six)

1 loaf unsliced bread
1 pound ground beef
1 medium sized onion
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons fat
Bread crumbs

Trim crusts from the loaf of bread. Cut and scoop out center, leaving walls and bottom about one-half inch thick. Brush with melted butter and toast until lightly browned in a moderate (375-degree) oven. Melt the fat in a frying pan and add the finely chopped onion and brown. Crumble bread removed from center of loaf and mix with meat and onions. Add salt and pepper and brown mixture in pan. Pile lightly into warm bread case, serve immediately with a mushroom gravy.

GLAZED ONIONS

(Serves six)

1 dozen small dry onions
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sugar

Wash and skin the onions. Cook covered in a small amount of salted boiling water until almost tender, allowing the onions to absorb the water. Dry off surface on cloth. Meanwhile melt butter in skillet and stir in sugar. Cook gently about one minute and add onions. Cook 10 minutes longer, basting well with the sirup. Keep heat low to avoid burning. The onions should be lightly browned when done.

Apple pie always fits nicely into fall menus. This one has the distinction of being meringue topped. Its filling, a mouth-watering combination of crushed pineapple and apple sauce, is top-of-the-stove cooked.

HAWAIIAN APPLE PIE

(One nine-inch pie)

1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup unsweetened apple sauce
½ cup granulated sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon butter
2 well beaten egg yolks
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
⅛ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons sugar
1 baked nine-inch pastry shell

Here's beef crumble in a bread case for an early fall dinner.

Mix fruits, sugar, salt, and cornstarch together. Cook in saucepan, stirring constantly until thickened. Cook 10 minutes longer, stirring enough to prevent scorching. Add butter and gradually stir in the well beaten egg yolks. Cook two minutes longer, stirring constantly; cool. Turn into baked pie shell and top with meringue made by beating salt and sugar gradually into the beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until meringue is lightly browned, about 15 minutes.

A baking powder pastry which gives a crumbly crust was used for the pie in the picture.

REDS

United Office and Professional Workers of America, a union which the committee found to be under communist control.

Frederick N. Myers, general organizer of the National Maritime union, about whose communist party membership there can be no doubt and a man with a serious criminal record under another name.

Grant W. Oakes, chairman of the Farm Equipment Workers' Organizing committee and leader of the strike at the plants of International Harvester, the man who threatened wholesale violence in this strike.

O. M. Orton, president of the Woodworkers of America.

Joseph Selly, president of the American Communications association. Selly has under his supervision at least half a dozen short-wave radio stations operated by members of his union. Selly has recently been appointed a member of the Labor Advisory Board for Defense Communications.

"Just before Stalin became our ally," said Dies, "we were receiving reports from all over the country from our agents which revealed that the communist party was never more active in its program of sabotage. It was engaged in a highly organized effort to undermine the very foundations of our national security.

"The men whom I have just listed are in an ideal position to resume their campaign against the security of the United States once they get the word from Moscow that the honeymoon is over. Meanwhile they are entrenching themselves, increasing their power, while an acquiescent administration looks placidly on and promises a stream of supplies to Russia."

In its three years of investigating, Dies said, the committee has gathered indisputable evidence that the communist party of the United States is a foreign conspiracy masked as a political party.

"It is a constituent member of the communist international and is its agent in the United States," he declared. "The communist international is completely dominated by the communist party of soviet Russia. In practice the party here functions as a border patrol on American shores for a foreign power.

"Every member of the communist party who has appeared before the committee made it clear that his primary loyalty was to the soviet union. None of them, of course, ever contemplated that Russia and the United States would in effect be fighting on the same side. But it was evident that if the soviets and the United States were warring against each other he would be forced to choose the side of the soviets."

Extensive evidence has been gathered by the committee that the soviet government has maintained a far-flung system of secret service agents engaged in espionage in the United States. These agents, the committee reported, look upon the United States as one of the countries in which their work has been done with least interference from government agencies. Under the new order of things it may be accepted that the United States will have no secrets, military or otherwise, to be kept from Stalin.

1 Ellen Creed (Ida Lupino) approaches Leonora Fiske (Isobel Elsom) with a difficult request. Ellen is a companion to the former showgirl, now comfortably retired. The request Ellen has is for permission to bring her elderly and balmy sisters to the house for a holiday. Reluctantly, Miss Fiske agrees.

2 A short time later Albert Feather (Louis Hayward), a glib cad and a distant relative of Ellen's, appears at the house. Artfully wangling a loan from Miss Fiske he repays her with a warning: "Watch out for them sisters—they'll be staying on forever."

3 The sisters arrive, in all their pitiful balminess, and Miss Fiske prepares herself for what Albert has predicted will be an ordeal. "Give them the back room, Ellen," she says with a starched kindness, "but be sure they understand they're not to disturb things."

4 But six weeks of having her house littered with sea shells and weeds and dead birds drives Miss Fiske to order the sisters out. "And you, Ellen," she adds, "were responsible for this. I must ask you to go also."

5 Almost frantically sympathetic toward her sisters, Ellen is unable to face this order. Fear and love and a growing hatred for her benefactor finally drives Ellen to a terrible solution. Miss Fiske disappears.

Ellen explained absence than in —this time with his trail. To ays blithely he t here a while— t look here."

7 Ellen's explanations about Miss Fiske fail to impress Albert. In prying about the house he discovers that the bakeoven, where he knew Miss Fiske hid her valuables, has been bricked up. "And why, my dear Ellen?" he asks.

8 Albert's suspicions about Miss Fiske take tangible form when he and Lucy Gilham, the maid (Evelyn Keyes), find the old lady's finery intact. "Most int'restin'," muses Albert. "The old girl surely would have taken these fancy things along—IF she'd gone away."

9 "Ha!" cries Albert as his further prying reveals that Ellen has been signing Miss Fiske's name to checks and letters. "My naughty cousin Ellen. I begin to see what it is you've done—why the bakeoven is securely sealed."

10 The showdown comes. "Don't lie to me, Ellen, my dear," crows Albert. "You know Miss Keyes is in that oven." Ellen steels herself. "And just what are you going to do about it? The police will be happy to see you, you know." The upshot is that Ellen gives him money to escape. But she knows her doom is sealed.

11 When the maid slips off to tell the police Ellen passes sentence upon herself. Her world completely shattered, she bids adieu to the pitiful, uncomprehending pair she loves so much. "Goodby for a while," she says softly. "I'm going to join Miss Fiske."

Using the left hand door of a parked car endangers the motorist who does it, as well as the drivers who must turn out into other traffic lanes to avoid him.

BOY, WHAT SWELL CAKE! REAL CARAMEL FLAVOR!
OF COURSE! IT'S MADE THE SPRY FULL FLAVOR WAY!

No "faded flavor" cakes with purer Spry! See how you get the rich, luscious true caramel taste in both cake and frosting

● Make one today and hear your folks cheer! And you'll feel like cheering, too, when you remember how quickly and easily this marvelous cake was mixed. Yes, Spry saves you time and work—money, too! For Spry costs just about half what expensive cake shortening costs.

More big advantages

Easy creaming is only one of Spry's three extra advantages. Spry stays fresh longer, too, and it's purer. That's why it doesn't "dull" flavor as ordinary shortenings may but lets it come through in its FULL enticing goodness. And what a difference that makes! Spry chocolate cakes taste extra chocolaty. Fruit flavors have the true fruity tang. And tender, nut-sweet Sprycrust lets you enjoy the filling of every pie at its richest and best. Change to Spry for all baking and frying!

Golden Caramel Cake

1½ cups sugar
¼ cup hot water
½ cup Spry
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg and 2 egg yolks, beaten
3 tablespoons caramelized sugar sirup
2½ teaspoons baking powder
2¼ cups sifted flour
⅔ cup water

Place ½ cup sugar in skillet and stir constantly over medium heat until melted and dark. Remove from fire, add ¼ cup hot water gradually and stir until dissolved. Cool. Blend Spry, salt and vanilla. Add remaining sugar gradually and cream well. (Amazing how mixing time is cut down with triple-creamed Spry!) Add eggs and beat well. Add caramelized sugar sirup and blend. Sift baking powder with flour 3 times. Add flour to creamed mixture, alternately with water, mixing after each addition until smooth.

Bake in two 8-inch Sprycoated layer pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes. Spread Golden Caramel Frosting between layers and on top and sides. A luscious cake with that deep true caramel flavor everyone loves. And purer Spry lets you get the FULL deliciousness. Use Spry for all your cakes—turn old favorites into new flavor thrills. You'll find Spry cakes are lighter, too.

Golden Caramel Frosting

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
Dash of salt
5 tablespoons cold water
1 teaspoon light corn sirup
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons caramelized sugar sirup

Put egg whites, sugar, salt, water and corn sirup in top of double boiler and mix thoroughly. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat constantly with rotary egg beater until mixture will hold a peak (about 7 minutes). Remove from fire, add vanilla and caramelized sugar sirup and beat until thick enough to spread.

AIR WAR AT NIGHT

Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

Artist's conception of British bombing raid over French coast at night. Coming up the coast from reader's right, bomber is caught in first light, with heavy anti-aircraft shells bursting around him. Then second set of lights and guns pick him up. He flies over heavy coastal guns and then smaller anti-aircraft guns fire tracer bullets at him as he comes in lower. Ground flashes at extreme left are from his bombs.

By EYEWITNESS

THE MOST wonderful fireworks exhibitions I ever have seen were those put up by the German anti-aircraft units along the channel coast when British bombers were making night forays against the French channel ports—supposedly the hop-off points for the German invasion expected about that time.

These fireworks—deadly machine gun, automatic cannon, and heavy "flak," the British pilot's description of enemy ground fire—surpassed anything that peacetime pyrotechnic exhibitors ever conceived. Along with the gunfire were searchlights of enormous candlepower and many different colors.

The first time I saw this was on a night in September, 1940, when RAF bombers slid across the channel to attack German heavy artillery batteries that had been bombarding the Dover area. It started about the time we heard the steady hum of British motors overhead. We always knew they were British when we heard the steady hum. The German planes had their motors deliberately out of synchronization in order to confuse if possible the men operating the acoustical range finders. The German motors always made a sound like "Woom, woom-woom, woom-woom, woom."

Hardly had the British passed out over the channel when the German side began to show activity. The night was clear and still except for the flashes of German batteries which were firing four and two gun salvos across the 21 miles of water into the Dover area. They were using two sizes of guns—11-inch, which threw 670-pound projectiles, and 14-inchers, which tossed their 1,560-pounders across with ease. (These batteries have since bombarded targets in Kent, 37 miles from the nearest point of the French coast.)

From our vantage point on the cliff edge we could see the long funnels of red and yellow flame as the guns fired. The sound would reach us 1 minute and 50 seconds later. In fact, the report of the gun always arrived about the time the explosion of the shell—which arrived 62 seconds after the spout of flame from the gun muzzle indicated the shot—was dying away. We never were forewarned of the approach of shells, because these arrived and exploded before the noise of the approach arrived. All of which indicated they were high-velocity guns and the shells were moving faster than the speed of sound.

The racket was increased by British replies from batteries around Dover, and the shell bursts and cannon shots redoubled in volume because they reëchoed back and forth between the cliffs on both sides of the channel.

The RAF pilots always followed the same procedure—like so many trolley cars riding on a track. They flew straight across the channel to Boulogne, made several high practice runs up the coast to Cape Gris-Nez. Then they would swing out to sea and repeat the process. Finally, when ready to drop their bombs, they would make the coastwise trip at low altitude, bombing as they went.

While they were high the Germans fired only heavy anti-aircraft guns. The searchlights would pick up the planes at Boulogne, and each light would follow along for a while. Those behind the bombers would wink out as new light batteries picked up the machines. You could follow the course flown by the bombers by watching the searchlights wink on ahead of them and die out behind. The bursting ack-ack shells also gave us their approximate location.

These guns had a flare of flame when they fired like tall pine or poplar trees. This was quite different from the coastal guns, which were long cones of fire. The shells from the ack-ack when they burst in the air looked much like the stars that come out of Fourth of July rockets.

But the show never really began until the RAF started bombing. The bomb bursts were always flat splashes of flame, hugging the ground. We could almost always pick them out in comparison with other explosions.

The first of these bomb explosions seemed always to set off a hornets' nest. We used always to say among ourselves, "See, look what they've [the RAF] stirred up over there now." For the bombs seemed to make the Germans frantic, and they would open up with every available weapon.

Of course the real reason was that the RAF had descended to a height within the range of the 50-mm., 37-mm., and 20-mm. cannon, the light and heavy machine guns, and other devices. Each different kind of gun had a different colored tracer—yellows, blues, greens, reds, and white. Only these smaller guns had tracers.

It was these little balls of light behind the smaller shells that gave the impression of flame. From the distance of 20 miles it seemed that these shells were climbing up slowly from the ground, mounting in a long, sharply hooked slope with a trail of balls of fire dripping from it. And these outlined tracks always ended in a burst as the self-destroying fuse in the shell exploded it.

These were what the RAF called "flaming onions." During any attack the different colored trails would cross and seem completely to cover the sky. There never was any shortage of ammunition, and the German gunners obviously liked to shoot. We never saw a British plane hit and knocked down in flames—or at any rate we never recognized it if we did.

When the bombers finished their task they turned out to sea for home. The little guns would die down behind them, but the heavy ack-ack would follow them as far as 15 miles across the straits. These would be the 5.9 anti-aircraft guns, tossing a 103-pound shell.

Finally we would hear the drone of the bombers heading down channel and back toward shore to make another run.

Always before even the practice runs the RAF would drop their flares from considerable height. Watching from Dover, these parachuted magnesium torches would seem to be hanging without dropping at all. The bombers would make their final approaches soon enough to come in under the flares and have the advantage of the light which illuminated the whole countryside for miles around while the bomber was releasing his load.

The technique of the pilots was not so different when the Germans were raiding at night over England. Typical raids were similar to many I experienced while in London later in the year. The bombers would arrive within an hour or two after dark, and the first notice would be the "woom-woom, woom-woom" of the motors. The first man would circle the town, locating himself thoroly—or so it seemed to us.

Then he would circle the area where the attack would be concentrated and drop a circle of flares. These were enormously bright—five miles from the flare you could easily read a paper. At first the Nazis dropped them in pairs—two here, a gap, then two more, and so on around the target area.

After these would come the incendiaries and fire starters. They would be dropped usually by four or five planes that came over apparently for this purpose only. Then a lull while the fires got well started below. The next groups of bombers would be carrying high-explosive bombs, and they generally had little difficulty in orienting themselves because of the blazes below. These beacons would be used for the rest of the night, and there would be no more flares or fire bombs.

It got to the point where we knew the routine so well that when the fire bombs fell around us we understood perfectly that the high-explosive would soon follow, and Londoners ordinarily got out of the area.

During raid nights the German planes came over identical routes so repeatedly and so exactly—over the same streets and the same buildings again and again—that we became certain they were flying on a radio beam. I saw this myself night after night, and the RAF men to whom I talked said that laying down the beams was an easy thing to do and a most logical way to direct aircraft at night over a blacked-out countryside.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

Extremely watchful is this German shepherd, Blanka von Weissenbach, as she poses for the camera behind her eight puppies, which are 5 weeks old. Blanka and her litter are owned by Max Jauch.

BECAUSE many inexperienced dog owners do not have an understanding of a puppy's food and general health requirements and its ability to learn, or rather inability to absorb training and behave like a sensible mature dog while it's still just a few months old, life is none too easy for some pups just brought into the home.

If we were to divide the various stages of development in the life of a pup this is what we would find:

AGE 1 DAY TO 6 WEEKS (OR LONGER)—The puppy is with its mother and its litter mates. At this age it still is dependent on milk for the greater part of its nourishment. The pup's whole idea of life is eating, sleeping, and having a good time. It has little idea of the world outside of its kennel and practically no sense of responsibility. In most kennels the pup is beginning to eat foods other than milk during the routine of weaning, because many breeders start to wean their litters before they are 6 weeks old.

AGE 6 WEEKS—The digestive organs of the pup are beginning to change and acid is beginning to appear in the gastric juice to enable the pup to eat meat, prepared dog foods containing meat, cereals, and other foods good for young dogs. But milk still is an important item in the young dog's diet. It supplies calcium, vitamins, butter fat, and other nourishing ingredients invaluable to the growing pup. At the age of 6 weeks the pup is extremely immature mentally and therefore not easy to teach. It's too young to pick up a lesson very quickly—as, for example, the necessary lesson in house manners. After experiences with puppies of varying ages we gladly leave a 6-week-old pup in the kennel with its mother and kennel mates rather than bring it home. A pup of this age has to be fed at least four times every day and requires much attention, because it is young and irresponsible. Life is just a romp to a dog of this age. The four (or five) meals for the 6-week-old pup usually are made up of milk, dry cereals, dry and canned prepared foods of the highest quality, cooked or raw beef, and other approved foods.

AGE 6 TO 10 WEEKS—The pup purchased as a pet usually moves into a home when it is 8, 10, or 12 weeks old, or even older. It still is very immature and must be treated with patience, because it is far from the age of discretion. A pup at this age may be expected to be a little timid (at first) about loud explosions, stairs, swinging doors, street cars, and other things which it never saw in its kennel.

Any intricate training lessons are not advisable, but after it has gotten used to its home the first simple lessons in teaching the pup its name, its house manners, and to go to its bed may be started. It's unreasonable to expect that all puppies are going to learn even simple lessons in a few days. For example, some learn their house manners very quickly. Others take several months to get the idea behind the training. As to who to blame for this slowness in learning, opinions differ, but in many cases the blame may be divided between the pup and the owner. Some owners do not have the patience nor the knack to teach a dog anything. On the other hand, there are dogs which do not learn quickly, just as there are people who are slow in learning.

At this time the pup may be started on the big lesson to teach him what is right and what is wrong in the home and in his general conduct. At this early age the use of the word "no" should begin. If the pup chews a shoe you take it away from him, hold him by the back of his neck, and say, "No." While at this age the puppy still gets four meals a day. What he gets is most important for his future health. That is why most kennels and veterinarians are glad to advise owners of new pups on a canine diet.

AGE 4 MONTHS—When the puppy gets to be about 4 months old he begins to cut his second set of teeth. The first or milk teeth are mere shells. An owner must understand this change in the pup's development to appreciate why the animal wants to chew something. Sometimes the first teeth are not shed properly. The pup's mouth hurts and he craves to sink his teeth into something. He wants an object he can gnaw. To remedy this situation the teething pup may have a large raw or cooked bone. Or you can give the pup a good-sized hard rubber ball or other hard playthings.

position made the use of high-frequency beams particularly easy. The continental coast forms a rough L on the east and south coasts of England. Laying the beams on magnetic bearings from two widely separated points—perhaps 300 to 400 miles apart — the German engineers could have them intersect over almost any area they chose. The crossing points of the beams would be two to three square miles wide, but they would positively fix the general area of any target position of which they positively knew.

The beams removed all the problems of navigation in bad weather. It made possible raids over England in bad weather—so long as the German air bases in France or Flanders were fog-free. The bad weather that absolutely called a halt to raids by both sides last winter was very wide in extent and undoubtedly covered bases both in England and in France.

There were times when London was heavily hit when the city was wrapped in the famous pea soup fog. The bomb droppers could not possibly have seen the town, yet the bombs fell consistently in the same general area—all of which was accepted as conclusive proof that the Germans were bombing from radio beams.

Weather was the only factor that really controled night raids. And this weather was always the weather at the bombers' own air fields—be they British or German. Often when the weather would be fine over England the German raiders—this happened often in the late fall and early December — would come over early in the evening, as soon as darkness fell, strike heavily, and then disappear for the entire night. These raids would come about 6 p. m. and be finished by 8:30 p. m.

The reason for this strange behavior would be that the western continent ground fogs would form over the German airdromes in France about 9:30 to 10 p. m. and hug the ground until well after sunup. The Germans would be forced to get their raids off early enough for the last planes over England to get back to their bases before the ground was completely blanketed.

We heard many tales that RAF bombers with special radio equipment often picked up the German beams. The practice would be to fly on back over France to the point where the German transmitters were operating. The bombers then would bomb the transmitter—hoping thereby to leave a number of Germans in fog over England without a guiding street home.

Just before I left England the Germans' flare techniques were materially changed. They began dropping flares in groups of four that the RAF ground observers promptly dubbed "chandelier flares." These apparently didn't do the job so well, for they were soon stopped. But now the Germans drop their flares singly but close together. This forms a long curtain of torches and a street of light on the ground for miles on each side.

In these days the waters of the channel are clear and untraveled in the daylight. Life, particularly around the Strait of Dover, begins at first dusk. Then the German E-boats and the British motor torpedo boats — MTB's — would buzz out from each shore; the trawlers would come out to sweep up mines or to lay them. And often there are brief but bloody battles among these craft.

Both the German and British torpedo boats had speeds up to approximately 60 miles an hour. The German were a little larger. Each side carried at least two torpedo tubes. The Germans also carried a 20-mm. all-purpose gun—anti-aircraft, anti-trawler, or anti-MTB. The British carried two .5-caliber machine guns, and sometimes Bren guns would be aboard, too. The Brens are .303 machine guns.

The trawlers would carry a 12-pounder gun (approximately a 75-mm. gun) and a couple of machine guns.

The British boats had three 1,000-horsepower aircraft motors, and the Germans were said to have two 1,500-horsepower motors plus an electric motor that was notably silent in its operation. In fact, many trawler crews on foggy nights would tell stories about hearing German voices talking thru the fog, orders given and acknowledged, as an E-boat would slide by only a short distance away. The strange point to these stories would be that there was absolutely no sound of motors—not even a muffled throb. And the navy consequently decided that on such occasions the Germans were running slowly on their electric battery-driven motors. These probably were similar to submarine motors.

Many nights I've stood on the cliffs idly looking out into the darkness. There often would be a sudden flare of light—machine guns and light cannon bursts—and often the quick finger of a searchlight. There would be half a dozen explosions, maybe a heavy blast, then blackness again. These short battles usually occurred when the motor torpedo boats of one side or the other caught enemy trawlers and torpedoed them.

In this war the British have laid a mine barrage the full length of the isles. This belt is maintained only a couple of miles offshore, leaving a very narrow safe passage for shipping. These are moored mines in deep water, and at high tide the shallow-draft motor torpedo boats can run over them without fear of setting them off.

The Germans, or course, also have laid mine fields on their side of the channel.

Aircraft of both groups are constantly dropping parachute mines in the waters close to shore in an attempt to destroy the other's shipping in the clear channels. Most of this is done at night when it cannot be seen.

Often at high water the British would make a foray across to the French coast. This was done to pick up prisoners for the intelligence service, to demolish some specific military objective, or perhaps just to keep the Germans stirred up and alert and force them to keep the coast heavily guarded. This was easy for the British, because the Germans had such a long coast open to such forays. It was impossible for the Germans to retaliate in a like manner—or almost impossible—because the British coasts were much shorter.

Also a factor in this raiding was the fact that the British coasts were all occupied by British—civilians as well as military. The German-held coasts, on the other hand, were occupied by the German army, but also they were the homes of French, Belgian, Dutch, Danish, and Norwegian civilians, none of whom could be considered friendly to the German cause.

As it was explained to me, the channel has become the no man's area of this war, just as the land between the trench systems in the war of 1914-'18 was a no man's land. The forays into the continent are like the trench raids of the other World war.

The British come in under cover of darkness in their fast MTB's, head for what they hope is a desolate beach, and put men ashore. It is known that on one occasion they took over a motorized raid. This consisted of at least one Bren gun carrier—the little tank-type carrier that is very fast—and a light motor car, which was a French type with French number plates.

We heard that a couple of officers went right into the town of Calais, and the Bren gun carrier went down and shot up a pier a short distance outside Calais. On that trip they also blew up a railway bridge and seized a couple of prisoners. Most of the party is supposed to have returned safely after destroying the vehicles, which they had to leave behind.

This war is definitely an all-sex affair, a fact observed at Dover, where there were units of the Women's Royal Naval service, women's units of the Royal Air force, and women of the Auxiliary Transport service. The women were in exactly the same dangers as the men, did exactly the same kind of work (except for combat and guard duties), and had to share the same kinds of quarters as other troops there.

One company of ATS girls slept nightly in a dugout near a very important military target that regularly was shelled or bombed. Their commanding officer was a young married woman who was known to her detachment of girls as "Ma'am." She held a commission as a lieutenant and formerly had been an efficient and beautiful secretary in the city of London.

She became known to all of the newspaper men at Dover as "Johnny," and we often saw her at their headquarters for high tea—3:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

One afternoon I saw Johnny walking across the fields to her headquarters from the Dover castle on the hill overlooking the harbor. From the heavy clouds hanging low overhead a four-engined bomber nosed into the clear. No higher than 1,000 feet as he went over, I saw the bomb bay doors open and he dropped a stick of heavy bombs.

Johnny saw them coming and threw herself flat, following army regulations and all human instincts. I could see the individual bombs of the stick in the air, falling perhaps 100 yards apart. The bursts bracketed her brown-clad figure hugging the ground, no more than 50 yards on either side. Fortunately she was unhurt, altho the blast rolled her over several times.

The courage of these women is of the highest order. One of the WRNS girls drove a staff car into Dover and stopped to do an errand in a downtown bank. While she was inside, a German plane dropped a bomb that made a direct hit on the car, turning it into so much scrap metal. The incident didn't bother her at all, her only complaint being that she had left a book in the car and couldn't find a scrap of it.

There was a little waitress in the Crypt restaurant in Dover, where all the newspaper men used to dine. She came hobbling over to serve me tea one morning with quite a different stride than usual. I asked her what had happened and she said:

"You know that shell that hit St. Barnabas' church last night—it knocked me down, because I was going past when it went off. First thing I knew I got a lot of wires around my neck and sparks everywhere. The power wires were cut, and they fell in coils around me.

"A sailor got me out and they took me to hospital. Look where I'm burnt on the neck, and in me leg here a piece of the shell went right thru the fleshy part above my knee."

The proprietress came over and explained that she had been unable to get the girl to stay home, where she really belonged.

"O, I can't be laying up, because some one might write my husband, who's away in the army, and tell him I've been wounded. He'd be worried."

WHAT DO YOU do with your negatives after the film is developed and the first few contact prints are made? The chances are that you have left the negatives in the envelopes in which you got them from the photo finisher and that these envelopes are all over the house.

Yet it is sensible for more than one reason to keep these negatives in good order and to file them according to some practical system. You may want to make or order enlargements from some of them or if needed to replace a faded print.

It all depends, of course, on how deeply interested you are in photography. If you have decided to make it your hobby and to improve your picture taking as you go along, it is quite important that you keep tab on your past accomplishments. This involves not only the filing and indexing of your negatives but also the keeping of data on film, exposure, and development, so that you can find the source of past mistakes or duplicate without waste certain effects you were able to capture.

Roll film of the 35-mm. size is often kept in the small metal cans in which it is sold. The cans are numbered and the pictures on the roll are identified on separate index cards. However, if you plan to refer often to old negatives it is preferable to cut up the rolls in smaller strips which are kept flat in transparent envelopes. Unrolling film always carries the danger of scratching the emulsion. It is therefore preferable to store the film flat.

The larger sizes of roll film are usually cut in strips of two or three negatives. It is best to keep them, as well as sheet film, in transparent envelopes which can be purchased in any camera store.

Stack the negatives on edge in a box of convenient size and identify them by number on the envelopes. You can use a title in place of a number, but if you want to keep a record of exposure data it is more practical to prepare a separate file of index cards carrying all this information. Finally, a second file of index cards can be arranged according to subjects—instead of negative numbers—and permits the listing of the same negative under several headings so that it can be easily located.

Keeping your negatives in transparent envelopes has other advantages. You may spend considerable time in deciding how to crop a picture for best effect. Once you have found the solution, the section of the negative to be enlarged can be marked on the transparent envelope.

Another angle is the possible saving in time and paper. Instead of making new test strips every time you want to make an enlargement from the same negative, you can keep a record of the kind and grade of paper used previously and the required exposure time. The areas to be "dodged" can also be marked on the envelope.

Your negative file should be kept in a dustproof spot of moderate temperature and humidity. Negatives become brittle in dry air. If they are unusually valuable to you, have them coated by a process which deposits a protective surface on both sides of the film and preserves it indefinitely.

Flat, even illumination, avoiding harsh shadows on the faces, is the most suitable for child subjects. It's wise to keep an exposure record of such shots in case you want to duplicate the same effect.

CRAFT PATTERNS

BY A. NEELY HALL

- Much is to be said for the part-time darkroom. It serves the purpose and is a good start towards something better. Craft Pattern No. 913 describes and illustrates methods of handling equipment with the least effort, shows how to build a folding work table to set up over basin or tub, a portable or wall cabinet for equipment, and how to make door and window light-tight.
- If photography is your hobby, probably you have a darkroom or are planning one. For half the fun of picture making is in the developing, printing and enlarging.
- The darkroom may be a get-out-and-put-away outfit for the bathroom, kitchen, laundry, storeroom or clothes closet. Or it may be a permanent built in unit. Space conditions generally determine the type.

NOVELTY ALBUMS
908

- Albums are more individual when you make them yourself. Craft Pattern No. 908 shows how to make these two, and full-sized alphabet patterns.

- A permanent darkroom requires little space if well planned. Craft Pattern No. 914 shows a practical arrangement, how to build the walls, make light-tight door and window shutter, work tables, material racks and shelves and a ventilating system.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper.
If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have a scenario for a moving picture play and would like to get in touch with some producer who might be interested in it. I do not have any connection in that line, so thought I would write to you for an introduction or information as to where I could write. Thanking you in advance, I am

AUGUST FORSTER.

Dear Mr. Forster: Producers do not accept scenarios that have never been copyrighted. They adapt short stories or novels and for original scripts have their own staffs of writers.

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you please print the height, weight, and hair color of Errol Flynn? Also the height and weight of Brenda Marshall, Alice Faye, and Ann Sheridan. Thank you very much. J. B. GREENLY.

Dear Mr. Greenly: Errol Flynn is 6 feet 2 inches tall, has brown hair and eyes, and weighs 180 pounds. Brenda Marshall has dark hair and eyes—weight, don't know. Alice Faye has blue eyes and blonde hair—and she doesn't say what she's weighing, either. Deep silence on the weight question also on the part of Ann Sheridan. Ann is 5 feet 5½ inches tall. You're very welcome.

Dear Mae Tinée: "Rage in Heaven." I couldn't figure out that title, so I just had to go see it, after all my favorite actor and actress were in it. But I became so absorbed in the picture that I forgot to even think about the title. Yes, that was a picture in my estimation.

George Sanders, I think, is a super duper. There's something about him. Mr. Sanders has many fans who feel the same way I do. He isn't another glamorous panty waist, and his looks don't turn every girl's head. No, it's something else and there just aren't words to explain it.

Ingrid Bergman is also a wonderful actress. She deserves all the praise she gets and more! In fact, I like her so much I wish I knew her personally. I can't wait to see her in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

"Keep 'em flying." E. M. S.

Dear E. M. S.: Me, too!

Dear Miss Tinée: My hobby is collecting movie stars' pictures. I have about 3,000 gathered from magazines, newspapers, and from your Voice of the Movie Fan column. Altho I've been reading your column for such a long time, I have never come across anything about Tim Holt.

TIM HOLT

My cousin and I think he is one of the best actors we have ever seen. Too, he is only 21 and very handsome. We like him so very much we do have a certain "crush" on him, even tho he is married and one of Hollywood's youngest fathers.

Would you please print his picture and a brief biography about our favorite star and last, but not least, where we can write to him and obtain an autographed picture?

Thanks loads! And our best and most sincere wishes for a grand and glorious success to your fine column. Very sincerely,

ELLA FOKEY.

Dear Miss Fokey: I appreciate your good wishes so much and am glad you like our column. Tim Holt is the son of Jack Holt, silent screen star. Educated Carl Curtis Grammar school and Culver Military academy. He's 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, and has brown hair and eyes. Hobby is raising cocker spaniels. Films in which he's appeared are "History Is Made at Night," "Stella Dallas," "Gold Is Where You Find It," "Spirit of Culver," "Fifth Avenue Girl," "Swiss Family Robinson," "Laddie," and "Wagon Trail." You can write to him care of RKO-Radio studio, 780 Gower street, Hollywood, Cal.

Dear Miss Tinée: After seeing "The Great Lie" I got into an argument with my friend who also saw the same picture. I said that the woman who played the rôle of Sandra in this picture was Mary Astor. But my friend insists that I am wrong. Could you please settle this argument for us. Thanks a lot.

Sincerely, C. STARR.

Dear C. Starr: You're right! Mary Astor was Sandra Kovac.

BEAUTY at YOUR FINGER TIPS

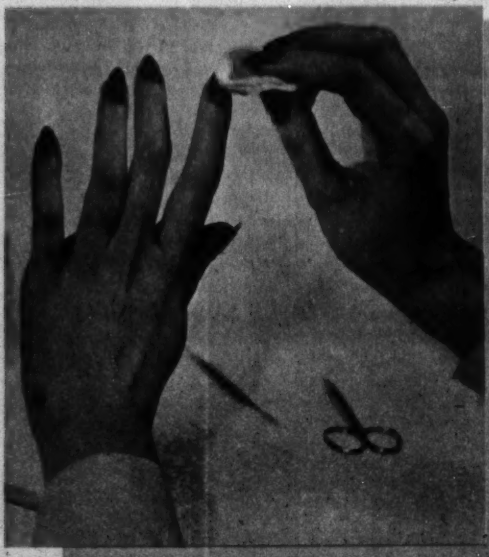
By ELEANOR NANGLE

DIFFICULT NAILS, like difficult children, respond to persuasion rather than force. The modern manicure bears no resemblance to the old-time one, which was more or less of a surgical operation. Cuticle cutting is avoided whenever possible and every step of the shaping, cleaning, and polishing ritual is gentle.

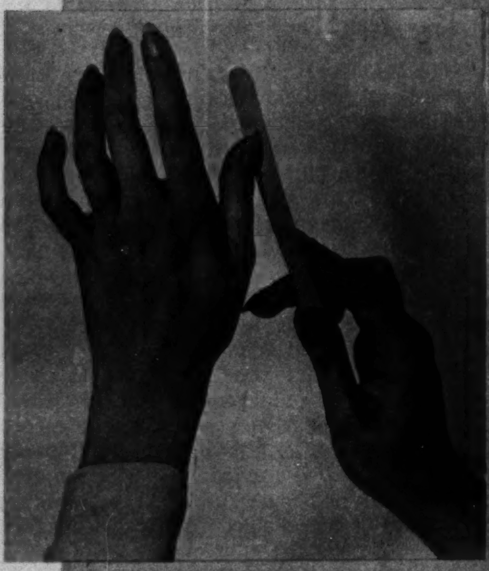
The habit of pushing cuticle back after each handwashing is one of the secrets of beautiful, smoothly groomed nails. If the cuticle is rough and stubborn it needs oiling to keep it naturally pliable rather than cutting. Shaping should be deft, using a light, flexible file or emery board and working with the minimum of pressure. Never, never file the nails close at the sides. Even the old method of digging under the nail tips has been abandoned; press cream in to soften the skin and never cleanse the nail tips with a sharp instrument. The less digging and scraping the better.

The same rule of gentleness applies to the action of preparations used on the nails. Strong polish removers should be avoided, and polishes should be of good quality. If the nails are delicate it's wise to give them an occasional vacation from lacquers and to polish them instead with the buffer.

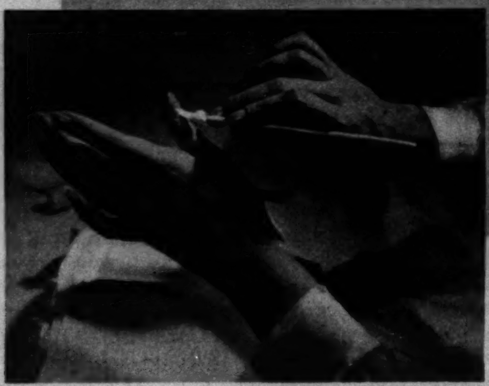
Nails need constant and tender care. Occasional professional manicures are a necessity, but between beauty shop visits the cuticle must be tended and the polish changed. It's easy to do this if you are patient and your touch is light.



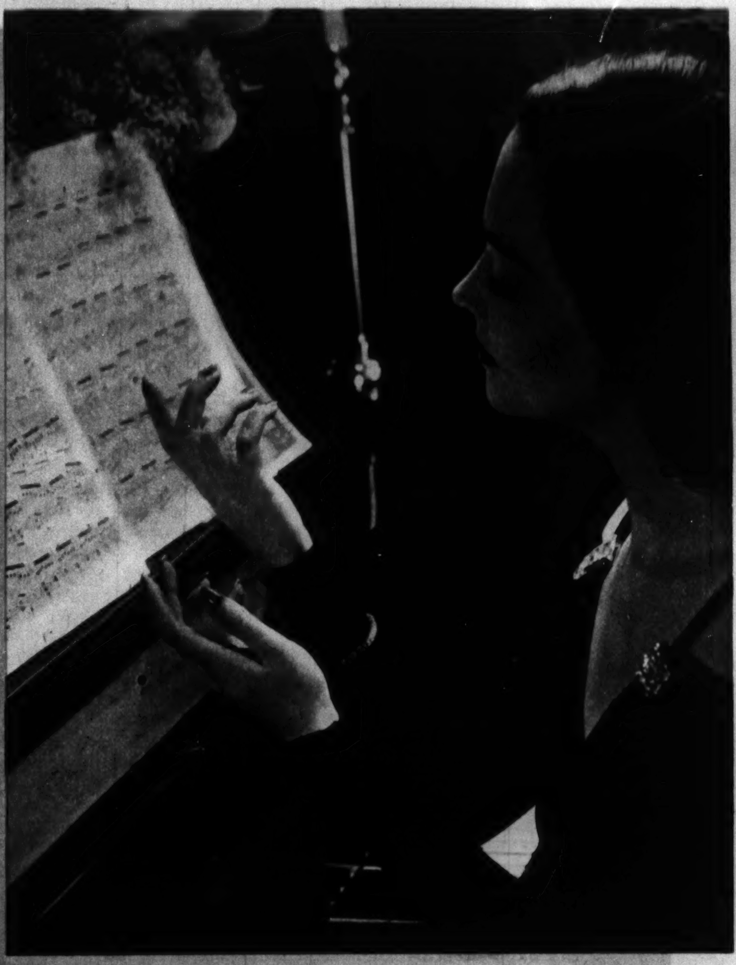
1 The beautifying manicure begins with gentle removal of the old polish. Pads saturated with an oily solution are tidy and efficient.



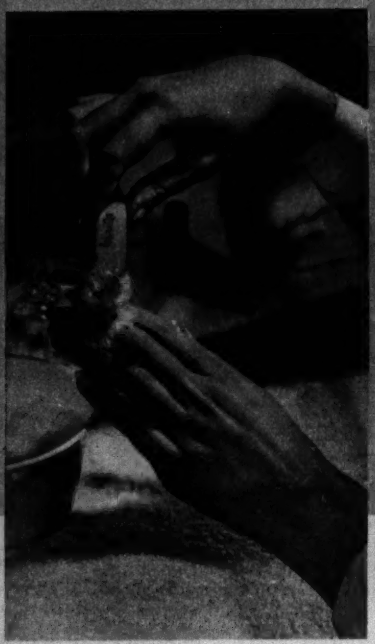
2 Don't bear down hard with file or emery board. Stroke lightly to shape the nails, and avoid filing close at the sides.



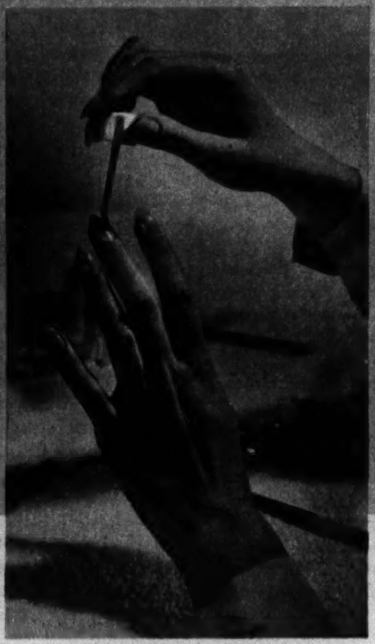
3 There's practically no surgery involved in the modern manicure. Apply cuticle softener, then persuade the flesh to fall back.



Pale hands, tipped with jewel-like nails. . . . One of the most alluring attributes of feminine beauty.



4 After shaping the nails and treating the cuticle soak briefly in warm suds. Scrub gently, but don't dig under the nail tips.



5 A transparent base applied before polish gives the nails better protection and a higher luster.

6 Apply polish in about three even strokes, with no excess liquid on the brush. Leave a tiny white rim at the tips.

7 Soft white hand skin is the perfect complement for well groomed nails. Finish the manicure with hand massage.

THE FORGING OF THE ANCHOR

By SAMUEL FERGUSON

Come, see the Dolphin's anchor forged! 'tis at a white heat now—
The bellows ceased, the flames decreased; tho, on the forge's brow,
The little flames still fitfully play thru the sable mound;
And fitfully you still may see the grim smiths ranking round;
All clad in leathern panoply, their broad hands only bare—
Some rest upon their sledges here, some work the windlass there.

And red and deep, a hundred veins burst out at every throe.
It rises, roars, rends all outright—O Vulcan, what a glow!
'Tis blinding white, 'tis blasting bright—the high sun shines not so!
The high sun sees not, on the earth, such fiery, fearful show!
The roof-ribs swarth, the candent hearth, the ruddy lurid row
Of smiths—that stand, an ardent band, like men before the foe!
As, quivering thru his fleece of flame, the sailing monster slow
Sinks on the anvil—all about, the faces fiery grow:
"Hurrah!" they shout, "leap out, leap out!" bang, bang! the sledges go;
Hurrah! the jetted lightnings are hissing high and low;
A hailing fount of fire is struck at every squashing blow;
The leathern mail rebounds the hail; the rattling cinders strew
The ground around; at every bound the sweltering fountains flow;
And, thick and loud, the swinking crowd at every stroke pant "Ho!"
Leap out, leap out, my masters! leap out, and lay on load!
Let's forge a goodly anchor—a bower thick and broad;
For a heart of oak is hanging on every blow, I bode;
And I see the good ship riding, all in a perilous road—
The low reef roaring on her lee; the roll of ocean poured
From stem to stern, sea after sea; the mainmast by the board;
The bulwarks down; the rudder gone; the boats stove at the chains;
But courage still, brave mariners—the bower yet remains!
And not an inch to flinch he deigns—save when ye pitch sky-high;
Then moves his head, as tho he said, "Fear nothing—here am I!"

Swing in your strokes in order! let foot and hand keep time;
Your blows make music sweeter far than any steeple's chime.
But while ye swing your sledges, sing; and let the burden be,
The anchor is the anvil-king, and royal craftsmen we!
Strike in, strike in!—the sparks begin to dull their rustling red;
Our hammers ring with sharper din—our work will soon be sped;
Our anchor soon must change his bed of fiery rich array
For a hammock at the roaring bows, or an oozy couch of clay;
Our anchor soon must change the lay of merry craftsmen here
For the yeo-heave-o, and the heave-away, and the sighing seamen's cheer—
When, weighing slow, at eve they go, far, far from love and home;
And sobbing sweethearts, in a row, wail o'er the ocean-foam.
In livid and obdurate gloom, he darkens down at last;
A shapely one he is, and strong, as e'er from cat was cast.

O trusted and trustworthy guard! if thou hadst life like me,
What pleasures would thy toils reward beneath the deep green sea!
O deep sea-diver, who might then behold such sights as thou?—
The hoary monsters' palaces!—Methinks what joy 'twere now
To go plumb-plunging down, amid the assembly of the whales,
And feel the churned sea round me boil beneath their scourging tails!
Then deep in tangle-woods to fight the fierce sea-unicorn,
And send him foiled and bellowing back, for all his ivory horn;
To leave the subtle sworder-fish of bony blade forlorn;
And for the ghastly-grinning shark, to laugh his jaws to scorn;
To leap down on the kraken's back, where 'mid Norwegian isles
He lies, a lubber anchorage for sudden shallowed miles—
Till, snorting like an under-sea volcano, off he rolls;
Meanwhile to swing, a-buffeting the far, astonished shoals
Of his back-browsing ocean-calves; or, haply, in a cove
Shell-strown, and consecrate of old to some Undine's love,
To find the long-haired mermaidens; or, hard by icy lands,
To wrestle with the sea-serpent, upon cerulean sands.

O broad-armed fisher of the deep! whose sports can equal thine?
The Dolphin weighs a thousand tons, that tugs thy cable-line;
And night by night 'tis thy delight, thy glory day by day,
Thru sable sea and breaker white the giant game to play.
But, shamer of our little sports! forgive the name I gave:
A fisher's joy is to destroy—thine office is to save.
O lodger in the sea-king's halls! couldst thou but understand
Whose be the white bones by thy side—or who that dripping band,
Slow swaying in the heaving wave, that round about thee bend,
With sounds like breakers in a dream blessing their ancient friend—
O, couldst thou know what heroes glide with larger steps round thee,
Thine iron side would swell with pride—thou'dst leap within the sea!

Give honor to their memories who left the pleasant strand
To shed their blood so freely for the love of fatherland—
Who left their chance of quiet age and grassy churchyard grave
So freely, for a restless bed amid the tossing wave!
O, tho our anchor may not be all I have fondly sung, Honor him for their memory whose bones he goes among!

There are just two things to remember: Put imagination before money, courage before convention . . . and you can have the home you want. At the price you want to pay, too.

It's being yourself that counts . . . and even a very small budget can't hold you down. Not if you know what you want and where to find it. Not if you let a good store help you.

BRAND

HOW SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH SHOWS WHY YOU GET BETTER RESULTS WITH PYREX WARE...

More than 50% of all oven heat is radiant heat. This is the same browning kind of heat that radiates from the sun. You know shiny metal surfaces reflect these rays back and waste them; while the clear glass sides and bottoms of your "Pyrex" utensils let these rays through to help you bake foods faster, more thoroughly, and with less fuel. That's why crusts are flakier and you get better results every time!

* UTILITY DISH (Above) has a dozen handy uses as a flat baking dish. For baking powder biscuits, chops, brownies, and candy. Ideal for good size rib roast and potatoes. 10½" size, only .... 50¢

COPYRIGHT, 1941, CORNING GLASS WORKS, CORNING, N.Y.

THE modern housewife gets a thrill out of cooking that grandmother never knew! On top of your stove—right over the open flame—sparkling "Pyrex" Flameware utensils turn out better, tastier food in less time and with less trouble than old style utensils. In the oven, clear "Pyrex" Ovenware dishes save fuel because glass transmits more heat and browns foods quicker. "Pyrex" ware washes more easily; never absorbs odors. And you can use every smart all-glass dish for cooking, serving and storing. See these items at thrifty prices at your favorite store today!

1 PYREX PERCOLATOR... an attractive Flameware addition to your kitchen and table service! Smooth, clean glass can't absorb odors or contaminate flavor. Even the pump is glass. See coffee brewed to your individual taste. 6-cup size $2.45

2 PYREX SAUCEPAN... Smart, different. Straight sides, flat bottoms save fuel. Detachable glass handles for serving and storage. Glass cover locks on. Three sizes. One qt. size $1.65

3 PYREX DOUBLE BOILER... transparent, easy-to-wash. Check water level and foods cooking, at a glance. Grand for your cream sauces, soups, formulas, icings. Two sizes. One qt. size $3.45

4 PYREX CASSEROLE that does double duty in your oven! Use casserole for scalloped dishes or as small roaster. Cover keeps food hot on the table or serves as separate pie plate. 1½ qt. size 65¢

CAPTAIN JUDAS WOULD NOT BE PATIENT WITH ANY OTHER PERSON... BUT SUCH A BEAUTY IS ALLOWED A FEW LITTLE PLEASURES... SUCH AS RUNNING OFF THE WATER FOR THE TRUCKS!
HOWEVER BY RAIDING EVERY WELL IN THE VICINITY, WE ARE NOW READY TO MOVE ON TO THE PROVINCES UNTOUCHED BY THE WAR! THE PROFIT ON THE SALE OF THE STOLEN TRUCKS WILL BE NO LESS BECAUSE OF THE DELAY!
MEANWHILE: SEVERAL MILES BACK ALONG THE PRIMITIVE ROAD....
BLESS BESS, RAVEN, HOW YOU EVER HOPE TO RECAPTURE THOSE TRUCKS FROM THAT CAPTAIN JUDAS, I'LL NEVER KNOW!
OH, YES, YOU DO, DUDE HENNICK... YOU ARE JUST PEEVED AT BEING GROUNDED!
IF THE LAST BOMBING RAID HADN'T CRIPPLED THE AIRPLANE, YOU'D BE STRAFFING THAT TRUCK TRAIN RIGHT NOW... WE'RE JUST GOING TO DO IT THE HARD WAY!
YEAH... BUT WE GO CRAWLING ALONG IN THIS MOTORIZED WAREHOUSE! BLESS BESS, WHAT A MESS!
THE STOLEN TRUCKS WILL MOVE SLOWER —AND THEY'LL ALL STOP IF ONE BREAKS DOWN! WE'LL CATCH THEM EVENTUALLY!
I'M GLAD WE HAVE YOUR DRIVERS IN THE BACK END.. YOU'D WANT TERRY AND ME TO JOCKEY THE TRUCKS HOME ONE AT A TIME!
LOOK! DUST CLOUD UP AHEAD! I THOUGHT THE TRACKS WERE QUITE FRESH! WE'RE GOING TO CIRCLE THE CONVOY AND MAKE AN AMBUSH!
YOW! SHE THINKS THIS IS A TANK!
THEY ARE HERE ON THE MAP! WE'LL GO CROSS-COUNTRY AND CUT THEM OFF AT THIS NARROW SPOT!
AND TO THINK I TURNED DOWN A NICE, SAFE TEST PILOT JOB! WELL, THIS IS GOING TO BE GOOD HEDGE-HOPPING PRACTICE!
WHILE IN CAPTAIN JUDAS' TRUCK...

Quink CLEANS A PEN AS IT WRITES

STOPS TWO-THIRDS OF PEN TROUBLES

DRIES ON PAPER 31% QUICKER

RICH, FULL-BODIED, BRILLIANT COLORS

The Parker Pen Co. makes this dandy exciting offer wholly and solely to introduce millions to a new and utterly different KIND of writing ink—an ink that actually cleanses a pen as it writes—a Parker or ANY OTHER pen.

This Ink—called Quink—contains a secret agent, a harmless ingredient that dissolves deposits left in pens by pen-clogging inks. Quink makes your pen a self-cleaner, and thus stops almost two-thirds of the troubles in fountain pens. It makes your pen work like a charm—helps keep it in your hands and out of repair shops—saves you annoyance, time, and money.

No More Clogged-Up Pens

That's why our chemists created Quink, although it took them three solid years and cost us close to $68,000. We wanted to guard pens—especially the 50 million Parkers—from ever being charged with poor service due to inks that clog and gum. So whether you use a Parker or some other pen, using Quink is now the finest protection you can give it. And this special offer is your best chance to try it.

Retailers' Song Books Won't Last Long

Your Quink will keep till you need it but your retailer's small supply of Walt Disney Song Books WON'T LAST LONG! So hurry.

And be sure to try Quink without using a blotter to see how quickly it dries ON PAPER—31% quicker than average of 4 others. It dries by STEPPED-UP PENETRATION—not by evaporation—hence it does NOT dry in your pen.

Its free-flowing, full-bodied richness and color-brilliance will delight you as no other ink you've ever used.

PERmanent or WASHable

You can have either kind you want—(1) PERmanent Quink (for all enduring records) is as permanent as the paper; or (2) WASHable Quink (for home and school) washes out without a trace if spilled on hands, clothes, rugs, etc. Yet Quink is never watery—never gummy.

Read list of 100 Song Hits at the right—then hurry to any store selling ink and get this big book that contains them all. Better cut out the REMINDER at right so you won't forget.

LUTHERAN RALLY AT CHILDREN'S HOME

STUDY BUSINESS AREA EXPANSION TO GUIDE ZONING

Plan Body Has Data on Growth.

Chicago's business and commercial areas are expected to continue to develop naturally after the proposed new zoning ordinance is adopted, just as they have in the past. That assurance was given last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the sub-committee that is preparing the new land use law for submission to the city council, probably next month.

The subcommittee is basing zoning changes on studies of how the more prosperous business localities grew before zoning came into use, Ald. Lindell said.

Because the present ordinance of 1923, the city's first venture into the field of zoning, set up several times as much commercial territory as the city requires, the drafters of the new ordinance are rezoning much of this space for residential use.

Plot Best Business Areas.

Their big problem at the outset was to determine which business zones had been unwisely established and which should be allowed to remain. No reliable data on the subject was available, so the Chicago Plan commission, of which Ald. Lindell is a member, undertook to determine scientifically which spots are best for business zones.

Commercial zones as delineated in the present zoning ordinance permit all kinds of businesses such as department stores, theaters, and gasoline stations, as well as light manufacturing. The new ordinance would set up a new "business" classification, which would permit only small stores and professional offices, restricting the heavier uses to commercial zones.

Visiting store owners personally and studying occupancy and income records, the commission's workers were able to map the approximate boundaries of the profitable portions of the larger business centers.

Where Trade Is Best.

They found that, whereas the present ordinance provides business zones in continuous strips on each side of most important thorofares, the natural tendency of trade areas is to cluster fairly closely about the intersections of section or half-section lines. The reason is that most main travel areas in the city and such transportation facilities as street cars and buses are on survey lines.

The plan commission workers established from various previous studies that there are 21 principal outlying business areas, most of which follow the section line rule. They are:

Devon-Western.
Lawrence-Kedzie.
Lawrence - Wilson - Broadway - Sheridan.
Lincoln-Ashland-Belmont.
Milwaukee from Logan Square to Wellington.
Milwaukee-Irving Park-Cicero.
Milwaukee from Division to North.
Chicago-Western.
Chicago-Pulaski.
Roosevelt-Halsted.
Roosevelt from Pulaski to Kedzie.
26th from Pulaski to Kedzie.
47th-Ashland.
47th-South Park.
63d-Halsted.
63d from Stony Island to Cottage Grove.
71st-Jeffery.
79th-Halsted.
92d-Commercial.
Michigan from 110th to 115th.

Look to Future.

Ald. Lindell said that while a few of these primary business areas have spread out laterally from the busy intersections where they began, most of them are bunched fairly closely about the crossing points. The same is true of the lesser trade areas in the city, to which the plan commission survey is being extended, he said.

The study suggests that even in undeveloped residential areas, the logical places for primary business zones are the points where section lines meet, and for secondary zones the junctions of half-section lines. The subcommittee believes the study shows that strip business zoning as practiced in the 1923 ordinance is a mistake that has held back many regions of the city.

CLUB SPONSORS FLOWER EXHIBIT IN EDISON PARK

The fourth annual flower show of the Home and Garden club of Edison Park will be held Tuesday afternoon and evening in the Methodist church at Oliphant and Pratt avenues.

One of the featured events of the exhibit will be a junior display, which is open to children under 16 years old. Husbands of club members are eligible to enter arrangements of flowers in a special division of the show. Proceeds, as well as jams, jellies, and cut flowers from the exhibit, will be given to the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild.

Mrs. H. R. Cross, general chairman of the flower show committee, will be assisted by Mrs. Ralph Jaquith, Mrs. T. C. Pemberton, Mrs. C. L. Johnson, Mrs. C. W. Pick, Mrs. C. O. Bachman, and Mrs. L. H. Nettnin.

When the Fat's Away, the Men (Puff) Can Play

"When it's a question of doing one or the other, we always say never let business interfere with pleasure."

That's not the statement of Beachcomber Bill or Mike the West Madison street playboy. It's merely the composite answer of the 140 members of the Irving club to the question, "What's the secret of your success?" And these men should know. They include presidents of large corporations, department store managers, architects, doctors, lawyers, dentists.

The statement may fall on incredulous ears in the vicinity of their offices where they assume all the characteristics of hard-working executives, maintaining the proper dignity and decorum. But stop by the Irving Park YMCA, 4251 Irving Park road, any noon, and you'll get a different picture. The Jekyll and Hyde contrast will amaze you.

Broker Is Oarsman.

You'll probably find Milton O. Highland, the club's president and an insurance broker in his "spare" moments, working up a sweat at the rowing machine. He's traded his immaculately pressed suit for a pair of white duck shorts, a T-shirt and a pair of sneakers. And instead of Mr. Highland, it's just plain Milt.

In the handball court, you're likely to discover a high speed game in progress. It's a safe bet that Ben Strauss, proprietor of a sporting goods store, will be "powing" them against the forward wall with the best of them. Ben has seen his 50th birthday come and go, maybe a few more, the boys at the club say, and he's added a few inches to his waistline since his University of Chicago days when he mowed down tacklers for Walter Eckersall.

Or racing on the anchored bicycles, you may see Bert S. Klee, department store executive, and Roy J. Piehl, vice president of an engineering supply company, emulating the Peden brothers, getting nowhere but registering mile after mile on the large dial on the wall in front of them.

After a stiff workout and a cooling swim in the pool, there's nothing like sitting around the "Knife and Fork club" trading ribs, downing a cheese on rye and joining in the mass kibitzing over the two rummy players at the end of the table.

More Fun, More Work.

"Actually the boys play as hard as they work," says William S. [Bill] Miller, executive secretary of the Irving Park YMCA. "A lot of them spend two or three hours a day at the club.

Ed Rabe, club secretary and president of a large knitting mill on the side remarks, "Don't know why it is, but it seems that the more time we spend over here the better our business goes. Why? You can draw your own conclusions."

"Of course what he really means," says Mr. Miller, coming to the rescue, "is that they have to get away from the grind every now and then. After a workout at the club, they come back relaxed and rarin' to go."

F. E. Hodek Jr., the club's first president and head of a porcelain enameling company, is an active member of the organization. "It started eight years ago," he recalls. "A bunch of the boys were sitting around chewing the fat and somebody says, 'Gosh, George, aren't you putting on a little weight?' and George answers, 'Well, you haven't exactly kept that schoolgirl figure yourself.' So before you know it we'd decided to organize a club to put an end to such talk. Now the boys keep a weight chart in the locker rooms and watch their avoirdupois as closely as the glamor girls in the movies."

ELSTON SADDLE CLUB HORSEMEN IN RODEO TODAY

Cow country atmosphere will prevail at the 8th annual rodeo and horse show of the Elston Saddle club at 5663 Elston avenue this afternoon, it was announced by Frank Jayne, general chairman. Most of the performers will be residents of the northwest side.

Those scheduled for trick and daredevil riding in the western style include Miss Gladys Buskey, Charles and Bud Thomas, Nick Angelacos, and Lois Bruhn. An authentic stagecoach with all the trappings will be driven by Edward West, a former 20-mule team driver.

Participants in the horse show events will include Miss Marion Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. Will Nottke, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stephenson, Miss Myrtle Alstrom, John Schaeffer, Miss Ruth Snowdon, Miss Sonje Heller, Jack Hoban, and Miss Audrey Snowdon.

SABIN MOTHERS CLUB TO DRAFT YEAR'S ACTIVITY

The Sabin Crippled Children Mothers club will hold this year's first meeting at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the school auditorium, 2216 West Hirsch street. Mrs. Christine D. Schmoldt, 5829 West End avenue, the new president, will greet members and outline the year's activities.

A membership tea will be held at 1:30 o'clock and new members will be introduced. Any one interested in assisting in work for crippled children is invited to join the club at this session.

The organization is devoted to raising funds for providing artificial limbs and other needs of handicapped children. It is also active in working to improve the vocational facilities available to Sabin school graduates.

Keeping Fit Is Fun for Irving Club Members

As far as Milt Highland (left) and Ed Boyle are concerned, five minutes on the stationary bikes is plenty. Milt is president of the Irving club, an organization for business executives and professional men with headquarters in the Irving Park YMCA, 4251 Irving Park road. The club has a membership of 150 northwest siders. After a fast game of handball and a refreshing swim in the club pool, L. R. Brink of Park Ridge relaxes for a rubdown by Karl Lundberg. Club facilities include squash courts, pingpong and billiard tables, sun lamps, electric light cabinets, lounge and dining room.

VOTE ON RURAL SCHOOL MERGER SET FOR SEPT. 27

Provide Ballot Places in Palatine Area.

Citizens in Palatine township and sections of Barrington, Ela, and Elk Grove townships will vote on the proposed grade school consolidation Saturday, Sept. 27. The election was announced by Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, upon receipt of a petition containing 495 signatures urging the move.

Polling places will be set up in each of the nine grammar schools of the districts. They will be open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. The district schools are located as follows:

District 10, situated partly in Palatine and Barrington townships, northwest corner of Freeman and Algonquin roads.

District 14, southeast corner of Rand and Dundee roads.

District 15, in village of Palatine.

District 17, Bridewell and Ela roads.

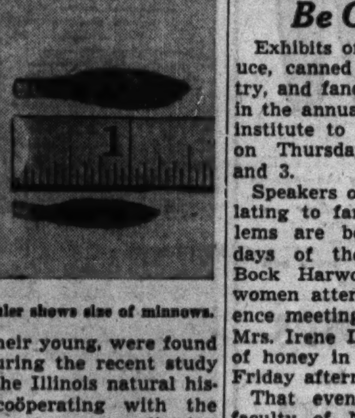
District 18, Algonquin and Ela roads.

District 19, situated partly in Palatine and Elk Grove townships, Hicks road south of Kirchoff road.

The petition was presented to Mr. Puffer by a citizens' committee headed by Harry E. Smith. A public meeting was held last Friday evening to consider the merger. The committee has just completed a survey to determine the number of children in the area of school and pre-school age.

If the consolidation is voted in, election of a new board of education will take place next month, Puffer said.

TINY MINNOWS HELP COMBAT MOSQUITOES ALONG DES PLAINES



Ruler shows size of minnows.

They are little fellows, these top feeding minnows, but the work they do in destroying larvae of mosquitoes means much to the dwellers along the Des Plaines river.

Great schools of the minnows, differing from most fish in that they give birth to their young, were found in the river during the recent study conducted by the Illinois natural history survey coöperating with the Cook county forest preserve district.

The top feeding minnows are not native to the Des Plaines and their cultivation in the river was the result of careful scientific planning. They were first brought to pools in the Chicago area by the state board of health from Carbondale, Ill., in 1926. Two years later the Des Plaines valley mosquito abatement district brought in a second shipment.

The minnows were studied by J. Lyell Clarke and those that survived experiments were placed in pools adjacent to the Des Plaines river and where bridges crossed the stream. One of the minnows is said to be capable of destroying the larvae of 200 mosquitoes a day.

EXPECT ADDISON OUTING TODAY TO DRAW 10,000

Youngsters Will Be Honored Guests.

Band concerts and choral music, home cooking, special religious services and gala fireworks display are expected to attract 10,000 persons of the Lutheran faith to the Lutheran Children's home in Addison today. The event is the 69th annual festival of the Lutheran Child Welfare association.

The formal program will open at 11 o'clock with services conducted both in English and German by the Rev. G. A. Gehrs, pastor of the Lutheran church of Crytsal Lake, and the Rev. William Danker of the Harvard Lutheran church. Religious services will be held again at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Choral Groups to Sing.

The choral groups who will sing during the morning festival services are St. Peter's mixed chorus of Arlington Heights, directed by A. W. Bathje, and the children's home chorus, directed by L. G. Heinemeier. In the afternoon there will be music by St. James male choir of Chicago, directed by T. Naeser, and the Chicagoland a cappella choir, directed by A. Beck.

Band music will be provided by the Peace and St. Andrew's Lutheran organization of Chicago, conducted by William J. Thurn, and the Immanuel Lutheran band of Elmhurst, whose director is William F. Bertram.

A committee of women, headed by Mrs. E. Abel, is preparing to serve noon and evening meals to the expected throng of 10,000 from the 125 Lutheran congregations in the Chicago area. Refreshment stands will be operated by a corps of 400 men under the chairmanship of J. Wagemann. As is customary at the annual festival, children of the home will be entertained in holiday style, with the fireworks show climaxing the program.

Continue Care of Children.

The children's home, which is supported by the Child Welfare association, has two sets of buildings in Addison which can house 350 children. Because of an extensive placement program in the last few years, only 220 youngsters now are residents at the home. About 200 others are either in boarding homes, free foster homes or in homes for adoption. In the course of a year the association plans the care of about 700 children.

One of the features of the home is a nursery which can accommodate 20 babies. Each infant has its own glass enclosed cubicle to offset the chances of contagion. A Christian day school also is operated at the home for the 180 children of school age, and is staffed by five teachers.

The association cares for any Lutheran child in the state that is in need of special care, whether dependent, neglected, rejected or in trouble. It makes every effort to keep children in their own homes and subsidizes homes if necessary when relief or mothers' pensions are inadequate.

Form Women's Auxiliary.

Most recent forward step was the formation of a women's auxiliary last Tuesday. Headed by Mrs. Selda Jaeger, the auxiliary lists 50 ladies aid organizations with a membership of 1,400 women.

The association policies are formulated by a board of control whose president is the Rev. B. H. Hemmeter, pastor of Mt. Olive Lutheran church and vice president of the English district in the Missouri synod.

The Rev. O. A. Groth ir vice president, Chris G. Mahnke, secretary; and Ernest Reich, treasurer. The Rev. Theodore Thormahlen of Elmhurst serves as executive secretary, the Rev. J. H. Mueller as assistant, and the Rev. M. K. C. Vetter as field secretary. Paul W. Jacobs is director of social work.

Members of the board are the Rev. F. E. Bartling, the Rev. William Gahl, Prof. Theo Kuehnert, W. F. Bertram, Mrs. Ada Bohnsack, Mrs. Louise Franke, Mrs. William Holtz, Mrs. Bertha Gareiss, Mrs. Selda Jaeger, Paul Amling, R. Klein, H. Buchholz, William Busse Jr., John A. Sauerman, Martin Daib, Fred Heinrich, and E. Tatge.

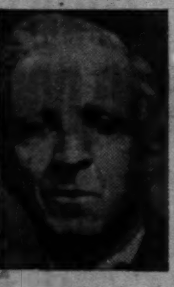
GEORGE PADDOCK AGAIN TO SEEK CONGRESS SEAT

10th District Member to Enter April Primary.



George A. Paddock.

Congressman George A. Paddock of the 10th congressional district, one of the two Cook county Republican members of the 77th congress, has announced that he will again seek the G. O. P. nomination in the April primary next year.

Paddock's announcement, the first from any of the incumbent Illinois representatives, was made at the insistence of numerous friends in the 10th district. It was made thru Ald. Clinton Merrick of Evanston, where Paddock has resided for many years. The district includes part of Cook county and all of Lake county.

It was accompanied by a copy of a letter from Congressman Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, minority leader of the house of representatives, praising his Evanston colleague's record and terming him "one of the ablest and best liked members of congress."

Letter of Praise.

"In his first term he was signally honored by being assigned to the major committee on interstate and foreign commerce," Martin wrote of Paddock. "That committee is one of the busiest and most important committees of the house. To it are referred the many complex problems of business, and thru Congressman Paddock's membership on that committee he is able to render great service to the state of Illinois and the middle west. He has won the confidence and respect of all his associates."

Paddock has long been active in Republican circles. When he was first elected to congress last year he was Evanston township committeeman and treasurer of the Cook county Republican central committee.

In the primary he was pitted against Drennan J. Slater, former state representative from the 6th senatorial district, and several lesser candidates. Paddock won the nomination easily, polling 37,897 votes as compared with 29,120 for Slater.

Beats Democrat Easily.

His Democratic opponent in the election was John Haderlein, whom he bested by the overwhelming vote of 199,418 to 125,827, the plurality of 73,591 being one of the largest ever compiled by the G. O. P. in the 10th district, which has never sent a Democrat to congress.

In both the primary and the election Paddock had the support of his predecessor, Ralph E. Church, who retired from congress to seek the Republican nomination for United States senator. Church was defeated and has made no announcement of any further plans in politics.

FOUR DAY YEAR BRINGS TEACHER TO RETIREMENT

Mrs. Louise Scheffner Quits at Funston.

The school year lasted only four days for Mrs. Louise Scheffner, teacher at the Funston school, 2010 North Central Park avenue. On Sept. 6 Mrs. Scheffner celebrated her 65th birthday and after 43 years of being "mother" of the school, she retired.

It might have been a little easier for both Mrs. Scheffner and the school had she been able to retire last June. The board of education pension law, however, requires that the teacher be at her desk until the actual date of her 65th birthday.

Mrs. Scheffner has taught every elementary grade and for 20 years had charge of the graduating class. She served for many years as assistant principal.

Likes All Grades.

"I like all grades," Mrs. Scheffner says. "Each has its problems and they're all interesting. The school is really my home and I hate to tear myself away."

Mrs. Scheffner finds the great difference between children today and those of 43 years ago just a matter of today's more varied outside interests. She thinks it a tragedy that most of today's youngsters don't know what they want to be when they grow up. The few who have decided want to go into aviation, beauty culture, teaching, or secretarial work, she says.

Mrs. Scheffner plans to spend most of her time working in her garden at her Elmhurst home. Always interested in flowers, during the last war Mrs. Scheffner led the planting of a vegetable garden in the school yard. There's no room for such a project now but most of her pupils have their own gardens, she says.

Know Little of War.

None of the grade school children have any conception of today's war problems, according to Mrs. Scheffner. The only war comments she has heard pertain to a cousin or an uncle leaving for training camp. "Their unconcern is a good sign," she says.

Altho illness prevented her attending the last graduation exercises, a band of her former pupils gave her a party in the neighborhood.

The teachers at the school surprised her with a luncheon party on her birthday and presented her with a watch.

Wedding Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Paperno, 2634 Augusta boulevard, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Shirley, to Jerome Kravitz, son of Mrs. Sarah Kravitz of 4952 North Spaulding avenue. The ceremony will take place Saturday evening in the Casino of the Congress hotel.

SADDLE, SPURS CLUB TO HOLD ROUND-UP RIDE

Members of the Schurz Saddle and Spurs club will hold a fall round-up ride at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The group will meet at Christensen's Riding academy, 1508 North Clark street.

A fall round-up dance will be given by the club at 9 o'clock Saturday evening at the Lions' Den ballroom, 4300 West North avenue. Fred Dudek and Miss Marie Schvilaje are in charge of arrangements, assisted by Miss Helen Hammer.

The Saddle and Spurs club was organized at Schurz Evening school in 1937. Vito Balducci is president, Eric Lenell, vice president, Miss Hammer, secretary, and Miss Genevieve Paluch, treasurer.

Oriole Park Community Club to Elect Officers

Members of the Oriole Park Community club will elect officers Thursday evening at Norwood Park fieldhouse. George E. Wagner, president of the club, said the election will be the first in which the new by-laws, limiting officials of the organization to two years of service, would be observed.

PLAN INSTITUTE FOR 7TH DISTRICT CLUBS THURSDAY

Mrs. Burton A. Noyes. [Hoffman Photo.]

Mrs. Paul Kirkpatrick, conservation department chairman of the 7th district in the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will head the conservation discussion at the 7th district institute, Thursday, at the Jefferson Park Congregational church, Giddings street and London avenue.

According to Mrs. Burton A. Noyes, new district president, the institute will commence at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Sidney Fahrner, chairman of the district's motion picture department, will take charge of a discussion of the benefits of visual education. She reported that her department will endeavor to have visual education included as a required unit of credit in teachers' colleges and normal schools.

Departmental chairmen and presidents of 7th district clubs will meet at 3:30 for a reception and tea.

Irving Park Catholic Young Women.

Members of the club and their guests will return today from a week-end party held at Starved Rock state park.

Mayfair Junior Woman's Club.

Miss Myrtle Reading.

The formal installation of officers of the Mayfair Junior Woman's club will be held Thursday at the Mayfair fieldhouse. Mrs. Caroline Rafetto will act as installing officer and Mrs. Lois Armstrong will be flag bearer at the event, which will be attended by members of the senior club.

Those who are to be installed include: Miss Myrtle Reading, president; Miss Eleanor Puente, vice president; Miss Gertrude Weissgerber, 2d vice president; Mrs. Eleanor Pidgeon, recording secretary; Mrs. Grace Akin, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Audrey Werstein, treasurer.

Women of the Moose.

Two motion pictures, one showing work by the American Red Cross in foreign lands and the other depicting progress of that organization in the United States, will be featured Tuesday evening at a meeting of the war relief and publicity committees of the Albany Park Women of the Moose. Mrs. Clara Magara will head the war relief program. Mrs. Daisy Ivett is publicity chairman.

Portage Park Juniors.

Members of the Portage Park Young Woman's club will gather for the first meeting of the season on Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Robert E. Abbe, 2704 Cortland street. Mrs. Abbe will have charge of the meeting.

RAINBOW FLEET TO SAIL IN TITLE REGATTA TODAY

The bright sails of the Rainbow fleet, park district dinghies, will billow at 1 o'clock this afternoon in the annual championship regatta at the Burnham park lagoon. The fleet consists of 36 10 foot sailing dinghies constructed in park fieldhouses by boys and girls who joined the organization.

The regatta will be run under the rules of the Lake Michigan Yachting association, which provided the material for building the dinghies. Only members under 20 years old are eligible to compete. The squadron which is represented by the winning crew will hold the city championship trophy until next year.

The organization now has 425 members, who had to pass tests in seamanship, swimming, safety abilities and knowledge of boat handling and navigation. The dinghies may be sailed in the lagoons at Diversey harbor, Burnham harbor, or Calumet park.

OPERETTA HOUR WILL BE 9:45-11 DURING OCTOBER

"Merry Widow" Opening Show Oct. 4.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Because Chicago will continue with daylight saving time thru October the Chicago Theater of the Air will be presented for four weeks over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network from 9:45 to 11 p. m. The first production will be "The Merry Widow," by Franz Lehar on Saturday, Oct. 4.

The Theater of the Air is to return to W-G-N and Mutual in response to the appeal of a multitude of last year's operetta listeners. The schedule for this season calls for 26 operettas, half of them favorites of the 1940-'41 season. The remainder will be equally beloved scores slated for their first radio appearance.

The program will be heard at 8:45 p. m. starting in November.

Col. McCormick to Speak.

The plan for the operetta programs will include an address by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who has been heard thru the summer on the Saturday night Chicagoland hour.

This season the Theater of the Air will be on the air 1 hour and 15 minutes, a quarter hour longer than last season. William R. Bacher, director of programs and production, who will again direct the operettas, said that the added time will make possible a fuller and more desirable treatment of each operetta than could be given in the past.

Singing stars of the opening production, "The Merry Widow," will be Marion Claire, prima donna in all 20 of last season's operettas, and Allan Jones, romantic tenor of the opera and screen.

List of Productions.

Then, on successive Saturday nights, there will be "New Moon," Oct. 11, with Thomas Thomas, New York baritone; "Sari," Oct. 18, with Igor Gorin; "Sweethearts," Oct. 25, with John Carter, star of opera, the concert stage, and radio, and "The Red Mill," Nov. 1, again with Carter. Miss Claire will sing the soprano lead in each of these productions.

Later in the season the Theater of the Air will offer "The Vagabond King," "Naughty Marietta," "The Mikado," "Hansel and Gretel," "Belle of New York," "Pinafore," "The Desert Song," "Rose of Algiers," "La Bohême," "I Pagliacci," and "Carmen."

Singing stars to be heard with Miss Claire in various of these operettas are Jan Peerce, John Brownlee, Charles Kullman, Frederick Jagel, Robert Weede, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of the Chicagoland hour.

F. COUGHLIN TO SOUND OFF ON SOUND EFFECTS

Francis Coughlin, continuity writer for W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system, will be a guest speaker Thursday, Sept. 25, on the 1941 Theta Sigma Phi, journalism sorority, fall lecture series at the Hotel Hamilton, 20 South Dearborn street.

A pioneer in the early days of radio, Mr. Coughlin's experience dates from the "cat whisker" sets up to frequency modulation, radio's latest step forward. His speech will be a down to earth discussion entitled: "Sounding Off On Sound Effects and Continuity."

SPY EPISODES IN 'LINDA'S FIRST LOVE' PROGRAM

More thrilling escapades for Linda, Daisy, and Danny in "Linda's First Love" radio serial are to be aired over W-G-N and the Mutual network Monday thru Friday at 9:45 a. m., starting tomorrow.

Dr. Danny Grogan, member of the secret service division of the army, narrowly misses death when a suspected espionage agent, Kurt Tollman, plants Danny in the path of toppling masonry.

But this is merely a prolog to the adventures in store for Linda, Daisy, and Danny before the week's end.

Starts Own Show

Virginia Simms, who became famous with Kay Kyser when they were at the Blackhawk and on W-G-N, is leaving the Kyser College of Musical Knowledge on NBC, and starting a show of her own at 8:55 p. m. next Friday on WBBM-CBS. She also has a new long term movie contract.

It's graduation time for Ginny Simms, prettiest pupil in Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge, aired at 9 p. m., Wednesdays, over WMAQ-NBC. After four years of singing with Kyser and his orchestra, Ginny and the "Old Professor" are parting.

When Kay and his boys leave for the east soon, Ginny will remain in Hollywood to devote her full time and attention to screen work for RKO and a new program of her own on CBS Friday evenings. Ginny made her film debut in Kyser's first starring film, had a better spot in her second show, and is one of the hits of his current "Playmates."

ROLE OF FARMER IN DEFENSE TO BE FORUM SUBJECT

"Farmers and Defense" will be the topic discussed during the University of Chicago Round Table broadcast at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Participating in the broadcast will be Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, T. W. Schultz, head of the agricultural economics department at Iowa State college, Ames, and William H. Spencer, dean of the school of business, University of Chicago.

Dr. Bradley Will Return to W-G-N Next Sunday

Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the People's church since 1912, will return to W-G-N next Sunday. He will be heard on W-G-N Sunday thru Friday at 10:30 p. m. He will replace Donald McGibeny. Dr. Bradley's broadcasts will consist of comments on national and international affairs, human interest stories, and constructive, inspirational addresses.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 15.

Gardeners living in suburbs where evergreens flourish may plant at this time. Replace poor soil with good fresh soil. Buy good, well grown stock that is baled and balled; have the holes ready for the reception of the plants and plant immediately. Water as the hole is filled around the roots and leave a depression for holding water. Syringe the tops several times.

Decidious shrubs make a nice contrast when planted with evergreens and especially fine are a few red barked dogwood.

Tuesday, Sept. 16.

Bulbs of various kinds may be purchased now. Try a few early narcissus, the paperwhites, in gravel and water; they will do well in Vermiculite, a light flaky browning material that holds moisture. Place several bulbs in the container, fill with water and stand in a cool, dark, cellar, closet or other place until well rooted. Then place in the light window.

A few bulbs will flower without soil or water by simply placing several on a saucer. Among these are autumn crocus [colchicum] with beautiful pale lavender flowers. The Chinese sacred lily does delightfully in pebbles and water and the amaryllis will do the same. The latter should be kept growing until the leaves turn yellow and then allowed to rest until spring.

Wednesday, Sept. 17.

The hardy chrysanthemums are coming into flower. Apply commercial plant food when the buds show and keep well watered. Just before frost lift and pot a few and remove to the house for indoor blooming.

Divide spring and summer flowering perennials and plant in rich soil, but wait until spring to transplant autumn flowering kinds. The latter do not have time to become established before freezing weather and are likely to winter freeze.

Thursday, Sept. 18.

Gardeners should organize a neighborly club to cut and burn vacant weed infested lots. Millions of seeds are destroyed, insect harbors are burned and the gardener's work reduced the following year.

Hardy lily bulbils can be collected and sown in the frame and they will grow the following season. Fuchsias that have flowered can be stored until spring, started into growth, the young growths used as cutting materials and the old plants cut back and grown again.

Friday, Sept. 19.

Saving tender water lily plants during winter is often a problem, and often the plants are lifted about frost time, the leaves and roots cut back, a pit dug and the plants placed in it. The whole is securely covered with any available material. If no facilities are available whereby the plants can be kept over, purchase strong plants in spring and plant toward the end of May or the first week in June.

Saturday, Sept. 20.

With fall here tomorrow and this date being the time when the first light frost can be expected, it is wise to get all tender plants under cover or temporarily protected. Keep the lawn cut as usual. Order all trees that are to be fall planted.

PLANE DESIGNER AT 15 MAPS OUT HIS OWN CAREER

Wants to Graduate to Larger Ships.

Airplanes crashing into houses are old stuff to the people who live near McCormick road and Pratt avenue. "It's just the boys flying their model planes again," they mutter and call the glazier for another pane of glass.

Ringleader of the model plane enthusiasts is Gordon Morez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Morez, 4525 Foster avenue. At 15 Gordon has won eight prizes in hobby shows with his planes. This year he won second place among 1,400 entries in the class B gas engine model contest of the Academy of Model Aeronautics.

Designs His Own.

Gordon designs his own planes and claims that his seldom crash. "Some day I'm going to have a plane of my own but I'm not going to fly it. I'm going to sit in an office and design some more," he says.

He belongs to the model airplane club at Lane High school and wants to study aeronautical engineering classes in college. He plans to attend Armour institute.

Gordon built his first plane at the age of 5, nailing wing shaped pieces of wood to the back porch floor. As soon as he was old enough to handle more delicate tools he started building tiny models from 10 cent kits.

Earns Money for Engines.

Many of these he sold for prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.50. Those funds and the money he earned caddying were used to buy the two gas engines which he uses on his planes now. The engines cost from $16 to $25 each and Gordon estimates the value of one of his completed planes at $30.

HARMONIOUS USE OF WOOD GIVES CHARM TO HOME

Dove Gray Finish Is Used Thruout House.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The harmonious use of beautiful wood is an outstanding impression of the new home of Dr. W. A. Schimmel, 630 North Belmont, Arlington Heights.

The architect, W. F. McCaughey, Pickwick building, Park Ridge, designed the house in a modified California ranch type, using stone gray tapestry brick for the lower story and garage walls and rough sawed batten striped cypress boards for the second story.

The interior treatment possesses many features of distinction and interest.

Wood Finish Is Gray.

The wood thruout is finished in a dove gray which supplies the background for the interior decorations. The furnishings are a combination of French provincial and California ranch house.

The large living room with a great 30 paneled window in the front has a ceiling of 6 inch V-jointed fir planking and 6 by 10 chamfered beams. The walls of both rooms are lightly textured of white plaster, the wood trim is oak, and the fireplace has a black marble face edged with a rope twisted oak moulding.

Antique Brass Lights.

There is the same ceiling treatment in the dining room with its large draw table, its rush bottom chairs, and draw drapes in turquoise, terra cotta, and yellow. Four bracket fixtures in antique brass supply the lighting and there's a beige and brown patterned rug on the floor.

As one looks thru the house from the front hall the full glass west wall of the breakfast room gives a view of the garden and pines. Here the walls are papered with an apple blossom pattern on turquois blue and a brass bowled light with a pewter shade hangs from the ceiling.

There is a convenient service entrance which leads both to the kitchen and to the doctor's den. This den can be used as a supplementary office and its treatment is the type to appeal to a masculine eye. It is paneled and trimmed with 6, 8, and 10 inch V-jointed grayed oak planks and furnished with oak furniture that has a suggestion of Viking sturdiness.

Red Floor in Den.

The desk chair is studded with brass nails and backed in red-orange leather, bookcases are on each side of the window, and the red and beige checks in the drapes relate to the red tile linoleum floor pattern. The final masculine touch, however, is the 41 pound wahoo which hangs on the paneled wall—a proud trophy of Dr. Schimmel.

Mrs. Schimmel is especially delighted with the treatment of wood thruout the house because of the ease of maintaining it.

Porch Off Bedroom.

In the master bedroom large hydrangeas in rose and gray greens pattern the walls, with birch trim and doors supplying the gray-beige color, and the furniture is French provincial in spirit. An open porch is reached thru this room, directly over a large screened porch on the ground level.

Grayed oak furniture in a ranch house style is the perfect choice for the boys' room. Here the paper is bridle and spur in red, green, and white on deep blue. There are sturdy red leather hassocks and red embroidered names of the boys on the rough cream colored bedspreads. Another very masculine room, with a door to an upper deck and over this deck the branches from a spreading tree close to the house.

Where Trade Thrives

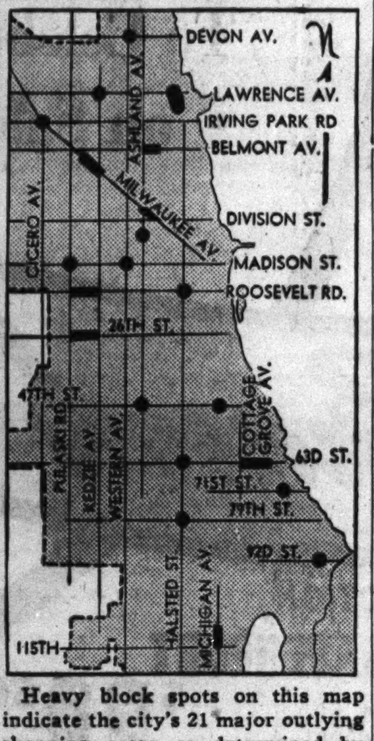
This map of one of Chicago's 21 major outlying business areas shows how successful businesses tend to cluster about important street intersections. The dotted line shows the approximate boundary of the more successful stores as revealed in a survey by the Chicago plan commission, based on such factors as trade area served and constancy of building occupancy. The keyed portions show the commission's zoning recommendations to the framers of the proposed new land use ordinance. These regions are now zoned as commercial.



Heavy block spots on this map indicate the city's 21 major outlying shopping areas as determined by studies made by the Chicago plan commission. The survey established that most of the important trade centers grew about the junctions of section and half-section lines.

DEFENSE TO RULE WOMEN'S CLUBS

OWNERS BESTOW GARBAGE DUMP ON ALDERMAN

Sonnenschein Says It's to Be a Park.

Hundreds of property owners from 22d street south to Archer avenue and from Western avenue west to Pulaski road have watched and smelled with growing concern the mountain of refuse and garbage covering 18 acres in the 22d ward at 3300 south, between Kedzie avenue and St. Louis. Last Monday night the property owners had a meeting scheduled at Svoboda's hall, 3002 South Trumbull avenue, to complete the formation of the Southwest Neighbors association, organized for the purpose of stopping dumping at the site.

Several days before the organization meeting the leaders of the proposed association were surprised by a report that Le Roy and Ralph Stepp, owners of the 18 acres of property, were deeding the property to Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d] to be used as a public playground. Attorney Loren Bush Rockey, representing the Stepp brothers, says the property has been in the Stepp family for years and that it once was a farm.

Débris Towers High.

The property was used by the West City Dumping company, whose offices are on the property at 34th street and Spaulding avenue. Private scavenger companies have made use of the plot. In some places the plateau of trash and garbage is as high as a three story building.

Ald. Sonnenschein says: "Before I accept the deed to the property, which I will then turn over to the city of Chicago, I want the mound leveled." The alderman estimates that it will require dumping for at least a year to do this, but that in the meantime he will have sod planted on the west side of the property. He said there also is a question concerning delinquent taxes to be settled.

Altho it was reported that the dumping of garbage had been stopped on July 1, a visit to the site revealed huge mounds of garbage in evidence last week. The visit made to the site on Sept. 4 showed that trucks are still arriving with loads of refuse. One truck carried a load of malt. Strewn over the heap were old papers, truckloads of building material wastes and sawdust. Flies were thick and officers of the new association report that rats are rampant.

Sees Rosy Future.

Ald. Sonnenschein avers, however, that in several years this will be a playground with grass and play equipment for the children of the neighborhood. The 18 acre tract, in the heart of an industrial area, has the drainage canal as its south boundary. Illinois Central tracks run along the north line.

The first action taken by property owners to have dumping stopped was in October, 1940. A petition signed by 350 residents was presented to Ald. Sonnenschein. The committee reported that the alderman promised there would be no dumping.

Since the dumping continued, the property owners called a meeting on Aug. 28 for the purpose of organizing. The alderman was invited but could not attend.

Says Campaign to Continue.

The next meeting was set for Sept. 8 and it was just previous to this that the move to deed the property was reported. Frank A. Zak, temporary chairman, reported that 200 property owners attended the August meeting but that only 70 turned out for the September meeting after the story of the playground.

"We are going to continue with our organization," said Mr. Zak. "If this pile of filth is to be made into a playground, we want to help the alderman with his project."

Ald. Sonnenschein said: "I believe this project to be just as big as the subway. The people of the community have been complaining about the dump because of the odors in recent years. The dump was here long before I took office."

20 Year Residents.

The resident property owners in the area are mostly tradesmen and craftsmen. There are carpenters, printers, plasterers, and painters. They are of Bohemian, Slovenian, Croatian, and Polish descent. The average length of time the people have occupied their homes is 20 years. The blocks are lined with cozy brick two story houses and bungalows with white starched curtains at the windows. Front lawns are green and free from weeds.

Mr. Zak says: "We had to laugh at the city conducting a rat abatement campaign and permitting that mountain of filth to be piled in our neighborhood. We are organized to see that this dumping comes to an end. We have no political affiliations."

George Pevic has been elected president of the new organization which applied for its charter at the meeting last Monday night. Angelo Knezovich is vice president. Mr. Zak is treasurer and Miss Anne A. Havlik is secretary.

Members of Committees.

Members of the ways and means committee are Edward Petrzilka, Charles Dobry, Alex Novak, Miss Elizabeth Tichava, Miss Mildred Hula, Miss Angeline Patla, John Staroba, and Miss Mary Tichy.

Members of the publicity committee are James Kazda, Charles Havlik, and Victor Tichava.

Italian Grape Festival Adds a Colorful Scene to America's Harvest Celebrations

The centuries old grape festivals of Italy have added their color and joy to the variety of harvest celebrations that decorate the American scene. The West Side Community center, a unit of the Catholic Youth Organization, last week launched its second annual grape festival at Lexington street between Racine and Ada streets. Being a harvest festival food plays an important role and here Joe Caduto (left) and Joe Antonnello are enjoying beer between bites of pizza, a cake, offered by Mrs. Jack Caliendo.

Like most celebrations the grape festival has a queen—this one is Mary Romano, 633 South Aberdeen street. She is lending her queenly presence to a doll booth.

It doesn't take long for youngsters to get hungry at a carnival, so Mrs. Sally Portillo, 1500 Flournoy, purchases some cannoli for Olga, Baby Jane, Armeda, and Hector. Mrs. Frances Pellegrino, 2066 Polk street, is doing the serving.

The little miss who is putting on her very best native dress to the smiling approval of mama is Louise Panico, 6 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Panico, 631 South Aberdeen street. The carnival scene was colorful with bright Italian peasant and American clothes.

Those who are going to serve the food to the hungry throngs must get an early start. Mrs. Gaelano De Fonso and Mrs. Yolanda Moelone are on the job early. Mrs. Moelone puts the sausages on the spit for the fire. In the next picture Costantina Palete is placing the cooked sausages into the bread to complete the sandwiches while Rosa Mazza keeps the next batch smoking.

Tho carnival is in the air religion is not forgotten. This group had attended services in Our Lady of Pompeii church, 1424 Lexington street, Thursday evening before the gayer events of the celebration started. The carnival will run for 10 days and attracts thousands of the Italian colony and their friends.

SIXTH DISTRICT IS GIVEN THEME FOR GUIDANCE

Study of Nutrition Is One Phase.

More than 6,000 west side and suburban women will return to their clubrooms this month for the beginning of the 1941-'42 season of education, social events, and philanthropy transacted by the 6th district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

By order of the general federation president, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore, the 6th district, along with women thruout the nation, have been given the theme "National Defense" to guide them in thought and action for the year.

With the Red Cross organization making bandages and with the absence of air raid rehearsals so far in Chicago, the 6th district president, Mrs. J. F. Johnson, has arranged her program of "National Defense" on two main subjects.

Will Study Dietetics.

First, the women will study ditetics and nutrition, believing that well nourished people are an important item in defense of the country. Second, they will study the constitution to determine just what they are defending and how it can best be done.

To the program of study Mrs. Johnson has contributed a motto for the women in the district's 32 senior clubs and the 18 junior auxiliaries. It reads: "It's going on and up that's the fun of study, not arriving at the place; arriving is the end."

The study of the constitution in the 6th district will be directed by Mrs. D. H. Johnson, chairman. She will provide club departments with kits of lessons and literature entitled "Early American History." Last year the Berywn Civic club chose this topic for study and now will continue with an advanced course.

Courses on nutrition will be offered thru the public health department headed by Mrs. F. J. Christenson and the public welfare department headed by Mrs. Milford Burrows. A list of experts on dietetics and food values will speak before the individual clubs. Members also will study consumer problems, housing, and educational facilities.

Get Acquainted Rally.

The first board meeting for the district was held on Thursday and served as a get acquainted rally for the new officers and chairmen. Mrs. Johnson's corps consists of Mrs. Chester W. Hunter, and Mrs. Frank W. Ault, vice president; Mrs. Carl Friedley, recording secretary; Mrs. Thomas Earl Turner, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. W. C. Detwiler, treasurer. The directors are Mrs. Frank H. Drobish, Mrs. Frank J. Kotalik, and Mrs. Frank G. Hinman.

The first district meeting will be held on Oct. 9 when representatives from all clubs will assemble at the Washington Boulevard Methodist church, Austin avenue at Washington, for a program arranged by Mrs. Hunter. The hostess groups will be the Austin Home Culture club and the Neighborhood Civic club.

The opening district event will be the annual flower show on Saturday and Sunday in the Garfield park conservatory. This will be open to the public from 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon until 10 o'clock in the evening and from 10 o'clock Sunday morning until 7 o'clock in the evening.

A preshow luncheon will be held at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Graemere hotel at which the judges will be guests of the garden department. After the luncheon a preview of the show will be given by William C. Blaesing, acting chief horticulturist of Garfield park conservatory.

Flowers for Children.

Flowers from the exhibit will be sent to the children in Cook County hospital. Mrs. Frederick W. Wilmot is the general show chairman, assisted by Mrs. Perry Wilson, Mrs. D. C. Locke, Mrs. John Krizan, Mrs. Charles Fuller, Mrs. L. M. Kent, Mrs. Joseph Shafer, Mrs. H. H. Schoen, Mrs. L. E. Fischer, Mrs. W. H. Firnhaber, Mrs. J. E. Dwyer, Mrs. Edward L. Mockler, Mrs. C. W. Miller, Miss Elaine Trinka, Miss Jean Bartusch, Mrs. Henry Grotheer, Mrs. W. W. Brenner, Mrs. William C. Smith, Mrs. Rowland Morrison, Mrs. Richard McCoppin, Mrs. R. B. McDonald, and Mrs. L. A. Shapnack.

Mrs. Johnson, in explaining that the group avoids controversial subjects or else has both sides of the question discussed at the same meeting, announced that the international relations department will study "outh American relations, following the program last year, and will avoid the tangle of European relations. The chairman of this department is Mrs. Jesse Fay Anderson.

The Junior club women, headed by Mrs. Ellis Lewis, will interest the juniors in Braille work. Last year the junior auxiliaries designated their philanthrophy as one for underprivileged girls. The junior past presidents provided violin lessons for a talented girl and the Congress park juniors sen gifts of toilet articles to invalids. The Cicero Juniors provided eye glasses. Some of this philanthropy will be continued in addition to the Braille work.

Will Study Legislation.

Casual Airport Visit Starts Careers for Whole Family

One Sunday afternoon decided the future of the four little Johnsons who used to be model airplane fans. Their father, Roscoe H. Johnson, 5934 Ohio street, took them to the Elmhurst airport one day in 1932 so they could see how much their little planes looked like the big ones.

The four little Johnsons, Roscoe Jr., Fred, James, and Alice, got so excited about the airplanes that Mr. Johnson bought one. It was a two passenger American Eagle, a second-hand plane at the airport being repaired.

Fly Before They Drive Cars.

When Mrs. Johnson was informed of the purchase she almost fainted. She is the only Johnson who is not a flyer and who definitely will not be one. She said she is afraid when she gets up and looks down. Every one of the children has made or intends to make aviation a career. All of them could fly a plane before they could drive a car.

Every Sunday afternoon Mr. Johnson flew his children on a trip to Aurora, Joliet, Milwaukee or as far as Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Johnson always stayed home. She says she never worried unless they stayed away awfully lat . In the days when the sound of an airplane overhead still brought people out of their houses and made children stop at play and scan the horizon, the little Johnsons were flying high.

Son Becomes Their Mechanic.

Mr. Johnson is employed as traffic manager for United Press. The family rent a modest bungalow in Austin. They saved a little money on their expensive hobby when Fred,

MARMION LISTS 423 STUDENTS FOR FALL TERM

For the second consecutive year, the enrollment of Marmion Military academy, Aurora, has increased more than 10 per cent. The present registration of 423 cadets is the largest in the history of the academy. Of this number, 146 are boarders who will live on the campus. Three new teachers have been added to the staff. They are the Rev. F. Maurice Patrick, O. S. B., chaplain; Capt. John O'Grady, who will instruct mathematics, and Capt. Alfred Schaefer, who will teach science and serve as recreational director. Classes began last Thursday morning.

WEST SUBURBAN COLLEGES READY FOR NEW TERMS

Gymnasium Being Built at Wheaton.

Students returning to Wheaton college this fall will find a new $155,000 physical education building under construction. Enrollment prospects were said to make the new gymnasium imperative at this time since student applications exceed those of a year ago. Enock C. Dyrness is the registrar.

Wheaton's enrollment of 1,150 students came from 44 states and 15 foreign countries last year and a similar cosmopolitan group is anticipated this fall. Registration will continue to Sept. 18. The freshman class rally was held yesterday.

Offer Two New Majors.

New majors will be offered in secretarial studies and home economics. Miss Mildred Claire Reeby will direct the new course in secretarial work. Miss Reeby for four years has served as secretary for the commission on institutions of higher education of the North Central association.

For two years Wheaton has offered the civil aeronautics course and recent appropriations from the federal government assure continuation. Dr. Paul Stanley will be in charge of ground instruction. John Jaenicke will be the flight instructor.

The new physical education building has been considered an urgent need. The present gymnasium was built in 1898 when the student body was about one-tenth what it is today.

Building at North Central.

At North Central college, Naperville, where freshmen and other new students will start to enroll Tuesday, work is under way on reconstruction of the south wing of the Old Main which was damaged in July by a fire caused by lightning. The damage was approximately $14,000.

To harmonize architecturally with the north wing, the south wing is being rebuilt with a mansard style roof, which will result in more space for the fourth floor. The remodeled wing will be utilized for a laboratory theater, storage rooms, forensic and office room, and a soundproof studio and control room.

Prof. Clara Bleck, dean of women and professor of French at North Central, has been given a year's leave of absence on account of ill health. Miss Alice Meier has been appointed acting dean of women. Miss Annette Sicre will teach the French classes. Miss Christena Aiken has been appointed professor of Spanish and matron of Kaufman hall.

Gets Degree from Oberlin.

Miss Aiken received her B. A. degree from Park college and has taken graduate work in Spanish at Oberlin, Middlebury college, and the National university of Mexico.

Miss Edith Boldebuck, part time instructor in mathematics, has been awarded a full time fellowship at the University of Chicago. Frank Huke, a graduate of North Central, will teach first year mathematics. Miss Lucille Uecker has been appointed student nurse.

Other appointments include Laurel Schendel, B. A., 1939, as assistant instructor in speech and assistant in dramatics; Paul Hunsinger, B. A., 1941, assistant instructor in speech and assistant in debate, and John Shaffer, B. A., 1941, assistant instructor in English.

Elmhurst College Plans.

The freshman period program at Elmhurst college started last Wednesday. Services will be conducted this morning in St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed church, the college church, by Dr. Frederick Frankenfeld.

There will be four new courses at Elmhurst college. "Democracy and Citizenship" classes will be taught by Dr. Pearl Robertson, who also will offer for the first time an advanced course in United States history. After a lapse of 10 years Spanish again will be introduced.

Prof. Waldemar Hille, teacher of music, will offer a new course in American folk songs, bringing to the classes the result of his studies in the mountain states of the south. The Rev. Barnabas Dienes, pastor of the Hungarion church in South Chicago, will conduct a course in Hungarian.

Ruler shows size of minnows.

They are little fellows, these top feeding minnows, but the work they do in destroying larvae of mosquitoes means much to the dwellers along the Des Plaines river.

Great schools of the minnows, differing from most fish in that they give birth to their young, were found in the river during the recent study conducted by the Illinois natural history survey coöperating with the Cook county forest preserve district.

The top feeding minnows are not native to the Des Plaines and their cultivation in the river was the result of careful scientific planning. They were first brought to pools in the Chicago area by the state board of health from Carbondale, Ill., in 1926. Two years later the Des Plaines valley mosquito abatement district brought in a second shipment.

The minnows were studied by J. Lyell Clarke and those that survived experiments were placed in pools adjacent to the Des Plaines river and where bridges crossed the stream. One of the minnows is said to be capable of destroying the larvae of 200 mosquitoes a day.

ROSCOE JOHNSON JR.

Here is the story of the four little Johnsons and how they grew up in an airplane. Two of the sons are serving the British and the American air forces and one will soon be ready to earn his army wings. Roscoe Johnson Sr., a news service traffic man, bought an American Eagle plane back in 1932. Roscoe Jr. is now with the royal Canadian air force and Fred Johnson is with the U. S. Air Corps Cadets at Albany, Ga. The other young flyers are daughter, Alice, and son, James. Every one in the family except mother is a flyer.

HARMONIOUS USE OF WOOD GIVES CHARM TO HOME

Dove Gray Finish Used Thruout House.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The harmonious use of beautiful wood is an outstanding impression of the new home of Dr. W. A. Schimmel, 630 North Belmont, Arlington Heights.

The architect, W. F. McCaughey, Pickwick building, Park Ridge, designed the house in a modified California ranch type, using stone gray tapestry brick for the lower story and garage walls and rough sawed batten striped cypress boards for the second story.

The interior treatment possesses many features of distinction and interest.

Wood Finish Is Gray.

The wood thruout is finished in a dove gray which supplies the background for the interior decorations. The furnishings are a combination of French provincial and California ranch house.

The large living room with a great 30 paneled window in the front has a ceiling of 6 inch V-jointed fir planking and 6 by 10 chamfered beams. The walls of both rooms are lightly textured of white plaster, the wood trim is oak, and the fireplace has a black marble face edged with a rope twisted oak moulding.

Walnut and beech wood in the French provincial style of furniture bring out the dove gray colors.

Antique Brass Lights.

There is the same ceiling treatment in the dining room with its large draw table, its rush bottom chairs, and draw drapes in turquoise, terra cotta, and yellow. Four bracket fixtures in antique brass supply the lighting and there's a beige and brown patterned rug on the floor.

As one looks thru the house from the front hall the full glass west wall of the breakfast room gives a view of the garden and pines. Here the walls are papered with an apple blossom pattern on turquois blue and a brass bowled light with a pewter shade hangs from the ceiling.

There is a convenient service entrance which leads both to the kitchen and to the doctor's den. This den can be used as a supplementary office and its treatment is the type to appeal to a masculine eye. It is paneled and trimmed with 6, 8, and 10 inch V-jointed grayed oak planks and furnished with oak furniture that has a suggestion of Viking sturdiness.

Red Floor in Den.

The desk chair is studded with brass nails and backed in red-orange leather, bookcases are on each side of the window, and the red and beige checks in the drapes relate to the red tile linoleum floor pattern. The final masculine touch, however, is the 41 pound wahoo which hangs on the paneled wall—a proud trophy of Dr. Schimmel.

Mrs. Schimmel is especially delighted with the treatment of wood thruout the house because of the ease of maintaining it.

On the hall staircase to the second floor the oak turned spindles and rails of the hall staircase almost match the gray-beige of the rough lock weave carpet.

Porch Off Bedroom.

In the master bedroom large hydrangeas in rose and gray greens pattern the walls, with birch trim and doors supplying the gray-beige color, and the furniture is French provincial in spirit. An open porch is reached thru this room, directly over a large screened porch on the ground level.

Grayed oak furniture in a ranch house style is the perfect choice for the boys' room. Here the paper is bridle and spur in red, green, and white on deep blue. There are sturdy red leather hassocks and red embroidered names of the boys on the rough cream colored bedspreads. Another very masculine room, with a door to an upper deck and over this deck the branches from a spreading tree close to the house.

There's a guest room, too, papered in pink and blue flowered chintz and furnished in Victorian walnut and blue chintz drapes.

Lutheran Women to Mark 22d Year of Child Home

The Lutheran Woman's League of Chicago will celebrate the 22d anniversary of the founding of the Maywood Childrens' Receiving home with a program this afternoon at 809 Madison street, Maywod. The Rev. Carl Satre, chaplain of the U. S. Army Reserve corps, will speak at 3 o'clock. Mrs. F. W. Sallet is president of the league.

B'nai B'rith Juniors.

The first meeting of the season for the Lawndale B'nai B'rith juniors will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Temple Judea, 1227 South Independence boulevard. Miss Rivian Roff is the new president.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 15.

Gardeners living in suburbs where evergreens flourish may plant at this time. Replace poor soil with good fresh soil. Buy good, well grown stock that is baled and balled; have the holes ready for the reception of the plants and plant immediately. Water as the hole is filled around the roots and leave a depression for holding water. Syringe the tops several times.

Decidious shrubs make a nice contrast when planted with evergreens and especially fine are a few red barked dogwood.

Tuesday, Sept. 16.

Bulbs of various kinds may be purchased now. Try a few early narcissus, the paperwhites, in gravel and water; they will do well in Vermiculite, a light flaky browning material that holds moisture. Place several bulbs in the container, fill with water and stand in a cool, dark, cellar, closet or other place until well rooted. Then place in the light window.

A few bulbs will flower without soil or water by simply placing several on a saucer. Among these are autumn crocus [colchicum] with beautiful pale lavender flowers.

Wednesday, Sept. 17.

The hardy chrysanthemums are coming into flower. Apply commercial plant food when the buds show and keep well watered. Just before frost lift and pot a few and remove to the house for indoor blooming.

Divide spring and summer flowering perennials and plant in rich soil, but wait until spring to transplant autumn flowering kinds. The latter do not have time to become established before freezing weather and are likely to winter freeze.

Thursday, Sept. 18.

Gardeners should organize a neighborly club to cut and burn vacant weed infested lots. Millions of seeds are destroyed, insect harbors are burned and the gardener's work reduced the following year.

Hardy lily bulbils can be collected and sown in the frame and they will grow the following season. Fuchsias that have flowered can be stored until spring, started into growth, the young growths used as cutting materials and the old plants cut back and grown again.

Friday, Sept. 19.

Saving tender water lily plants during winter is often a problem, and often the plants are lifted about frost time, the leaves and roots cut back, a pit dug and the plants placed in it. The whole is securely covered with any available material. If no facilities are available whereby the plants can be kept over, purchase strong plants in spring and plant toward the end of May or the first week in June.

Saturday, Sept. 20.

With fall here tomorrow and this date being the time when the first light frost can be expected, it is wise to get all tender plants under cover or temporarily protected. Keep the lawn cut as usual. Order all trees that are to be fall planted.

TAKES CHILDREN TO SEE AIRPORT; HE BUYS A PLANE

Sunday Trip Start of 4 Air Careers.

the second eldest son, turned out to be a born mechanic. He did all the engine overhauls and today has approximately 1,000 hours in the air.

The purchase of the plane that Sunday afternoon, almost 10 years ago, wrote the history of the four little Johnsons. Roscoe Jr. joined the Royal Canadian air force eight months ago and was recently promoted to the rank of flying officer. He is based at Jarvis, Ont., and his assignments consist mostly of towing machine gun targets. He learned to fly in Elmhurst in 1933 and has over 800 solo hours.

Father Veteran of World War.

Roscoe Jr. was born just after his father went to France in World war I., with the AEF. Mr. Johnson was a captain in the signal corps and served a total of 22 months with the American forces. In the signal corps he often made flights as an observer, but he didn't learn to pilot a plane until after the momentous purchase at Elmhurst airport.

The second son, Fred, now 21 years old, is instructing British and United States air corps cadets at Albany, Ga. He is one of the youngest instructors in the army program.

James Jonson, 20 years old, is now building up time at Elmhurst for his commercial license. He has 200 solo hours logged and plans this fall to enroll in the aviation course offered in De Paul university evening school.

Sister to Follow the Air.

Seventeen year old Alice, the only sister, practically grew up in a plane. She could handle the controls when she was 8 years old. When she graduates from Austin High next year Alice will take up nursing to prepare for a job as an air line hostess for one of the commercial air lines.

Since the purchase of the American Eagle Mr. Johnson has owned a three passenger Curtiss-Robin and a four passenger Stinson Reliant. Since his two sons are off in aviation service he purchased in May a small Cub coupe.

Mrs. Johnson says it has been very interesting watching the children grow up in aviation. Their first activity when they were small was going up to the plane and touching it while they grinned proudly at each other.

STUDY BUSINESS AREA EXPANSION TO HELP ZONING

Plan Commission Gives Data on Growth.

Chicago's business and commercial areas are expected to continue to develop naturally after the proposed new zoning ordinance is adopted, just as they have in the past. That assurance was given last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the sub-committee that is preparing the new land use law for submission to the city council, probably next month.

The subcommittee is basing zoning changes on studies of how the more prosperous business localities grew before zoning came into use, Ald. Lindell said.

Because the present ordinance of 1923, the city's first venture into the field of zoning, set up several times as much commercial territory as the city requires, the drafters of the new ordinance are rezoning much of this space for residential use.

Plat Best Business Areas.

Their big problem at the outset was to determine which business zones had been unwisely established and which should be allowed to remain. No reliable data on the subject was available, so the Chicago Plan commission, of which Ald. Lindell is a member, undertook to determine scientifically which spots are best for business zones.

Commercial zones as delineated in the present zoning ordinance permit all kinds of businesses such as department stores, theaters, and gasoline stations, as well as light manufacturing. The new ordinance would set up a new "business" classification, which would permit only small stores and professional offices, restricting the heavier uses to commercial zones.

Visiting store owners personally and studying occupancy and income records, the commission's workers were able to map the approximate boundaries of the profitable portions of the larger business centers.

Where Trade Is Best.

They found that, whereas the present ordinance provides business zones in continuous strips on each side of most important thorofares, the natural tendency of trade areas is to cluster fairly closely about the intersections of section or half-section lines. The reason is that most main travel areas in the city and such transportation facilities as street cars and buses are on survey lines.

The plan commission workers established from various previous studies that there are 21 principal outlying business areas, most of which follow the section line rule. They are:

Devon-Western.
Lawrence-Kedzie.
Lawrence-Wilson-Broadway-Sheridan.
Lincoln-Ashland-Belmont.
Milwaukee from Logan Square to Wellington.
Milwaukee-Irving Park-Cicero.
Milwaukee from Division to North.
Chicago-Western.
Chicago-Pulaski.
Roosevelt-Halsted.
Roosevelt from Pulaski to Kedzie.
26th from Pulaski to Kedzie.
47th-South Park.
63d-Halsted.
63d from Stony Island to Cottage Grove.
71st-Jeffery.
79th-Halsted.
92d-Commercial.
Michigan from 110th to 115th.

Look to Future.

Ald. Lindell said that while a few of these primary business areas have spread out laterally from the busy intersections where they began, most of them are bunched fairly closely about the crossing points. The same is true of the lesser trade areas in the city, to which the plan commission survey is being extended, he said.

The study suggests that even in undeveloped residential areas, the logical places for primary business zones are the points where section lines meet, and for secondary zones the junctions of half-section lines. The subcommittee believes the study shows that strip business zoning as practiced in the 1923 ordinance is a mistake that has held back many regions of the city.

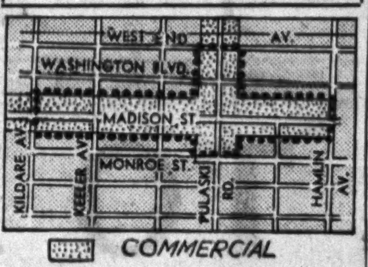
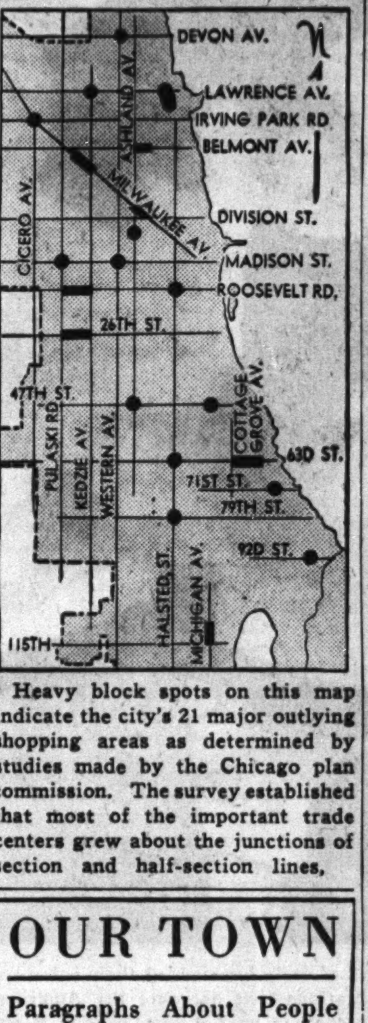
Trade Area Growth



Here is an illustration of the principle that business does best near important street intersections. The keyed portion of the map indicates one of the city's 21 major shopping regions. The dotted line incloses the more prosperous areas as shown in a Chicago plan commission study of building occupancy and trade area served. Aldermen are using this survey to help them frame the proposed new zoning ordinance.



Heavy block spots on this map indicate the city's 21 major outlying shopping areas as determined by studies made by the Chicago plan commission. The survey established that most of the important trade centers grew about the junctions of section and half-section lines.

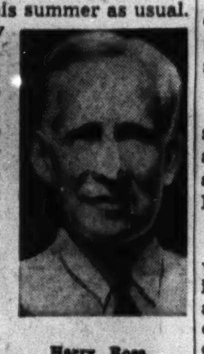
RANKS DWINDLE, BUT CRICKETERS KEEP UP ZEST

Oak Park Club Started Back in 1888.

The Old Timers' cricket game went on in Oak Park this summer as usual. That's the way Richard Coombs, the oldest Old Timer of all, who died recently, would have wanted it. After the game the players stood at attention for 30 seconds in honor of the player who organized Oak Park cricket in 1888.



Harry Rose.

Taking the place of Richard Coombs as president of the Oak Park Cricket club is snowy haired Harry Rose, almost 80 years old. It is his responsibility to keep cricket alive in Oak Park.

Cricket is as English as Yorkshire pudding. There are few recruits to carry on the traditions of cricket, for the sons of the old players adopt the American interest in the fast moving baseball and football.

Have Tea and Cakes.

There are some 20 cricket players left to sip tea after a hard Sunday afternoon game, and munch the seedy cakes served by the ladies.

The miracle of the survival of cricket in the swift American life has been brought about by the little boys of English schools who grew up and came to the United States to earn their fortune. The game has belonged to England since the 12th century.

The standard game calls for 11 players on each side. Played by experts on very good, well tended grass grounds takes about three days if both sides bat twice thru a two innings apiece match. However, most cricket matches are played in a day from 11:30 o'clock in the morning until 6:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Each side has a captain. They toss for choice of innings. The winner of the toss chooses whether his side bats or fields first. Instead of plates, as in baseball, cricket players use three wickets, and across the top are little pieces of wood, called bails. The men pass their Sunday afternoons playing with the flat paddle type bats and pitching the leather covered balls.

Played Here Since 1883.

Cricket has been played in Chicago since 1883, when Joe Davis, Peter Peel, and Bill Balster made the game popular thru the Wanderer's Cricket club. In 1892 the Wanderers' leased the property at 39th street and Wentworth avenue for 10 years. When they had only two years more to go they released the property to Charles Comiskey for $1,500. Today it is the site of Comiskey park.

The game completely died out in Chicago from 1916 to 1923. K. A. Auty, an engineer with the Commonwealth Edison company, is responsible for its revival. As president of the Illinois Cricket association he puts out a book annually listing the names of the cricket teams in the state, explains the games with essays and cartoons.

Today Harry Rose holds the record of being the oldest cricket player in the Oak Park area. Other Old Timers are Robert Turley, Ben O'Hara, Bill Shapre, E. Gordon Harburg, Danny Ryan, Jack Pakenham, and Leslie Youngren. Only Mr. Youngren is below the 50 year mark in birthdays.

"A man can play cricket until he dies," says Harry Rose, whose pithy sense of humor is as keen as his physical fitness. He is a product of King Edward's school, and his 90 year old brother not long ago fled from the old homestead in Birmingham when bombs fell on England.

Play in Taylor Park.

The Oak Park cricket players use a field in Taylor park. Visiting teams come out on Sundays, and meetings are held once a month. Mr. Rose explains the fascination and the finesse of cricket. "Other games aren't cricket," he says.

Thereupon comes an explanation of a phrase also as English as Yorkshire pudding. "You see," says Rose, "in other games the idea is to get your man, no matter what you have to do to get him. That isn't cricket, for in our game we play by a gentleman's rules."

Once a year the Old Timers team of Oak Park takes on some younger players. This year they scored 128 against their opponents 100. That's what usually happens when the white haired English gentlemen line up against an American interpretation of cricket.

The complete roster of Oak Park Cricket club members, in addition to President Rose, are James W. Jenkinson, John H. Lawrence, John McGowan, Ted Burrowes, Frank Leveredge, Lou Tighe, Harry Davies, Arthur Temple, Edward M. Rowe, Frank L. Kidd, Herbert McCullagh, Keith R. McCullagh, Jack Kirkton, Quentin Morris, Gilbert Thomsen, Albert Armstrong, Leonard Hawkins, Harry Janion, Fred Blakemore, Laverne Leveredge, Herbert Simpson, David L. Smith, Enoch Mitchell, and Kenneth W. Evans.

GNU'S NOT NEW SO COW TO MOO IN VILLAGE ZOO

Oak Park Experiments with Farm Exhibit.

The gnu is nothing new to the children of Oak Park and the panda of Tibet is a commonplace figure in their nursery. Tigers and camels and all the members of the animal kingdom from Asia and Africa are better known than the cow, the horse, or the pig from Cook county.

Last spring a reader pointed out to J. Ernest Shelby, local publisher, that Oak Park needed a zoo. The Brookfield zoölogical gardens and the circuses that come to town had made the urban child familiar with far away animals. Oak Park needed a zoo containing the obvious, the cow, the sheep, the pig, the horse.

Recently the Oak Park park board, led by President Joseph Dedouch and the park superintendent, Carl Johnson, voted to use Mills park as a temporary site for a farm zoo.

Will See Pigs Fed.

Beginning about the last week in September, animals loaned by Illinois farmers will be brought to Mills estate and housed in the huge garage, a part of Oak Park park property. A farmer will be on hand to feed the pigs and milk the cows and collect the eggs from the chicken house. Farm life on a small scale will be carried on in full view of thousands of children from Oak Park's 11 grammar schools. The tours to be made by each room in the school system will be scheduled under the direction of William J. Hamilton, superintendent of Oak Park schools.

The farm animals will make their residence on the Mills estate for a period of three weeks as an experiment in the zoo for the urban child. If it is successful it may lead to a permanent zoo in the Oak Park area.

The farm zoo has been tried with success in Central park in New York City.

How Big Is a Hog?

A campaign conducted by the village newspaper proved that Oak Park children are very well acquainted with African animals thru zoölogical garden visits. Very few could answer such questions as "How big does a hog get to be?" and "How does a chicken hold his head when he drinks?"

Roberts Mann, superintendent of maintenance for the county forest preserve, has written in praise of the farm zoo. He says, "To have true perspective one must have at least an understanding of land. In the final analysis all our national ills stem back to misuses of the land."

Park board officers assisting Dedouch with plans for the farm zoo are Clarence A. Willard, Fred Comstock, Wilbur F. Langille, and Albert M. Reed.

'FLORENCE B. ELLIS AT THE DRAKE,' NEW SERIES OVER W-G-N

"Florence Bourke Ellis at the Drake" is the title of a new radio series to have its première from 4:30 to 5 p. m. Tuesday, Sept. 23, on W-G-N. The program will originate from the Camellia House of the Drake.

Mrs. Ellis is well known as a book reviewer and commentator and has appeared for many seasons as a speaker before women's organizations. Mrs. Ellis is the daughter of a Toronto newspaperman and is well grounded in newspaper work herself. She is a world traveler and has had a career as an actress.

In addition to book comment by Mrs. Ellis, the program will include informal chats. Mrs. Ellis will have well known personalities as her guests at the broadcasts.

Each broadcast will be dedicated to some charitable or service organization, one of whose members will be honored with a "Bow and Camellias." A story of the work typical of that organization will be related by Mrs. Ellis.

On W-G-N Show

Skinnay Ennis and Carmene, his wife, who sings with the Ennis orchestra, will be guests on the "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" on W-G-N-Mutual at 9:30 tomorrow night.

The program not too modestly will open with "The Great American Broadcast," featuring the orchestra under the direction of Bob Trendler and the trio. Carmene's offerings will include "Yes, My Darling Daughter" and a duet with Skinnay.

Musical highlights from radio's craziest trio will be an original song titled, "Tweet, Tweet," and one from the hills called "Brother Ezra and Sister Sue."

Bob Trendler will make another attempt to complete the orchestra's boogie-woogie solo without interruption from the boys. The production is under the direction of William A. Bacher.

Double or Nothing Opens New Series at 6 Tonight

"Double or Nothing," W-G-N-Mutual quiz show, will start its second year on the air with a new day and a new time. It will be heard from 6 to 6:30 p. m. Sundays, starting today.

The series, featuring Walter Compton, Frank Forest, soloist; Nat Brusiloff's orchestra, and Announcer Alois Havrilla started a year ago and soon won a place as one of the country's leading audience participation shows. The Mutual network hook-up of 116 stations is the largest of any quiz show on the air.

OPERETTA HOUR WILL BE 9:45-11 DURING OCTOBER

"Merry Widow" Opening Show Oct. 4.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Because Chicago will continue with daylight saving time thru October the Chicago Theater of the Air will be presented for four weeks over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network from 9:45 to 11 p. m. The first production will be "The Merry Widow," by Franz Lehar on Saturday, Oct. 4.

The Theater of the Air is to return to W-G-N and Mutual in response to the appeal of a multitude of last year's operetta listeners. The schedule for this season calls for 26 operettas, half of them favorites of the 1940-'41 season. The remainder will be equally beloved scores slated for their first radio appearance.

The program will be heard at 8:45 p. m. starting in November.

Col. McCormick to Speak.

The plan for the operetta programs will include an address by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who has been heard thru the summer on the Saturday night Chicagoland hour.

This season the Theater of the Air will be on the air 1 hour and 15 minutes, a quarter hour longer than last season. William R. Bacher, director of programs and production, who will again direct the operettas, said that the added time will make possible a fuller and more desirable treatment of each operetta than could be given in the past.

Singing stars of the opening production, "The Merry Widow," will be Marion Claire, prima donna in all 20 of last season's operettas, and Allan Jones, romantic tenor of the opera and screen.

List of Productions.

Then, on successive Saturday nights, there will be "New Moon," Oct. 11, with Thomas Thomas, New York baritone; "Sari," Oct. 18, with Igor Gorin; "Sweethearts," Oct. 25, with John Carter, star of opera, the concert stage, and radio, and "The Red Mill," Nov. 1, again with Carter. Miss Claire will sing the soprano lead in each of these productions.

Later in the season the Theater of the Air will offer "The Vagabond King," "Naughty Marietta," "The Mikado," "Hansel and Gretel," "Belle of New York," "Pinafore," "The Desert Song," "Rose of Algiers," "La Bohême," "I Pagliacci," and "Carmen."

Singing stars to be heard with Miss Claire in various of these operettas are Jan Peerce, John Brownlee, Charles Kullman, Frederick Jagel, Robert Weede, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of the Chicagoland hour.

ROLE OF FARMER IN DEFENSE TO BE FORUM SUBJECT

"Farmers and Defense" will be the topic discussed during the University of Chicago Round Table broadcast at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Participating in the broadcast will be Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, T. W. Schultz, head of the agricultural economics department at Iowa State college, Ames, and William H. Spencer, dean of the school of business, University of Chicago.

MARION CLAIRE SINGS TO LEGIONNAIRES IN MILWAUKEE TONIGHT

Marion Claire, singing star of the Chicagoland Hour on W-G-N and the Mutual network, will make a guest appearance in Milwaukee, Wis., tonight at the first mass gathering of delegates to the American Legion convention. She will sing two songs at patriotic services in the Emil Blatz Temple of Music, Washington Park. Henry Weber, her husband, conductor of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, will accompany her at the piano. The numbers will be "Maids of Cadiz," by Delibes and "Melody of Love" by Lehar.

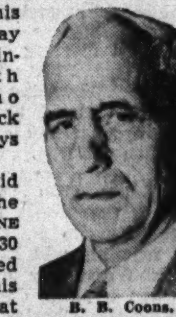
Starts Own Show

Virginia Simms, who became famous with Kay Kyser when they were at the Blackhawk and on W-G-N, is leaving the Kyser College of Musical Knowledge on NBC, and starting a show of her own at 8:55 p. m. next Friday on WBBM-CBS. She also has a new long term movie contract.

It's graduation time for Ginny Simms, prettiest pupil in Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge, aired at 9 p. m., Wednesdays, over WMAQ-NBC. After four years of singing with Kyser and his orchestra, Ginny and the "Old Professor" are parting.

When Kay and his boys leave for the east soon, Ginny will remain in Hollywood to devote her full time and attention to screen work for RKO and a new program of her own on CBS Friday evenings. Ginny made her film debut in Kyser's first starring film, had a better spot in her second show, and is one of the hits of his current "Playmates."

OLDEST BUSINESS MAN IN SUBURB WILL CELEBRATE



B. B. Coons.

B. B. Coons, said to be the oldest man in business in Maywood, plans to celebrate his 79th birthday Friday at a dinner party with old friends who have kept track of his birthdays for 30 years.

Mr. Coons said a want ad in the Sunday TRIBUNE more than 30 years ago caused him to obtain his present home at 1405 South 7th avenue. He was residing in Omaha at the time. The ad read, "Home in Chicago to trade for home in Omaha." That suited Mr. Coons, for his firm had transferred him to Chicago.

For 20 years, Mr. Coons has conducted an insurance business. He attributes his good health to a handful of raisins each day.

Jimmie Fidler Starts New Series Over Mutual

Jimmie Fidler, Hollywood commentator, is heard in a series of programs on W-G-N and the Mutual network every Friday from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m. Bill Goodman is the announcer.

Belbenoir on W-G-N.

NEW SEASON OPENS FOR 5,000 IN CLUBS

MASQUERS FIND NIGHTLY ESCAPE IN STAGE ROLES

Little Theater Plays to Free House.

BY ARTHUR MIDDLETON.

His daytime occupation is that of a machinist. But two evenings a week 31-year-old John Olmstead is a promising young playwright with all Hollywood clamoring for his services—that is the character Olmstead is currently protraying as a member of the Masquer Studio players, the southwest side's little theater group.

So it is with other members of the group; by day they are telephone operators, shipping clerks, stenographers, and press feeders, but at night they become actors and actresses.

For a majority of the group, the theater serves as a hobby. But then there is Miss Nadine Sable, of Oak Lawn, who has been a member of the group for three years and intends to make acting her profession. Edmund Reidy, 8011 Perry avenue, a plasterer, joined the group six months ago for a different reason.

He's Against War.

"I joined to brush up on my public speaking," Mr. Reidy said. "With the country appearing to be heading toward war, I want to do my little part in trying to deter it. I was in the last war and hope I won't see a repetition of 1917 and '18. By speaking before neighborhood groups I might be able to change a few minds about wanting to get into something that is none of our business."

The group is inaugurating the Masquer's 12th season with the rehearsal of "Hollywood Episode," written by their director, Howard Rooney, and founder of this little theater group. Mr. Rooney, a quick little man, was injected with actor's blood when he was 5 years old and appeared on the New York stage with Mary Pickford.

Organization of the Masquer Studio theater in 1929 followed years of trouping with stock companies thru the United States and Canada; elementary school teaching; and working for the Chicago park district. In addition to writing plays and directing the company, Mr. Rooney next week will begin his third year as physical culture, speech and dramatic instructor at Visitation High school.

No Charge for Plays.

The theater occupies two gayly decorated rooms on the third floor of an office building at 357 West 63d street. Here the senior group of 25 men and women holds evening rehearsals for plays and a half-hour radio program which they present each Saturday afternoon over station WHIP. In the afternoons, Mr. Rooney's assistant, William Krahn, instructs a juvenile group in speech and drama.

Here also are held the neighborhood previews of the little theater plays. On opening night an audience of nearly 100 persons is crowded into one room to wait for the curtain to part revealing the second room which serves as a stage. The group never charges admission to the plays and the only requisite to getting a seat for performances is to be early while there is still room.

Stage props are constructed by the players who also arrange the lighting effects. Occasionally costumes are rented but not before the group has found it impossible to make them. Each player pays $2 dues amonth which goes for rent and a few other necessities. Quite often the dues is not enough to cover expenses and Mr. Rooney quietly digs into his own pocket for the difference.

Tenth Week on Air.

In addition to preparing for a new play each month, a number of the group meet two other evenings a week to rehearse for their weekly radio program. The weekly scripts, having to do with the life of historical characters, are prepared by Mr. Rooney. The Masquers are starting their 10th week on the air.

New members for the little theater and the radio programs are always being sought by Mr. Rooney who is eager to work with the inexperienced who have a desire to act. Mr. Rooney's troupe is without regular leading men and ladies. That is, the leading man in one month's play may next month take the part of a butler with only a line or two to speak.

"In that way we aren't bothered with prima donnas," the director explained.

After the company's first performance of the season on Sept. 29, it will give monthly performances at Camp Grant, Camp Sheridan, the juvenile detention home, Chicago Home for Incurables, and several charitable institutions. A letter from any worthwhile organization is all that is needed to get the Masquers to give a performance.

Who Players Are.

Miss Winifred Branigan, 7251 Stewart avenue, president of the Masquers, is the veteran of the organization, having joined 10 years ago. During the day she is general manager of a printing ink concern. Miss Violet Anderson, a secretary, is vice president. She became a member three years ago and some day would like to get in the production end of radio or the theater.

Masquer Studio Theater Rushes Plans for Opening of 12th Season

Their daytime occupations are varied—machinist, clerk, welder, telephone operator—but on two evenings a week a group of young men and women turn actors and actresses with the Masquer Studio theater, 357 West 63d street. Rehearsing a new play, "Hollywood Episode," written by their director and founder of this little theater, Howard Rooney, are, sitting, John Olmsted, 6428 Eggleston avenue, and Nadine Sable, Oak Lawn. Standing, left to right, are Mrs. Courtney Curtis, 1336 West 64th street; Violet Anderson, 6403 South Campbell avenue; Blaine Hill, 2602 West 61st street, and Lorraine Hanson, 58 West 66th street. The group is preparing for the opening, Sept. 29, of the Masquers' 12th season. The picture was taken on the theater's stage.

Every Saturday afternoon the group presents a half hour program over radio station WHIP in Hammond. Gathered around the mike rehearsing for their weekly dramatization of great moments in the life of some famous person, are, left to right, John Howard, 4921 South Honore street; Elsie Scribner, Willow Springs; Edmund Reidy, 8011 Perry avenue, and Margo Buono, 3316 Berteau avenue.

One of the favorite performances of the little theater audiences is the Masquers' annual presentation of "Hamlet." The costumes worn by Ross Nickelsen, 425 Englewood avenue, as Hamlet, and Miss Anderson, as Ophelia, were made by members of the group who also construct their own stage props and settings.

PATRIOT GROUP ASKS REGISTERED MEN TO A RALLY

New Unit Draws Up Its List of Objectives.

All men registered for military service, as well as their families and friends, are invited to attend the first south side rally of the Registered Patriots of America at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the Englewood YMCA, 6541 Union avenue. The group is a national organization of registered men with central headquarters at 180 North Michigan avenue.

The Patriots have drawn up the following platform:

1. No American expeditionary force.
2. A voice for the registered men in national affairs, which is in proportion to the responsibilities of the group.
3. A raise in pay for the men in the service.
4. No further induction of registered men into service until adequate defense equipment has been provided for training.
5. A number 1 priority on modern weapons and equipment for our own forces.
6. An immediate program to safeguard the future of small retail business, which soon will have its doors closed for good unless immediate provision is made for the production of consumer goods.

The meeting, which is free, will offer entertainment.

Young Aeneas at City Desk Sighs for Sea

BY PAUL HEALY.

The trouble with Christopher Sergel, 4830 Kenwood avenue, is that he has just returned from an adventure every man dreams about — personally sailing halfway around the globe by way of Puerto Rico, Tahiti, Hawaii, and Alaska. He fidgeted restlessly in his office last week, wondering when he could organize another expedition on his 76 foot schooner, Chance. The nostalgia for rolling seas, tropical climates, and colorful islands, he says, is almost too much for him.

Christopher Sergel.

The south side's modern Aeneas, who is only 23, and his wife, Hope, who is only 21, traveled 18,000 miles on the water between June, 1940, and August, 1941. They did it simply because they'd always wanted to and it merely whetted their wanderlust. It was hard work, but it was wonderful, reports Christopher, who gained 25 pounds during the voyage. Both were graduated from the University of Chicago in 1939.

Conquer Hard Problems.

Looking back now, the Sergels are glad they didn't let their lack of experience discourage their plans. From the day they coasted out of New York, while France was falling and friends warned them about the international situation, to the final docking at San Pedro, Cal., last month, their nonchalance and resourcefulness saw them thru many a tight problem. With only two yachting lessons behind them, they learned to be good sailors by sailing, and took their crew where they found it, airily bidding good-by to shipmates or signing on strangers whenever it was necessary.

"We started with three other young couples whom we picked up in New York," said the young skipper, "but there was a constant turnover in the crew at every port. The fellows couldn't resist taking attractive jobs offered them on the islands. We were able to find others, tho once we were shorthanded. Altogether, we had 16 different persons with us at

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

According to Corporal Thomas Mongan of company G, 47th infantry, at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, transition from railroading to the army is not so hard. He worked for the Illinois Central railroad for 15 years and now has 11 months of army service behind him. Mongan, who lives at 11127 Michigan avenue, thinks army life is all right if a fellow can apply himself.

"These lads who are always gripeing about doing their work give me a pain," Mongan said. "We know we have to carry thru our assignments and it's a lot easier to be men about it. On the whole, tho, these selectees are a pretty fine bunch of men."

Private Albert J. Desrosiers, 8005 Aberdeen street, was one of three Chicagoans who recently completed the eight week clerical course at Camp Grant's medical replacement center.

Private Thomas M. Bittler, assigned to the 40th armored regiment, a part of the 3d armored division at Camp Polk, Louisiana, has been ordered to Fort Knox, Kentucky, as a member of the tank unit for the 5th armored division to be in active service Oct. 1. Private Bittler will be a tank driver and will receive a third class specialist rating. He is the son of Mrs. Nele Bittler, 7712 Morgan street.

A week's furlough spent with his parents and friends is being enjoyed this week by Corporal Walter R. Bard, 816 West 51st place. He is serving with the military police at Fort Brady, Michigan.

Camp Callan, California, is the destination of seven southwest siders, formerly stationed at Fort Sheridan. The men, who will join the coast artillery replacement training center, are John Deagortino, 11848 Lafayette avenue; Raymond Corkill, 6348 South Kildare avenue; John Grygiel, 3229 May street; Raymond Jaszczak, 4627 South Mozart street; George Krammer, 11 East 110th street; Frank Bubbs, 11740 La Salle street; Francis Wagner, Worth, Ill.

Private Howard K. Dyhrberg is on his way back to his home station, the 11th school squadron, air corps, at Scott Field, Illinois, following his graduation from the metal workers course at Chanute field branch of the air corps technical school. He is the son of Mrs. Harry Dyhrberg, 3135 West 55th street.

He was born at 6839 Yale avenue in 1912 and educated at St. Bernard's grammar school, Quigley Preparatory, St. Patrick's seminary, Menlo Park, Cal., and Kendrick seminary, Webster Groves, Mo. He was ordained by the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, on May 22, 1938.

From Three Oaks, Mich., Mrs. John Ackerman sends an idyllic story of four south side business girls who like nothing better than picking peaches all day on her farm. The girls, La Verne and Eleanor Beadle, Margaret Welt, and Clarice Lind, are vacationing in La Porte county, Indiana, just across the state line.

"And the funny thing about it," comments Mrs. Ackerman, "is that they absolutely refuse any compensation for their work. They just do it for the love of it."

If you want to see a really big dahlia, peek in at the garden of John J. Hurley, 7930 South Burnham avenue, which has become the talk of the neighborhood. Neighbors, who have heard that dahlias seldom grow more than four or five feet high, are excitedly discussing the Hurley plant, which now stands nine feet five inches.

James J. Doheny, 9654 South Hamilton avenue, is reported back home after graduating cum laude from Harvard university. He took a bachelor of arts degree, majoring in economics.

TOMORROW Dr. J. B. Hershman will become president in active charge of the Dodge Telegraph and Radio institute at Valparaiso university. The school was founded in 1874 as a department of the Northern Indiana Normal school, now Valparaiso university. The teaching of radio was begun in 1909 and the courses were expanded steadily. Dr. Hershman reorganized all radio courses in 1934 and has been director of radio there ever since. He was an instructor at Indiana university in 1932 and 1933 and has a doctor of philosophy degree in physics.

Dr. J. B. Hershman.

Stanley Unander, 10401 South Racine avenue, park district patrolman, recenly was awarded the National Safety council's President medal for heroic rescue work. When Harry Aden attempted suicide on May 4 of this year, he was dragged unconscious from Lake Michigan by two passersby and the policeman worked on him for 15 minutes before his breathing was restored to normal.

Shortly after he joined the park force in 1936 Patrolman Unander received commendations for two rescues of boys who had fallen into park lagoons.

'GLORIOUS' TELLS 1 WORD STORY OF 66 WEDDED YEARS

I. W. Cranmers See Show on Anniversary.

There is only one word for 66 years of married life and Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Cranmer have it. "Glorious," they said together as they recalled the years that have passed since their September wedding day in 1875.

Their celebration of the anniversary day last Tuesday was not the quiet observance one might expect of a gentleman 89 years old and a gray haired little lady who will be 85 in March. From their home at 2340 West 113th place they went downtown to a theater, went window shopping after the show, and had a fried chicken dinner at a loop restaurant.

Both Are Teachers.

Neither of them found the program too strenuous. Their philosophy for keeping young is "temperance and plenty of work." Mrs. Cranmer was a school teacher, kept house for 57 years and raised five children. Mr. Cranmer got his first job—along with an education—when he was 16 years old. He took the job of janitor in McGee college, not far from his home in Holt county, Mo.

He later transferred to Cornell college where he was awarded a gold medal for oratory and received degrees as a bachelor of philosophy and master of arts. He returned to his farm home to find the future Mrs. Cranmer, who lived on a neighboring farm, was teaching school. Mr. Cranmer became a high school teacher, married, became principal and hired his wife to assist him. He later returned to Cornell college to teach physics and Latin.

For more than 30 years now, Mr. Cranmer has lectured in almost every state and on 32 different subjects. He is still sought after by lodges for his excellent talks on fraternal organizations. Eight years ago he wrote and had published a book of 100 poems. He is now at work on a second volume.

Painting Her Hobby.

While her husband is busy writing and lecturing, Mrs. Cranmer follows her hobby, which is painting. Mr. Cranmer's study is ringed with paintings by his wife, daughter, and a niece, Mrs. Frances Cranmer Greenman, prominent portrait painter. Mrs. Cranmer has devoted much of her life to Sunday school work and each Sunday finds the couple attending Sunday school and church services at the Morgan Park Methodist church. She is a member of the woman's bible class and Mr. Cranmer is chaplain of the men's bible class.

Two of their daughters, Mrs. Stella McDole, 7250 Champlain avenue, and Mrs. Ruth Crandall, 7345 Phillips avenue, are Chicagoans, while two others, Mrs. Beulah Swensson and Mrs. Mignonette O'Connor, live in Hollywood, Cal. H. B. Cranmer, a son, is an electrical engineer in Detroit. The couple has ten grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

And the recipe for a long marriage? "Be loyal," said Mr. Cranmer, gazing at his wife who smilingly nodded.

Mercy Forum

Mrs. Walter F. Riley, 6909 Chappel avenue, is chairman of the first program for the Mercy Federation forum at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Mercy High school, 81st street and Prairie avenue. The Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, archbishop of Chicago, will be guest speaker.

Southwest Siders Married 66 Years

Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Cranmer, 2340 West 113th place, who celebrated their 66th wedding anniversary last Tuesday. Mr. Cranmer, a former university professor and now a lecturer and author, is 89 years old. Mrs. Cranmer, who also taught school, is 84. They have been residents of the south side since 1893.

THESE SKATERS TO FALL FARTHER IF WHEELS SKID

Betty Etten.

Members of the "Hi-Ups" will be higher up than ever when they don roller skates for their party at White City tomorrow evening. This is the first of many autumn social events planned by the club, which was chartered last March as a haven for tall young men and women who are tired of mingling with people who don't approach their measurements.

Membership is open to girls over 5 feet 8 inches tall and between 18 and 30 years old and young men over 6 feet tall and between 20 and 35 years old. Members never look down on any one at the regular business meeting held every third Friday in Kimball hall. A social program of dancing or entertainment, featuring tall performers, always follows the business session.

Miss Betty Etten, 7921 Ingleside avenue, 6 feet tall, and Edmund Burke, 8405 Rhodes avenue, 6 feet 7½ inches, are queen and king of the "Hi-Ups." South side committee members for the roller skating party tomorrow evening are Miss Anita Andrulis, 5331 South Homan avenue, 5 feet 8½ inches; Miss Rosemary Richmond, 8818 South Carpenter street, 5 feet 11 inches; Bob Mercer, 2035 East 73d street, 6 feet 5½ inches; Herman Oswald, 8033 South Marshfield avenue, 6 feet 5 inches, and Joseph Wilson, 3309 South Lituanica avenue, 6 feet 1½ inches.

The social schedule calls for a hayrack party, a dinner-dance and a Halloween party in October. During the summer members went on picnics and beach parties.

The club, which now has 40 members is always interested in recruiting new members of impressive height, says Miss Etten.

MEMORIAL ORGAN TO BE DEDICATED IN RITES TODAY

The Clara Byrum Archer memorial organ will be formally presented to the congregation in a dedicatory service and musical at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Woodlawn Methodist church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue.

The ritual service of dedication will be conducted by the Rev. W. E. Bradburn, pastor, and the presentation of the organ will be made by Miss Lora Bott, chairman of the memorial committee. The acceptance will be made by E. T. Howson, chairman of the board of trustees.

The organ is presented as a tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Parks C. [Clara Byrum] Archer, who was a member of the congregation for 30 years. She died on Nov. 7, 1940. The musical will be offered by two of her friends, Tera Bartley Sells, organist, and Edwin Kemp, tenor soloist.

RAINBOW FLEET TO SAIL IN TITLE REGATTA TODAY

The bright sails of the Rainbow fleet, park district dinghies, will billow at 1 o'clock this afternoon in the annual championship regatta at the Burnham park lagoon. The fleet consists of 26 10 foot sailing dinghies constructed in park fieldhouses by boys and girls who joined the organization.

The regatta will be run under the rules of the Lake Michigan Yachting association, which provided the material for building the dinghies. Only members under 20 years old are eligible to compete. The squadron which is represented by the winning crew will hold the city championship trophy until next year.

STUDY BUSINESS AREA EXPANSION TO HELP ZONING

Plan Commission Gives Data on Growth.

Chicago's business and commercial areas are expected to continue to develop naturally after the proposed new zoning ordinance is adopted, just as they have in the past. That assurance was given last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the sub-committee that is preparing the new land use law for submission to the city council, probably next month.

The subcommittee is basing zoning changes on studies of how the more prosperous business localities grew before zoning came into use, Ald. Lindell said.

Because the present ordinance of 1923, the city's first venture into the field of zoning, set up several times as much commercial territory as the city requires, the drafters of the new ordinance are rezoning much of this space for residential use.

Plat Best Business Areas.

Their big problem at the outset was to determine which business zones had been unwisely established and which should be allowed to remain. No reliable data on the subject was available, so the Chicago Plan commission, of which Ald. Lindell is a member, undertook to determine scientifically which spots are best for business zones.

Commercial zones as delineated in the present zoning ordinance permit all kinds of businesses such as department stores, theaters, and gasoline stations, as well as light manufacturing. The new ordinance would set up a new "business" classification, which would permit only small stores and professional offices, restricting the heavier uses to commercial zones.

Visiting store owners personally and studying occupancy and income records, the commission's workers were able to map the approximate boundaries of the profitable portions of the larger business centers.

Where Trade Is Best.

They found that, whereas the present ordinance provides business zones in continuous strips on each side of most important thorofares, the natural tendency of trade areas is to cluster fairly closely about the intersections of section or half-section lines. The reason is that most main travel areas in the city and such transportation facilities as street cars and buses are on survey lines.

The plan commission workers established from various previous studies that there are 21 principal outlying business areas, most of which follow the section line rule. They are:

Devon-Western.
Lawrence-Kedzie.
Lawrence-Wilson-Broadway-Sheridan.
Lincoln-Ashland-Belmont.
Milwaukee from Logan Square to Wellington.
Milwaukee-Irving Park-Cicero.
Milwaukee from Division to North.
Chicago-Western.
Chicago-Pulaski.
Roosevelt-Halsted.
Roosevelt from Pulaski to Kedzie.
26th from Pulaski to Kedzie.
47th-Ashland.
47th-South Park.
63d-Halsted.
63d from Stony Island to Cottage Grove.
71st-Jeffery.
79th-Halsted.
92d-Commercial.
Michigan from 110th to 115th.

Look to Future.

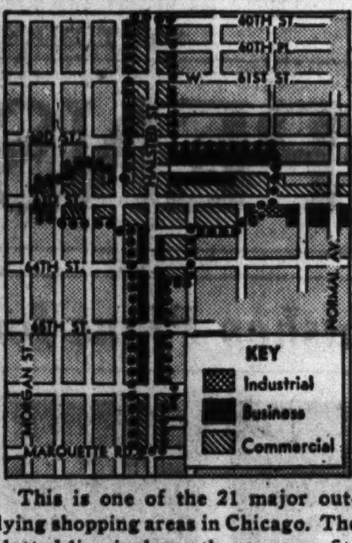
Ald. Lindell said that while a few of these primary business areas have spread out laterally from the busy intersections where they began, most of them are bunched fairly closely about the crossing points. The same is true of the lesser trade areas in the city, to which the plan commission survey is being extended, he said.

The study suggests that even in undeveloped residential areas, the logical places for primary business zones are the points where section lines meet, and for secondary zones the junctions of half-section lines.

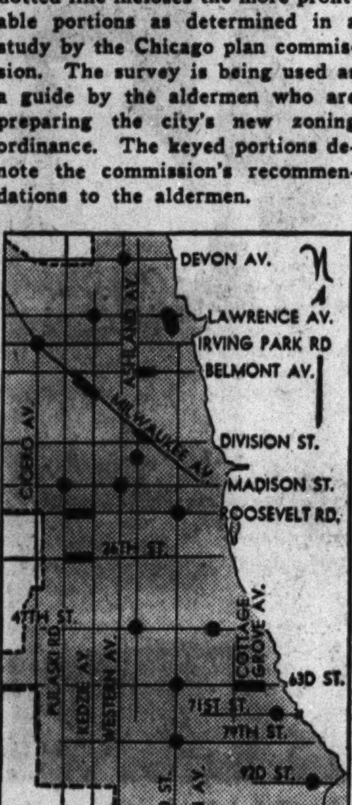
Ivanhoe Garden Club Holds Family Flower Show Today

Family exhibits comprise the second flower show of the year given this afternoon by the Ivanhoe Garden club in the Riverdale village hall, 137th street and Wabash avenue. Exhibits include fruits and vegetables grown by women, garden exhibits entered by men, and horticultural displays by juveniles.

Where Shops Thrive



This is one of the 21 major outlying shopping areas in Chicago. The dotted line incloses the more profitable portions as determined in a study by the Chicago plan commission. The survey is being used as a guide by the aldermen who are preparing the city's new zoning ordinance. The keyed portions denote the commission's recommendations to the aldermen.



Heavy block spots on this map indicate the city's 21 major outlying shopping areas as determined by studies made by the Chicago plan commission. The survey established that most of the important trade centers grew about the junctions of section and half-section lines, a principle the city's planners are applying in helping rezone undeveloped areas.

Illinois Alumnae.

The Illinois alumnae association of South Chicago will hold a dinner meeting for new members Wednesday evening at the Hotel Hayes.

YOUNG AENEAS AT CITY DESK SIGHS FOR SEA

Chris Sergel Back from Adventure Voyage.

one time or another and few knew any more about sailing than we did."

From his experience Christopher concludes that the ideal crew is a "bunch of dumb athletes." On dull days, he laughs, "we'd fool around with our sails, trying things which would make a yachtsman faint. We had a lot of fun with our Genoa job especially. It pulled like a horse."

Had Some Equipment.

Their auxiliary schooner is gaff-rigged and can sleep 15 persons. On board was a sextant, chronometer, parallel rules, dividers, compass, and some old French charts, which were "terrible." They also were equipped with a Springfield rifle and a pair of .22s which they used to shoot deer in Alaska, bulls in the Galapagos, and goats and pigs in the Marquesas to spice their diet. Otherwise they subsisted largely on corned beef hash.

Before the Sergels left New York they stocked up with $80 worth of medical equipment, expecting trouble in the South seas, but all they ever used was a bottle of iodine. Each new crew member was obliged to pass a strict physical examination and none ever became ill. Nowhere, incidentally, did the weather ever become as hot or as cold as it gets in Chicago.

After New York the principal stopping places were Puerto Rico, Panama, Tahiti, the Marquesas, Hawaii, and Alaska in that order. Their longest period without touching land was the 36 days between Honolulu and Seward, Alaska.

Yet the Sergels maintain they never grew tired of the Pacific; they found the rhythm of eating, sleeping, reading, standing watch, and doing other chores an agreeable one. Christopher passed part of the time writing a play for his father's publishing house, the Dramatic Publishing company.

Bright Spots Recalled.

Some of the things the young wanderers like to recall are the whales that spouted water on them in the Gulf of Alaska, the Tahitian natives who say "him capsize" for "he died," the uncharted isle they discovered among the Tuomatus Islands, the newspaper men who asked them if they'd spied any German submarines, and the beautiful little island of Nukuhiva with its ideal climate, lush vegetation, and primitive inhabitants.

The crew laid over for three months in Tahiti, which is now controled by the Free French, and later explored the interior of the Marquesas, about 800 miles away. Everywhere they were warmly received by officials.

Christopher says he has an affection for the Chance and sleeps better at sea than on land. Nevertheless, he maintains he knows nothing of "yachty things" and has promised himself he will never wear a captain's cap or join a yacht club.

NEWS FROM THE American VIEWPOINT

Because it successfully discharges its obligation to readers, the Tribune has more than twice the circulation of any other Chicago daily newspaper—and more than both of the administration organs combined.

TRIBUNE circulation continues to grow year after year because readers know the Tribune They know from the record its steadfast character. They know that it has no tieups with political, social or financial interests which compromise its freedom to report the truth.

The Tribune printed the facts of—and fought against—slavery, fiat money, free silver, Lorimerism, anarchists and the Anti-Saloon league, It now fights dictatorship, bureaucratic waste, war parties and other alien groups which would destroy the rights of the American people.

From long experience readers know that the Tribune will not be muzzled, and that its reporters are fearless and experienced in digging out the facts.

Readers know that the Tribune does not print fake stories. They know that the Tribune does not lend its news columns to propaganda aimed to cause them to act against their personal interests and the interests of their country.

They know that when news is hard to get, the Tribune gets it. That when it is expensive, the Tribune spares no expense. That when other newspapers do not report a significant occurrence, the Tribune does.

Readers know that the Tribune prints the news when it happens and as it happens. They know that as a midwest product it represents midwest opinion. They know that as an American newspaper it reports the facts in forthright manner and from the American viewpoint.

OWNERS BESTOW A GARBAGE DUMP ON ALDERMAN

Sonnenschein Says Park to Spring from Ashes.

Hundreds of property owners from 22d street south to Archer avenue and from Western avenue west to Pulaski road have watched and smelled with growing concern the mountain of refuse and garbage covering 18 acres in the 22d ward at 3300 south, between Kedzie avenue and St. Louis. Last Monday night the property owners had a meeting scheduled at Svoboda's hall, 3002 South Trumbull avenue, to complete the formation of the Southwest Neighbors association, organized for the purpose of stopping dumping at the site.

Several days before the organization meeting the leaders of the proposed association were surprised by a report that Le Roy and Ralph Stepp, owners of the 18 acres of property, were deeding the property to Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d] to be used as a public playground. Attorney Loren Bush Rockey, representing the Stepp brothers, says the property has been in the Stepp family for years and that it once was a farm.

Débris Towers High.

The property was used by the West City Dumping company, whose offices are on the property at 34th street and Spaulding avenue. Private scavenger companies have made use of the plot. In some places the plateau of trash and garbage is as high as a three story building.

Ald. Sonnenschein says: "Before I accept the deed to the property, which I will then turn over to the city of Chicago, I want the mound leveled." The alderman estimates that it will require dumping for at least a year to do this, but that in the meantime he will have sod planted on the west side of the property. He said there also is a question concerning delinquent taxes to be settled.

Altho it was reported that the dumping of garbage had been stopped on July 1, a visit to the site revealed huge mounds of garbage in evidence last week. The visit made to the site on Sept. 4 showed that trucks are still arriving with loads of refuse. One truck carried a load of malt. Strewn over the heap were old papers, truckloads of building material wastes and sawdust. Flies were thick and officers of the new association report that rats are rampant. There are piles of rusty oil cans, oil paint barrels, and half rotted garbage.

Sees Rosy Future.

Ald. Sonnenschein avers, however, that in several years this will be a playground with grass and play equipment for the children of the neighborhood. The 18 acre tract, in the heart of an industrial area, has the drainage canal as its south boundary. Illinois Central tracks run along the north line.

The first action taken by property owners to have dumping stopped was in October, 1940. A petition signed by 350 residents was presented to Ald. Sonnenschein. The committee reported that the alderman promised there would be no dumping.

Since the dumping continued, the property owners called a meeting on Aug. 28 for the purpose of organizing. The alderman was invited but could not attend.

Says Campaign to Continue.

The next meeting was set for Sept. 8 and it was just previous to this that the move to deed the property was reported. Frank A. Zak, temporary chairman, reported that 200 property owners attended the August meeting but that only 70 turned out for the September meeting after the story of the playground.

"We are going to continue with our organization," said Mr. Zak. "If this pile of filth is to be made into a playground, we want to help the alderman with his project."

Ald. Sonnenschein said: "I believe this project to be just as big as the subway. The people of the community have been complaining about the dump because of the odors in recent years. The dump was here long before I took office."

20 Year Residents.

The resident property owners in the area are mostly tradesmen and craftsmen. There are carpenters, printers, plasterers, and painters. They are of Bohemian, Slovenian, Croatian, and Polish descent. The average length of time the people have occupied their homes is 20 years. The blocks are lined with cozy brick two story houses and bungalows with white starched curtains at the windows. Front lawns are green and free from weeds. One lawn on St. Louis avenue is so perfect that it resembles a green broadloom carpet.

Mr. Zak says: "We had to laugh at the city conducting a rat abatement campaign and permitting that mountain of filth to be piled in our neighborhood. We are organized to see that this dumping comes to an end. We have no political affiliations."

George Pevic has been elected president of the new organization which applied for its charter at the meeting last Monday night. Angelo Knezovich is vice president. Mr. Zak is treasurer and Miss Anne A. Havlik is secretary.

Members of Committees.

Members of the ways and means committee are Edward Petrzilka, Charles Dobry, Alex Novak, Miss Elizabeth Tichava, Miss Mildred Hula, Miss Angeline Patla, John Staroba, and Miss Mary Tichy.

Members of the publicity committee are James Kazda, Charles Havlik, and Victor Tichava.

"We have the finest neighborhood and about the most friendly, helpful people in the city," says Kak. "When the dump is converted into a park we will all help to make it beautiful and keep it so."

Engaged to Aviation Cadet

Plans for an early spring wedding are being made by Miss Jane Harriet Houts, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott Houts, 6635 Yale avenue, have announced her engagement to Donald E. Sheeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Sheeler, South Bend, Ind. Miss Houts was graduated from Lawrence college. Mr. Sheeler, who was graduated from Wabash college, is a flying cadet in the government school of aeronautics at Ontario, Cal.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 15.

Gardeners living in suburbs where evergreens flourish may plant at this time. Replace poor soil with good fresh soil. Buy good, well grown stock that is baled and balled; have the holes ready for the reception of the plants and plant immediately. Water as the hole is filled around the roots and leave a depression for holding water. Syringe the tops several times.

Decidious shrubs make a nice contrast when planted with evergreens and especially fine are a few red barked dogwood. Never allow evergreens to enter winter in dry soil or the needles will fall, after turning brown. Fill outdoor window boxes with small evergreens.

Tuesday, Sept. 16.

Bulbs of various kinds may be purchased now. Try a few early narcissus, the paperwhites, in gravel and water; they will do well in Vermiculite, a light flaky browning material that holds moisture. Place several bulbs in the container, fill with water and stand in a cool, dark, cellar, closet or other place until well rooted. Then place in the light window.

A few bulbs will flower without soil or water by simply placing several on a saucer. Among these are autumn crocus [colchicum] with beautiful pale lavender flowers. The Chinese sacred lily does delightfully in pebbles and water and the amaryllis will do the same. The latter should be kept growing until the leaves turn yellow and then allowed to rest until spring.

Lift and pot house plants from the garden now or before frost comes. Palms, oleanders, tropical cacti and other plants that are for house use should be cared for now. Shift those that need it and especially if wooden containers have rotted.

Wednesday, Sept. 17.

The hardy chrysanthemums are coming into flower. Apply commercial plant food when the buds show and keep well watered. Just before frost lift and pot a few and remove to the house for indoor blooming.

Divide spring and summer flowering perennials and plant in rich soil, but wait until spring to transplant autumn flowering kinds. The latter do not have time to become established before freezing weather and are likely to winter freeze.

Thursday, Sept. 18.

Gardeners should organize a neighborly club to cut and burn vacant weed infested lots. Millions of seeds are destroyed, insect harbors are burned and the gardener's work reduced the following year.

Hardy lily bulbils can be collected and sown in the frame and they will grow the following season. Fuchsias that have flowered can be stored until spring, started into growth, the young growths used as cutting materials and the old plants cut back and grown again.

Friday, Sept. 19.

Saving tender water lily plants during winter is often a problem, and often the plants are lifted about frost time, the leaves and roots cut back, a pit dug and the plants placed in it. The whole is securely covered with any available material. If no facilities are available whereby the plants can be kept over, purchase strong plants in spring and plant toward the end of May or the first week in June.

Saturday, Sept. 20.

With fall here tomorrow and this date being the time when the first light frost can be expected, it is wise to get all tender plants under cover or temporarily protected. Keep the lawn cut as usual. Order all trees that are to be fall planted.

HARMONIOUS USE OF WOOD GIVES CHARM TO HOME

Dove Gray Finish Is Used Thruout House.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The harmonious use of beautiful wood is an outstanding impression of the new home of Dr. W. A. Schimmel, 630 North Belmont, Arlington Heights.

The architect, W. F. McCaughey, Pickwick building, Park Ridge, designed the house in a modified California ranch type, using stone gray tapestry brick for the lower story and garage walls and rough sawed batten striped cypress boards for the second story.

The interior treatment possesses many features of distinction and interest.

Wood Finish Is Gray.

The wood thruout is finished in a dove gray which supplies the background for the interior decorations. The furnishings are a combination of French provincial and California ranch house.

The large living room with a great 30 paneled window in the front has a ceiling of 6 inch V-jointed fir planking and 6 by 10 chamfered beams. The walls of both rooms are lightly textured of white plaster, the wood trim is oak, and the fireplace has a black marble face edged with a rope twisted oak moulding.

Walnut and beech wood in the French provincial style of furniture bring out the dove gray colors.

Antique Brass Lights.

There is the same ceiling treatment in the dining room with its large draw table, its rush bottom chairs, and draw drapes in turquoise, terra cotta, and yellow. Four bracket fixtures in antique brass supply the lighting and there's a beige and brown patterned rug on the floor.

As one looks thru the house from the front hall the full glass west wall of the breakfast room gives a view of the garden and pines. Here the walls are papered with an apple blossom pattern on turquois blue and a brass bowled light with a pewter shade hangs from the ceiling.

There is a convenient service entrance which leads both to the kitchen and to the doctor's den. This den can be used as a supplementary office and its treatment is the type to appeal to a masculine eye. It is paneled and trimmed with 6, 8, and 10 inch V-jointed grayed oak planks and furnished with oak furniture that has a suggestion of Viking sturdiness.

Red Floor in Den.

The desk chair is studded with brass nails and backed in red-orange leather, bookcases are on each side of the window, and the red and beige checks in the drapes relate to the red tile linoleum floor pattern. The final masculine touch, however, is the 41 pound wahoo which hangs on the paneled wall—a proud trophy of Dr. Schimmel.

Mrs. Schimmel is especially delighted with the treatment of wood thruout the house because of the ease of maintaining it.

On the hall staircase to the second floor the oak turned spindles and rails of the hall staircase almost match the gray-beige of the rough lock weave carpet.

Porch Off Bedroom.

In the master bedroom large hydrangeas in rose and gray greens pattern the walls, with birch trim and doors supplying the gray-beige color, and the furniture is French provincial in spirit. An open porch is reached thru this room, directly over a large screened porch on the ground level.

Grayed oak furniture in a ranch house style is the perfect choice for the boys' room. Here the paper is bridle and spur in red, green, and white on deep blue. There are sturdy red leather hassocks and red embroidered names of the boys on the rough cream colored bedspreads. Another very masculine room, with a door to an upper deck and over this deck the branches from a spreading tree close to the house.

MASQUERS FIND NIGHTLY ESCAPE IN STAGE ROLES

Little Theater Plays to Free Audiences.

64th street, is another veteran of the group, having been with the company since 1935. Mrs. Curtis is a department store clerk. John Howard, 20, 4921 South Honore street, is a newcomer to the masquers but has been on the vaudeville stage for a short time. He decided he had enough of vaudeville when his tumbling act became stranded in Kansas City, Mo. He took a job in a department store to get fare to come back to Chicago and the stage.

Another newcomer is Phyllis Hiller, 6736 East End avenue. Miss Hiller, 17, is the youngest member and a freshman at Wilson junior college. Dolores Girten, 18, 5436 South Bishop street, a stenographer, arranges the music and plays the piano for the radio programs or when a play calls for music.

Stops to Watch and Joins.

Then there is Miss Lorraine Hanson, 58 West 66th street, a telephone operator, who stopped in to watch a play rehearsal three years ago and has been a member ever since; Blaine Hill, 2602 West 61st street, married and a welder by trade; and Ross Nickelsen, 425 Englewood avenue, who is a press feeder during the day but at night is the group's lighting and makeup expert in addition to taking part in the productions and radio programs.

On the walls of the theater laboratory are several plaques awarded by neighborhood organizations to the Masquers as winners of little theater competitions. Theirs is the only little theater group having an honorary membership to the Northwestern university Masque and Gavel honor society.

1:45-2:15 p. m.—Report of the committee on foreign relations and committee on national defense. W-G-N and MBS.

THURSDAY.

10:30-11 a. m.—Special program, music and speakers, by American Legion auxiliary. MBS only.

1:45-2:15 p. m.—Annual election of officers and address by new national commander. W-G-N and MBS.

Jack Brickhouse, W-G-N announcer well known for his work on special events and sports programs, will be at the W-G-N-MBS microphone in Milwaukee. The W-G-N staff at the convention will be headed by Bruce Dennis, director; Howdee Meyers, and Engineer Jack Pearce.

MARION CLAIRE SINGS TO LEGIONNAIRES IN MILWAUKEE TONIGHT

Marion Claire, singing star of the Chicagoland Hour on W-G-N and the Mutual network, will make a guest appearance in Milwaukee, Wis., tonight at the first mass gathering of delegates to the American Legion convention. She will sing two songs at patriotic services in the Emil Blatz Temple of Music, Washington Park. Henry Weber, her husband, conductor of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, will accompany her at the piano. The numbers will be "Maids of Cadiz," by Delibes and "Melody of Love" by Lehar.

On W-G-N Show

Skinnay Ennis and Carmene, his wife, who sings with the Ennis orchestra, will be guests on the "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" on W-G-N-Mutual at 9:30 tomorrow night.

SKINNAY ENNIS, CARMENE TO JOIN TOM, DICK, HARRY

Carmene, beautiful and talented vocalist with Skinnay Ennis and his orchestra, as well as Skinnay himself, will join the "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9:30 p. m., tomorrow.

The popular pair are currently appearing at the Chicago theater, having just finished an engagement in the Empire room of the Palmer House. Carmene is Mrs. Ennis in private life.

The program not too modestly will open with "The Great American Broadcast," featuring the orchestra under the direction of Bob Trendler and the trio. Carmene's offerings will include "Yes, My Darling Daughter" and a duet with Skinnay.

Musical highlights from radio's craziest trio will be an original song titled, "Tweet, Tweet," and one from the hills called "Brother Ezra and Sister Sue."

Bob Trendler will make another attempt to complete the orchestra's boogie-woogie solo without interruption from the boys. The production is under the direction of William A. Bacher.

CO-EDS TO GET CHANCE TO SING AND WIN CASH

Betty Co-ed will have her chance to sing on a coast to coast network, win $1,000 in cash, and earn a $4,000 musical fellowship. Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra will give talented college girls that opportunity on the Hour of Charm program beginning at 9 p. m., Sept. 28, over WMAQ-NBC.

The best feminine vocalist from each of 10 leading state colleges and universities will be heard in 10 successive weeks on Hour of Charm.

Then the three girls adjudged best in the group will be brought back for additional appearances. Each of the three finalists will receive $1,000 in cash and one of them will carry back to her college or university a $4,000 fellowship to be awarded in her name to deserving fellow musical students over a four year period.

Double or Nothing Opens New Series at 6 Tonight

"Double or Nothing," W-G-N-Mutual quiz show, will start its second year on the air with a new day and a new time. It will be heard from 6 to 6:30 p. m. Sundays, starting today.

The series, featuring Walter Compton, Frank Forest, soloist; Nat Brusiloff's orchestra, and Announcer Alois Havrilla started a year ago and soon won a place as one of the country's leading audience participation shows. The Mutual network hook-up of 116 stations is the largest of any quiz show on the air.

Belbenoir on W-G-N.

Rene Belbenoir, noted author of two best sellers, "Dry Guillotine" and "Escape from Devil's Island," will be the guest of "Danger Is My Business" over W-G-N and the Mutual at 9:15 p. m. next Wednesday.

OPERETTA HOUR WILL BE 9:45-11 DURING OCTOBER

"Merry Widow" Opening Show Oct. 4.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Because Chicago will continue with daylight saving time thru October the Chicago Theater of the Air will be presented for four weeks over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network from 9:45 to 11 p. m. The first production will be "The Merry Widow," by Franz Lehar on Saturday, Oct. 4.

The Theater of the Air is to return to W-G-N and Mutual in response to the appeal of a multitude of last year's operetta listeners. The schedule for this season calls for 26 operettas, half of them favorites of the 1940-'41 season. The remainder will be equally beloved scores slated for their first radio appearance.

The program will be heard at 8:45 p. m. starting in November.

Col. McCormick to Speak.

The plan for the operetta programs will include an address by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who has been heard thru the summer on the Saturday night Chicagoland hour.

This season the Theater of the Air will be on the air 1 hour and 15 minutes, a quarter hour longer than last season. William R. Bacher, director of programs and production, who will again direct the operettas, said that the added time will make possible a fuller and more desirable treatment of each operetta than could be given in the past.

Singing stars of the opening production, "The Merry Widow," will be Marion Claire, prima donna in all 20 of last season's operettas, and Allan Jones, romantic tenor of the opera and screen.

List of Productions.

Then, on successive Saturday nights, there will be "New Moon," Oct. 11, with Thomas Thomas, New York baritone; "Sari," Oct. 18, with Igor Gorin; "Sweethearts," Oct. 25, with John Carter, star of opera, the concert stage, and radio, and "The Red Mill," Nov. 1, again with Carter. Miss Claire will sing the soprano lead in each of these productions.

Later in the season the Theater of the Air will offer "The Vagabond King," "Naughty Marietta," "The Mikado," "Hansel and Gretel," "Belle of New York," "Pinafore," "The Desert Song," "Rose of Algiers," "La Bohême," "I Pagliacci," and "Carmen."

Singing stars to be heard with Miss Claire in various of these operettas are Jan Peerce, John Brownlee, Charles Kullman, Frederick Jagel, Robert Weede, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of the Chicagoland hour.

ROLE OF FARMER IN DEFENSE TO BE FORUM SUBJECT

"Farmers and Defense" will be the topic discussed during the University of Chicago Round Table broadcast at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. Participating in the broadcast will be Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, T. W. Schultz, head of the agricultural economics department at Iowa State college, Ames, and William H. Spencer, dean of the school of business, University of Chicago.

Robinson-Shapiro Fight on W-G-N—MBS Friday

The lightweight nontitle 10 round fight between Ray Robinson, colored sensation who recently defeated Sammy Angott, N. B. A. titleholder, and Maxie Shapiro, New York battler, will be broadcast by W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9 p. m., Friday. Don Dunphy will describe the round by round action, while Bill Corum will handle the color.

Starts Own Show

Virginia Simms, who became famous with Kay Kyser when they were at the Blackhawk and on W-G-N, is leaving the Kyser College of Musical Knowledge on NBC, and starting a show of her own at 8:55 p. m. next Friday on WBBM-CBS. She also has a new long term movie contract.

It's graduation time for Ginny Simms, prettiest pupil in Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge, aired at 9 p. m., Wednesdays, over WMAQ-NBC. After four years of singing with Kyser and his orchestra, Ginny and the "Old Professor" are parting.

When Kay and his boys leave for the east soon, Ginny will remain in Hollywood to devote her full time and attention to screen work for RKO and a new program of her own on CBS Friday evenings. Ginny made her film debut in Kyser's first starring film, had a better spot in her second show, and is one of the hits of his current "Playmates."

Jimmie Fidler Starts New Series Over Mutual

Jimmie Fidler, Hollywood commentator, is heard in a series of programs on W-G-N and the Mutual network every Friday from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m. Bill Goodman is the announcer.

LUTHERANS TO MARK ANNIVERSARIES

MASQUERS FIND NIGHTLY ESCAPE IN STAGE ROLES

Little Theater Plays to Free House.

BY ARTHUR MIDDLETON.

His daytime occupation is that of a machinist. But two evenings a week 31-year-old John Olmstead is a promising young playwright with all Hollywood clamoring for his services—that is the character Olmstead is currently protraying as a member of the Masquer Studio players, the southwest side's little theater group.

So it is with other members of the group; by day they are telephone operators, shipping clerks, stenographers, and press feeders, but at night they become actors and actresses.

For a majority of the group, the theater serves as a hobby. But then there is Miss Nadine Sable, of Oak Lawn, who has been a member of the group for three years and intends to make acting her profession. Edmund Reidy, 8011 Perry avenue, a plasterer, joined the group six months ago for a different reason.

He's Against War.

"I joined to brush up on my public speaking," Mr. Reidy said. "With the country appearing to be heading toward war, I want to do my little part in trying to deter it. I was in the last war and hope I won't see a repetition of 1917 and '18. By speaking before neighborhood groups I might be able to change a few minds about wanting to get into something that is none of our business."

The group is inaugurating the Masquer's 12th season with the rehearsal of "Hollywood Episode," written by their director, Howard Rooney, and founder of this little theater group. Mr. Rooney, a quick little man, was injected with actor's blood when he was 5 years old and appeared on the New York stage with Mary Pickford.

Organization of the Masquer Studio theater in 1929 followed years of trouping with stock companies thru the United States and Canada; elementary school teaching; and working for the Chicago park district. In addition to writing plays and directing the company, Mr. Rooney next week will begin his third year as physical culture, speech and dramatic instructor at Visitation High school.

No Charge for Plays.

The theater occupies two gayly decorated rooms on the third floor of an office building at 357 West 63d street. Here the senior group of 25 men and women holds evening rehearsals for plays and a half-hour radio program which they present each Saturday afternoon over station WHIP. In the afternoons, Mr. Rooney's assistant, William Krahn, instructs a juvenile group in speech and drama.

Here also are held the neighborhood previews of the little theater plays. On opening night an audience of nearly 100 persons is crowded into one room to wait for the curtain to part revealing the second room which serves as a stage. The group never charges admission to the plays and the only requisite to getting a seat for performances is to be early while there is still room.

Stage props are constructed by the players who also arrange the lighting effects. Occasionally costumes are rented but not before the group has found it impossible to make them. Each player pays $2 dues amonth which goes for rent and a few other necessities. Quite often the dues is not enough to cover expenses and Mr. Rooney quietly digs into his own pocket for the difference.

Tenth Week on Air.

In addition to preparing for a new play each month, a number of the group meet two other evenings a week to rehearse for their weekly radio program. The weekly scripts, having to do with the life of historical characters, are prepared by Mr. Rooney. The Masquers are starting their 10th week on the air.

New members for the little theater and the radio programs are always being sought by Mr. Rooney who is eager to work with the inexperienced who have a desire to act. Mr. Rooney's troupe is without regular leading men and ladies. That is, the leading man in one month's play may next month take the part of a butler with only a line or two to speak.

"In that way we aren't bothered with prima donnas," the director explained.

After the company's first performance of the season on Sept. 29, it will give monthly performances at Camp Grant, Camp Sheridan, the juvenile detention home, Chicago Home for Incurables, and several charitable institutions. A letter from any worthwhile organization is all that is needed to get the Masquers to give a performance.

Who Players Are.

Mrs. Courtney Curtis, 1336 West

College and Campus Claim Thoughts of These South Side Girls

Campus, clubs, fall clothes, and rushing are some of the words used most by south side girls these days. These pictures are proof that the girls who use them will be contributing beauty to many a campus scene. Take, for example, the University of Chicago women leaders who recently gathered around a tea table at the Hotel Shoreland. Discussing activities for this semester were (left to right) Louise Eaton, 6844 Crandon avenue, Quadrangle club; Mary Toft, 5649 Cottage Grove avenue, Wyvern club; Jane Moran of Berwyn, Sigma club; Virginia Allen, also of Berwyn, Chi Rho Sigma club, and Shirley Latham, 6019 Kimbark avenue, Esoteric club. Miss Allen is president of the Interclub council and Miss Latham is president of the Woman's Federation.

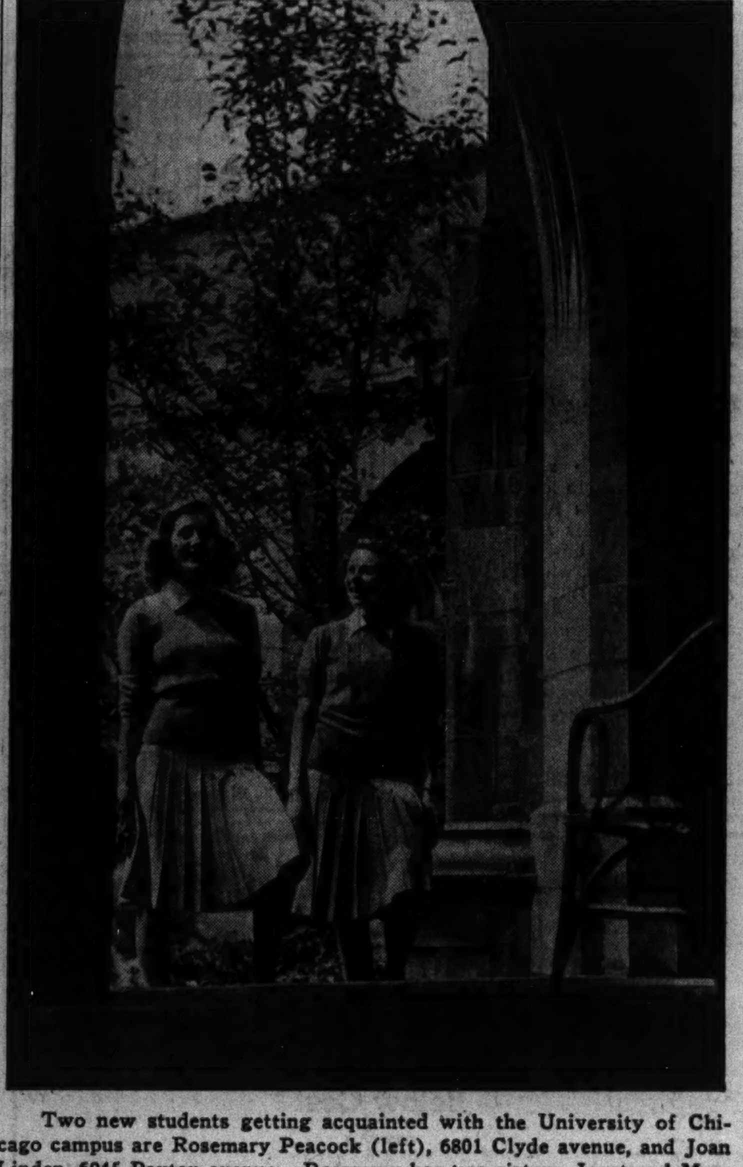
Also at Chicago and silhouetted against Gothic architecture are Margaret Reece (left), 6726 Oglesby avenue; Joan Roehler, 6748 Union avenue, and Barbara Price, 5756 Kenwood avenue. Joan and Barbara will be permanent decorations on the campus this year, but Margaret will depart soon for Smith college.



Two new students getting acquainted with the University of Chicago campus are Rosemary Peacock (left), 6801 Clyde avenue, and Joan Linden, 6945 Paxton avenue. Rosemary has two sisters, Janet and Margaret, who are upper classmen on the campus.

Saying good-by at the Starrett School for Girls, where they passed four years, were Maxine Wright (left), 4520 Drexel boulevard, and Nancy May Pinkerton, 4430 Ellis avenue. Maxine has enrolled at the University of Chicago and Nancy will be at DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

THE Rev. Bernard L. Gordon, who was ordained in Chicago only three years ago, has been appointed pastor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, Tempe, Ariz. Father Gordon has been acting as chancellor in the Tucson diocese and editor of the Arizona edition of The Register, Catholic newspaper. He was born at 6839 Yale avenue in 1912 and educated at St. Bernard's grammar school, Quigley Preparatory, St. Patrick's seminary, Menlo Park, Cal., and Kendrick seminary, Webster Groves, Mo. He was ordained by the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, on May 22, 1938.

From Three Oaks, Mich., Mrs. John Ackerman sends an idyllic story of four south side business girls who like nothing better than picking peaches all day on her farm. The girls, La Verne and Eleanor Beadle, Margaret Welt, and Clarice Lind, are vacationing in La Porte county, Indiana, just across the state line.

"And the funny thing about it," comments Mrs. Ackerman, "is that they absolutely refuse any compensation for their work. They just do it for the love of it."

TOMORROW Dr. J. B. Hershman will become president in active charge of the Dodge Telegraph and Radio institute at Valparaiso university. The school was founded in 1874 as a department of the Northern Indiana Normal school, now Valparaiso university. The teaching of radio was begun in 1909 and the courses were expanded steadily. Dr. Hershman reorganized all radio courses in 1934 and has been director of radio there ever since. He was an instructor at Indiana university in 1932 and 1933 and has a doctor of philosophy degree in physics.

If you want to see a really big dahlia, peek in at the garden of John J. Hurley, 7930 South Burnham avenue, which has become the talk of the neighborhood. Neighbors, who have heard that dahlias seldom grow more than four or five feet high, are excitedly discussing the Hurley plant, which now stands nine feet five inches.

James J. Doheny, 9654 South Hamilton avenue, is reported back home after graduating cum laude from Harvard university. He took a bachelor of arts degree, majoring in economics.

BY PAUL HEALY.

(Picture on page 5.)

The trouble with Christopher Sergel, 4830 Kenwood avenue, is that he has just returned from an adventure every man dreams about — personally sailing halfway around the globe by way of Puerto Rico, Tahiti, Hawaii, and Alaska. He fidgeted restlessly in his office last week, wondering when he could organize another expedition on his 76 foot schooner, Chance. The nostalgia for rolling seas, tropical climates, and colorful islands, he says, is almost too much for him.

Christopher Sergel.

The south side's modern Aeneas, who is only 23, and his wife, Hope, who is only 21, traveled 18,000 miles on the water between June, 1940, and August, 1941. They did it simply because they'd always wanted to and it merely whetted their wanderlust. It was hard work, but it was wonderful, reports Christopher, who gained 25 pounds during the voyage. Both were graduated from the University of Chicago in 1939.

Conquer Hard Problems.

Looking back now, the Sergels are glad they didn't let their lack of experience discourage their plans. From the day they coasted out of New York, while France was falling and friends warned them about the international situation, to the final docking at San Pedro, Cal., last month, their nonchalance and resourcefulness saw them thru many a tight problem. With only two yachting lessons behind them, they learned to be good sailors by sailing, and took their crew where they found it, airily bidding good-by to shipmates or signing on strangers whenever it was necessary.

"We started with three other young couples whom we picked up in New York," said the young skipper, "but there was a constant turnover in the crew at every port. The fellows couldn't resist taking attractive jobs offered them on the islands. We were able to find others, tho once we were shorthanded. Altogether, we had 16 different persons with us at one time or another and few knew any more about sailing than we did."

From his experience Christopher concludes that the ideal crew is a "bunch of dumb athletes." On dull days, he laughs, "we'd fool around with our sails, trying things which would make a yachtsman faint. We had a lot of fun with our Genoa job especially. It pulled like a horse."

Had Some Equipment.

Their auxiliary schooner is gaff-rigged and can sleep 15 persons. On board was a sextant, chronometer, parallel rules, dividers, compass, and some old French charts, which were "terrible." They also were equipped with a Springfield rifle and a pair of .22s which they used to shoot deer in Alaska, bulls in the Galapagos, and goats and pigs in the Marquesas to spice their diet. Otherwise they subsisted largely on corned beef hash.

Before the Sergels left New York they stocked up with $80 worth of medical equipment, expecting trouble in the South seas, but all they ever used was a bottle of iodine. Each new crew member was obliged to pass a strict physical examination and none ever became ill. Nowhere, incidentally, did the weather ever become as hot or as cold as it gets in Chicago.

After New York the principal stopping places were Puerto Rico, Panama, Tahiti, the Marquesas, Hawaii, and Alaska in that order. Their longest period without touching land was the 36 days between Honolulu and Seward, Alaska.

Yet the Sergels maintain they never grew tired of the Pacific; they found the rhythm of eating, sleeping, reading, standing watch, and doing other chores an agreeable one. Christopher passed part of the time writing a play for his father's publishing house, the Dramatic Publishing company.

Bright Spots Recalled.

Some of the things the young wanderers like to recall are the whales that spouted water on them in the Gulf of Alaska, the Tahitian natives who say "him capsize" for "he died," the uncharted isle they discovered among the Tuomatus Islands, the newspaper men who asked them if they'd spied any German submarines, and the beautiful little island of Nukuhiva with its ideal climate, lush vegetation, and primitive inhabitants.

The crew laid over for three months in Tahiti, which is now controled by the Free French, and later explored the interior of the Marquesas, about 800 miles away. Everywhere they were warmly received by officials.

Christopher says he has an affection for the Chance and sleeps better at sea than on land. Nevertheless, he maintains he knows nothing of "yachty things" and has promised himself he will never wear a captain's cap or join a yacht club.

Madonna K. of C. Holding Annual Carnival This Week

Madonna council, No. 1135, Knights of Columbus, is presenting its annual carnival at 47th and Halsted streets this week. Highlight will be the crowning of Miss Veronica Kennedy as the popularity queen of West Kenwood.

TWO CHURCHES OBSERVE 70TH AND 50TH YEARS

St. Peter's to Start Program Today.

Two south side Lutheran churches situated within a mile of one another will begin celebrating lengthy anniversaries this week. St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church, 7400 South Michigan avenue, will observe its 70th birthday with an eight day program starting this morning and the Gustavus Adolphus Lutheran church, 7426 Drexel avenue, is making preparations for a golden anniversary period which will last from next Sunday until Nov. 9.

The Rev. A. B. Preisinger.

The Rev. Arthur B. Preisinger, pastor, has announced that the celebration at St. Peter's will coincide with the opening of the newly decorated parish auditorium. There will be a German festival service at 9:30 o'clock this morning and an English festival service at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Theodore Laetsch of Concordia seminary in St. Louis, Mo., will be guest speaker. Wilbur Marten and William Cholcher, teachers in the parochial school, will be organists and music will be furnished by the church's combined choirs.

Plan Mission Services.

Outstanding events scheduled for this week are an anniversary dinner at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening, followed by a social, and Jubilee Mission services next Sunday. The latter will be in German at 9:30 o'clock and in English at 11 o'clock.

The Rev. Carl Abel of Zion church will be guest speaker at the women's organization service at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. Anthems will be sung by the ladies' choir of Hope church and the Rev. Oscar Rauschelbach will be guest organist. On Tuesday evening there will be a Young People's service at 8 o'clock. A talk will be given by the Rev. A. R. Kretzmann of St. Luke's church.

A men's service will take place at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, when the Rev. Arthur Brauer of Chicago Heights is guest speaker. Anthems will be sung by the Walther League male chorus from St. James' church. Guest speaker at the Christian Education service Friday evening will be the Rev. J. W. Behnken, president of the Missouri synod. Songs will be sung by St. Peter's day school and Sunday school pupils.

Has 1,000 Members.

The congregation, which has 1,000 members, was organized in 1871 by seven members of the Lutheran faith at 39th and Dearborn streets. Fifty years later the place of worship was moved to its present address and construction of a new church building was begun, tho it was not completed until 1927. The Rev. Mr. Preisinger succeeded the Rev. Charles Tedrahn in 1937.

Anniversary programs at the Gustavus Adolphus church, which has grown from 17 to 1,100 members in 50 years, will be given on 12 days during the seven weeks period beginning next Sunday. The religious and social functions will be climaxed on Nov. 9, the day on which the new Sunday school is expected to be finished.

The Rev. J. A. Parkander.

The church was organized on Nov. 6, 1891, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Karstrom, 843 East 76th street. There were 17 charter members in the original small frame church building. In 1905 a large Sunday school was built and the congregation used it as a place of worship for 11 years.

Parsonage Is Built.

In 1916 the present superstructure was added. Shortly afterward a parsonage was erected across the street. The conerstone of the new Sunday school building will be laid at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

During its first nine years the church had three pastors—the Rev. A. S. Becklund, the Rev. H. O. Lindeblad, and the Rev. C. P. Rydholm. From 1900 to 1908 the Rev. J. W. Swanbeck was pastor. He was succeeded by the Rev. J. N. Brandelle. The Rev. J. A. Parkander, present pastor, has held the position since 1926.

First Program Sunday.

First of the anniversary programs will be one sponsored by the Missionary groups at 7:45 o'clock next Sunday evening. The climax will be the dedication of the new Sunday school building at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Nov. 9. The Rev. O. A. Benson, president of the Illinois Lutheran conference, will officiate.

Other highlights scheduled for the golden jubilee weeks are the Luther League Open forum on Oct. 12, Historical night on Oct. 29, and the official anniversary service at 10:45 o'clock Sunday morning, Nov. 2. The Rev. Mr. Brandelle, former pastor, will be guest speaker.

STUDY BUSINESS AREA EXPANSION TO HELP ZONING

Plan Commission Gives Data on Growth.

Chicago's business and commercial areas are expected to continue to develop naturally after the proposed new zoning ordinance is adopted, just as they have in the past. That assurance was given last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the sub-committee that is preparing the new land use law for submission to the city council, probably next month.

The subcommittee is basing zoning changes on studies of how the more prosperous business localities grew before zoning came into use, Ald. Lindell said.

Because the present ordinance of 1923, the city's first venture into the field of zoning, set up several times as much commercial territory as the city requires, the drafters of the new ordinance are rezoning much of this space for residential use.

Plat Best Business Areas.

Their big problem at the outset was to determine which business zones had been unwisely established and which should be allowed to remain. No reliable data on the subject was available, so the Chicago Plan commission, of which Ald. Lindell is a member, undertook to determine scientifically which spots are best for business zones.

Commercial zones as delineated in the present zoning ordinance permit all kinds of businesses such as department stores, theaters, and gasoline stations, as well as light manufacturing. The new ordinance would set up a new "business" classification, which would permit only small stores and professional offices, restricting the heavier uses to commercial zones.

Visiting store owners personally and studying occupancy and income records, the commission's workers were able to map the approximate boundaries of the profitable portions of the larger business centers.

Where Trade Is Best.

They found that, whereas the present ordinance provides business zones in continuous strips on each side of most important thorofares, the natural tendency of trade areas is to cluster fairly closely about the intersections of section or half-section lines. The reason is that most main travel areas in the city and such transportation facilities as street cars and buses are on survey lines.

The plan commission workers established from various previous studies that there are 21 principal outlying business areas, most of which follow the section line rule. They are:

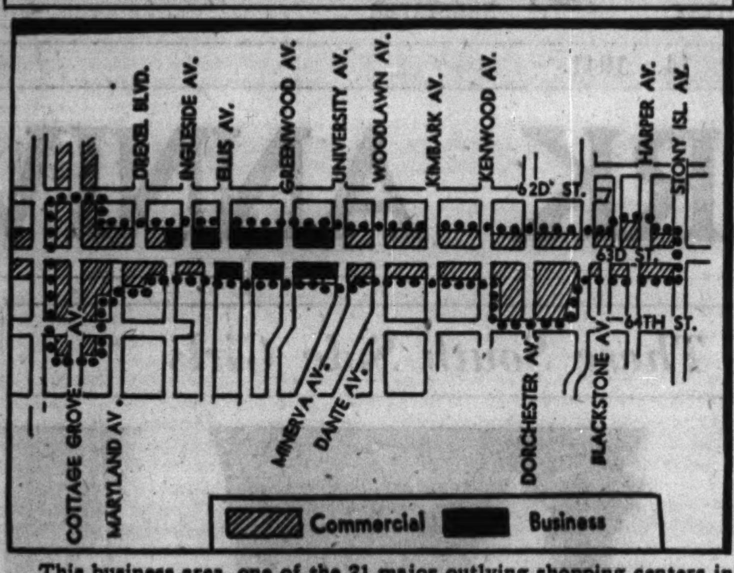
Devon-Western.
Lawrence-Kedzie.
Lawrence-Wilson-Broadway-Sheridan.
Lincoln-Ashland-Belmont.
Milwaukee from Logan Square to Wellington.
Milwaukee-Irving Park-Cicero.
Milwaukee from Division to North.
Chicago-Western.
Chicago-Pulaski.
Roosevelt-Halsted.
Roosevelt from Pulaski to Kedzie.
26th from Pulaski to Kedzie.
47th-Ashland.
47th-South Park.
63d-Halsted.
63d from Stony Island to Cottage Grove.
71st-Jeffery.
79th-Halsted.
92d-Commercial.
Michigan from 110th to 115th.

Look to Future.

Ald. Lindell said that while a few of these primary business areas have spread out laterally from the busy intersections where they began, most of them are bunched fairly closely about the crossing points. The same is true of the lesser trade areas in the city, to which the plan commission survey is being extended, he said.

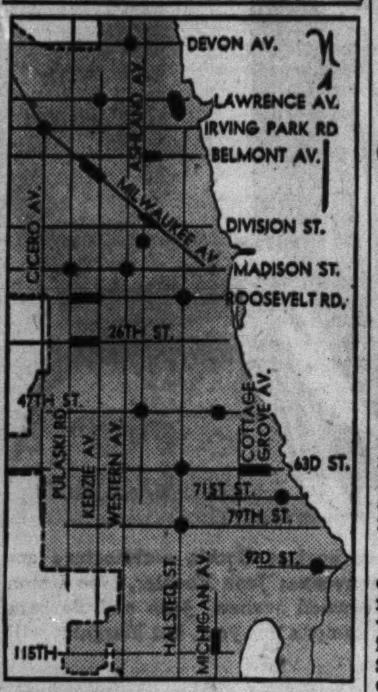
The study suggests that even in undeveloped residential areas, the logical places for primary business zones are the points where section lines meet; and for secondary zones the junctions of half-section lines. The subcommittee believes the study shows that strip business zoning as practiced in the 1923 ordinance is a mistake that has held back many regions of the city.

How a South Side Business Area Grew



This business area, one of the 21 major outlying shopping centers in the city, is an exception to the rule that such areas cluster naturally about important street intersections. The dotted line marks the boundaries of the more prosperous business localities, as determined by a Chicago plan commission survey. The keyed portions of the map represent the commission's recommendations to the aldermen who are drafting Chicago's new zoning ordinance. Most of the keyed area is at present zoned commercial.

Major Trade Areas



Heavy block spots on this map indicate the city's 21 major outlying shopping areas as determined by studies made by the Chicago plan commission. The survey established that most of the important trade centers grew about the junctions of section and half-section lines, a principle the city's planners are applying in helping rezone undeveloped areas.

15 TAKE COAST GUARD TRAINING AT STATION HERE

Group Transferred from New Orleans.

Because of expansion in United States navy personnel, 15 seamen are being trained at the South Chicago coast guard station at 98th street. The seamen, who are between 18 and 25 years old, have been sent from the coast guard training station at New Orleans for the second stage of their education in rescue work and marine law regulations.

Training in self-reliance is emphasized, according to John D. Kirby, chief boatswain's mate in charge of the station. At different times each man must become a painter, cook, gardener, carpenter, housekeeper, or anything else circumstances require, in addition to learning seamanship. The trainees take care of all the duties around the station's 15 room building, which includes offices, boatroom, bedrooms, kitchen, and drillroom.

What They Learn.

During their period of training the men must become proficient in rowing, sailing, handling beach apparatus, methods of resuscitation and fire drills, capsized boat drills, and lights and signal drills. They must memorize 130 pages of regulations governing motor boats, customs, and other coastal problems and develop into expert swimmers.

Trainees, who must enlist for three years, receive $21 a month for four months, $36 a month for the next three months, and $54 a month after that, unless they are promoted. Training stations are used for preliminary experience before the seamen are assigned to duty on naval transports on the ocean.

Irving Carlson will retire from the South Chicago station on Oct. 1 after serving as assistant lighthouse keeper on Lake Michigan for 18 years. He passed the last seven years at the lighthouse off 86th street. With other lighthouse keepers he was inducted into the coast guard in 1939.

Aids in Rescue.

Two memorable experiences marked Mr. Carlson's career. One was helping to rescue men from the sandboat Material Service, which sank off 86th street in 1936. Another was spying a sea lion swimming near the lighthouse eight years ago. No one believed his story, however, until the sea lion was washed ashore dead on the 79th street beach.

KAHN CLUB AIDS WILL RESUME MEETINGS TODAY

The south side auxiliary of the Dorothy Kahn Club for Crippled Children will hold its first fall meeting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Chicago Beach hotel. Miss Bette Rudich, president, will preside.

Plans for the annual fashion show and dance will be discussed.

Mercy Forum

Mrs. Walter F. Riley, 6909 Chappel avenue, is chairman of the first program for the Mercy Federation forum at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Mercy High school, 81st street and Prairie avenue. The Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, archbishop of Chicago, will be guest speaker.

LEAVES GRANTED 22 TEACHERS FOR STUDY OR TRAVEL

Receive Pay but Must Hire Substitutes.

Twenty-two public school teachers of the south side are among the 138 thruout the city who recently were granted new sabbatical leaves or extensions, according to James B. McCahey, president of the board of education. The leaves of two other south side teachers were terminated at their own request.

Sabbatical leaves are given teachers who have satisfactorily completed five years of teaching, McCahey explained. The salaries of the teachers go on, but they must pay the salaries of the substitutes required because of their absence.

For Study or Travel.

These leaves are given for the purpose of study or travel. Regular leaves require that the teachers earn credits in three major courses in some accredited college. Special leaves require course attendance but only for auditory purposes. The travel must be to places of historical importance.

Each leave must be for not less than five nor more than ten school months. Leaves are not cumulative; that is, a teacher may not work ten years and then demand two sabbatical leaves in a row.

Three teachers at Hyde Park High school are among the 23 south siders given new leaves or extensions. They are Mary A. Hinkley, who obtained a ten-month special leave, and Laurel E. Gillogly and Ethel Mullison, who got regular leaves of five months.

Four at Bowen.

Alice C. Browning and Mildred W. Kirk of Forestville school were granted 10-month leaves. Of four Bowen High teachers in the list, Caroline D. Justin and Emily A. Frake got 10-month leaves, Jeanette L. Wothen got one of five months, and Bertie E. Miller got a 3½ month extension of a five-month leave.

Other teachers given 10-month leaves were Florence G. Lahr of Phillips High, Marie E. Houlihan of Shakespeare elementary, Wilhelmine French of Phillips elementary, Kathryn Morris of Madison elementary, Myrtle F. Price of Bryn Mawr elementary, Maybelle Charpie of Revere elementary, and Isolina R. Flores of Hyde Park High.

Two Get Extensions.

Evangeline S. Peterson of Gallistel elementary was given a seven-month leave. Five month leaves were granted William L. Fenner of Hirsch High, Annabel C. Prescott of Du Sable High, and Charlotte M. Lundin of Kozminski elementary.

Extensions granted included: Margaret M. Dowell of Wadsworth elementary, five months, and Elizabeth N. McKeough of Bryn Mawr elementary, 1½ months.

HARMONIOUS USE OF WOOD GIVES CHARM TO HOME

Dove Gray Finish Is Used Thruout House.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The harmonious use of beautiful wood is an outstanding impression of the new home of Dr. W. A. Schimmel, 630 North Belmont, Arlington Heights.

The architect, W. F. McCaughey, Pickwick building, Park Ridge, designed the house in a modified California ranch type, using stone gray tapestry brick for the lower story and garage walls and rough sawed batten striped cypress boards for the second story.

The interior treatment possesses many features of distinction and interest.

Wood Finish Is Gray.

The wood thruout is finished in a dove gray which supplies the background for the interior decorations. The furnishings are a combination of French provincial and California ranch house.

The large living room with a great 30 paneled window in the front has a ceiling of 6 inch V-jointed fir planking and 6 by 10 chamfered beams. The walls of both rooms are lightly textured of white plaster, the wood trim is oak, and the fireplace has a black marble face edged with a rope twisted oak moulding.

Antique Brass Lights.

There is the same ceiling treatment in the dining room with its large draw table, its rush bottom chairs, and draw drapes in turquoise, terra cotta, and yellow. Four bracket fixtures in antique brass supply the lighting and there's a beige and brown patterned rug on the floor.

As one looks thru the house from the front hall the full glass west wall of the breakfast room gives a view of the garden and pines. Here the walls are papered with an apple blossom pattern on turquois blue and a brass bowled light with a pewter shade hangs from the ceiling.

There is a convenient service entrance which leads both to the kitchen and to the doctor's den. This den can be used as a supplementary office and its treatment is the type to appeal to a masculine eye. It is paneled and trimmed with 6, 8, and 10 inch V-jointed grayed oak planks and furnished with oak furniture that has a suggestion of Viking sturdiness.

Red Floor in Den.

The desk chair is studded with brass nails and backed in red-orange leather, bookcases are on each side of the window, and the red and beige checks in the drapes relate to the red tile linoleum floor pattern. The final masculine touch, however, is the 41 pound wahoo which hangs on the paneled wall—a proud trophy of Dr. Schimmel.

Mrs. Schimmel is especially delighted with the treatment of wood thruout the house because of the ease of maintaining it.

Porch Off Bedroom.

In the master bedroom large hydrangeas in rose and gray greens pattern the walls, with birch trim and doors supplying the gray-beige color, and the furniture is French provincial in spirit. An open porch is reached thru this room, directly over a large screened porch on the ground level.

Grayed oak furniture in a ranch house style is the perfect choice for the boys' room. Here the paper is bridle and spur in red, green, and white on deep blue. There are sturdy red leather hassocks and red embroidered names of the boys on the rough cream colored bedspreads. Another very masculine room, with a door to an upper deck and over this deck the branches from a spreading tree close to the house.

Ready for Jam Session

It's a real home-made jam session whenever Phyllis, Jimmie, and Gayle Quance get warmed up with their instruments in their home at 8148 Kimbark avenue. Phyllis, the veteran musician of the family, mans the piano, Jimmie wields his piano accordion, and Gayle "gives out" with her saxophone. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. H. Warren Quance.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 15.

Gardeners living in suburbs where evergreens flourish may plant at this time. Replace poor soil with good fresh soil. Buy good, well grown stock that is baled and balled; have the holes ready for the reception of the plants and plant immediately. Water as the hole is filled around the roots and leave a depression for holding water. Syringe the tops several times.

Decidious shrubs make a nice contrast when planted with evergreens and especially fine are a few red barked dogwood. Never allow evergreens to enter winter in dry soil or the needles will fall, after turning brown. Fill outdoor window boxes with small evergreens.

Tuesday, Sept. 16.

Bulbs of various kinds may be purchased now. Try a few early narcissus, the paperwhites, in gravel and water; they will do well in Vermiculite, a light flaky browning material that holds moisture. Place several bulbs in the container, fill with water and stand in a cool, dark, cellar, closet or other place until well rooted. Then place in the light window.

A few bulbs will flower without soil or water by simply placing several on a saucer. Among these are autumn crocus [colchicum] with beautiful pale lavender flowers. The Chinese sacred lily does delightfully in pebbles and water and the amaryllis will do the same. The latter should be kept growing until the leaves turn yellow and then allowed to rest until spring.

Wednesday, Sept. 17.

The hardy chrysanthemums are coming into flower. Apply commercial plant food when the buds show and keep well watered. Just before frost lift and pot a few and remove to the house for indoor blooming.

Divide spring and summer flowering perennials and plant in rich soil, but wait until spring to transplant autumn flowering kinds. The latter do not have time to become established before freezing weather and are likely to winter freeze.

Thursday, Sept. 18.

Gardeners should organize a neighborly club to cut and burn vacant weed infested lots. Millions of seeds are destroyed, insect harbors are burned and the gardener's work reduced the following year.

Hardy lily bulbils can be collected and sown in the frame and they will grow the following season. Fuchsias that have flowered can be stored until spring, started into growth, the young growths used as cutting materials and the old plants cut back and grown again.

Friday, Sept. 19.

Saving tender water lily plants during winter is often a problem, and often the plants are lifted about frost time, the leaves and roots cut back, a pit dug and the plants placed in it. The whole is securely covered with any available material. If no facilities are available whereby the plants can be kept over, purchase strong plants in spring and plant toward the end of May or the first week in June.

Saturday, Sept. 20.

With fall here tomorrow and this date being the time when the first light frost can be expected, it is wise to get all tender plants under cover or temporarily protected. Keep the lawn cut as usual. Order all trees that are to be fall planted.

THESE SKATERS TO FALL FARTHER IF WHEELS SKID

Hi-Ups Ready for Tall Evening of Fun.

Members of the "Hi-Ups" will be higher up than ever when they don roller skates for their party at White City tomorrow evening. This is the first of many autumn social events planned by the club, which was chartered last March as a haven for tall young men and women who are tired of mingling with people who don't approach their measurements.

Betty Etten.

Membership is open to girls over 5 feet 8 inches tall and between 18 and 30 years old and young men over 6 feet tall and between 20 and 35 years old. Members never look down on any one at the regular business meeting held every third Friday in Kimball hall. A social program of dancing or entertainment, featuring tall performers, always follows the business session.

Miss Betty Etten, 7921 Ingleside avenue, 6 feet tall, and Edmund Burke, 8405 Rhodes avenue, 6 feet 7½ inches, are queen and king of the "Hi-Ups." South side committee members for the roller skating party tomorrow evening are Miss Anita Andrulis, 5331 South Homan avenue, 5 feet 8½ inches; Miss Rosemary Richmond, 8818 South Carpenter street, 5 feet 11 inches; Bob Mercer, 2035 East 73d street, 6 feet 5½ inches; Herman Oswald, 8033 South Marshfield avenue, 6 feet 5 inches, and Joseph Wilson, 3309 South Lituanica avenue, 6 feet 1½ inches.

The social schedule calls for a hayrack party, a dinner-dance and a Halloween party in October. During the summer members went on picnics and beach parties.

The club, which now has 40 members is always interested in recruiting new members of impressive height, says Miss Etten.

JEWISH JUNIORS MEET TODAY FOR NEW SEASON

Three south side business men's groups will hear George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, Tuesday, Sept. 30, in a talk at the Hyde Park YMCA, 1400 East 53d street. It will be a joint meeting of the Hyde Park Lions club, the Woodlawn Kiwanis club, and the 55th Street Business Men's association.

MASQUERS FIND NIGHTLY ESCAPE IN STAGE ROLES

Little Theater Plays to Free Audiences.

64th street, is another veteran of the group, having been with the company since 1935. Mrs. Curtis is a department store clerk. John Howard, 20, 4921 South Honore street, is a newcomer to the masquers but has been on the vaudeville stage for a short time. He decided he had enough of vaudeville when his tumbling act became stranded in Kansas City, Mo. He took a job in a department store to get fare to come back to Chicago and the stage.

Another newcomer is Phyllis Hiller, 6736 East End avenue. Miss Hiller, 17, is the youngest member and a freshman at Wilson junior college. Dolores Girten, 18, 5436 South Bishop street, a stenographer, arranges the music and plays the piano for the radio programs or when a play calls for music.

Stops to Watch and Joins.

Then there is Miss Lorraine Hanson, 58 West 66th street, a telephone operator, who stopped in to watch a play rehearsal three years ago and has been a member ever since; Blaine Hill, 2602 West 61st street, married and a welder by trade; and Ross Nickelsen, 425 Englewood avenue, who is a press feeder during the day but at night is the group's lighting and makeup expert in addition to taking part in the productions and radio programs.

On the walls of the theater laboratory are several plaques awarded by neighborhood organizations to the Masquers as winners of little theater competitions. Theirs is the only little theater group having an honorary membership to the Northwestern university Masque and Gavel honor society.

CO-EDS TO GET CHANCE TO SING AND WIN CASH

Betty Co-ed will have her chance to sing on a coast to coast network, win $1,000 in cash, and earn a $4,000 musical fellowship. Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra will give talented college girls that opportunity on the Hour of Charm program beginning at 9 p. m., Sept. 28, over WMAQ-NBC.

The best feminine vocalist from each of 10 leading state colleges and universities will be heard in 10 successive weeks on Hour of Charm.

Then the three girls adjudged best in the group will be brought back for additional appearances. Each of the three finalists will receive $1,000 in cash and one of them will carry back to her college or university a $4,000 fellowship to be awarded in her name to deserving fellow musical students over a four year period.

Carmene, beautiful and talented vocalist with Skinnay Ennis and his orchestra, as well as Skinnay himself, will join the "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 9:30 p. m., tomorrow.

The popular pair are currently appearing at the Chicago theater, having just finished an engagement in the Empire room of the Palmer House. Carmene is Mrs. Ennis in private life.

The program not too modestly will open with "The Great American Broadcast," featuring the orchestra under the direction of Bob Trendler and the trio. Carmene's offerings will include "Yes, My Darling Daughter" and a duet with Skinnay.

Musical highlights from radio's craziest trio will be an original song titled, "Tweet, Tweet," and one from the hills called "Brother Ezra and Sister Sue."

Bob Trendler will make another attempt to complete the orchestra's boogie-woogie solo without interruption from the boys. The production is under the direction of William A. Bacher.

Bill Goodwin, one of Hollywood's favorite announcers, has been engaged for "Three Ring Time," the new W-G-N-Mutual network series, costarring Milton Berle and Charles Laughton and featuring Shirley Ross or Bob Crosby's orchestra. Tall, brown-haired Goodwin is an able foil for air comics. He scored a personal success on the Bob Hope show last season. "Three Ring Time" opened on more than 80 stations at 8:30 p. m. last Friday. It originates from the Hollywood studio-theater of Mutual's KHJ.

7,000 DAHLIAS TO GRACE EXHIBIT

MILL WHISTLES RULE DESTINY OF STEEL FAMILY

How Erickson Clan Goes Forward.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

The traveler riding north on Sheridan road thru North Chicago and Waukegan notices a few factories, a business district, and then a tree-arched avenue of attractive homes. Such is the casual picture of the north shore's great Waukegan-North Chicago industrial district, home of more than 20 major industries and dozens of small plants.

To thousands of employés in those plants the area is a composite of sharp calls of factory whistles, red gold flames of steel mills painting the darkness of night skies, the smooth roar of the controlled power of hundreds of engines, and cascades of smoke. These employés and their families model their lives upon the demands of industries, plan their activities according to work shift schedules.

All Work In Steel.

The Erickson of 628 Lincoln avenue, Waukegan, are part of the district's industrial army. John S. Erickson, 51 years old, of middle height and powerfully built, is a mechanic at Waukegan's Johns-Manville plant, where building materials are manufactured. His two sons, Harold, 30, and Ingevar, 28, have been at Manville 9 and 7 years, respectively. Harold is in the receiving office, and Ingevar's a welder.

The Erickson daughter, Mrs. Andrzejewski, is the wife of an employé of the Waukegan Steel Sales company. A family of workers, the Ericksons believe that good hard labor has made this country the industrial center it is. John Erickson is representative of the story of labor for he has lived the story himself. As president of the Johns-Manville union, local 19508, AFL, Erickson is by way of being a spokesman for labor, too.

Forty-two years ago when he was a sturdy little Montana boy just going on 11 years old he got his first job in a lumber camp. He worked in lumber camps until he'd grown up to be a young man of 14 when he started silver mining.

"They said they were taking silver out of those hills," he recalls, "but it looked like lead to me. Felt like it, too. "Within two more years, young Erickson was railroading on the Great Northern. He fired engines, helped to build bridges, repair pumps.

Masked Wrestler.

At 18, lumbering, mining, and railroading had given Erickson a fine set of muscles and a promoter took him in hand and sent him all over the country wrestling as "The Masked Marvel." "I didn't get beaten very often, either," Erickson grins. The Montana boy, son of a Finnish mother and Swedish father, met Selma Johnson while on a wrestling tour in Canada. After two years he returned to Selma, won her, and left wrestling to settle down as a married railroad man.

The Ericksons moved to De Kalb and by 1913 the former wrestler had been in business as a blacksmith, welder, and automobile repairman and was working in the De Kalb plant of the American Steel and Wire company. He was transferred to the Waukegan Works in 1915 and made a foreman in charge of construction of new factories. In the depression of the early 30's, Erickson reasoned that somebody would be laid off, and he had another job in view. He went to work at Manville.

Growing up with the country's industry meant being part of it to Erickson. He worked with motors and loved them, and since 1906 he has never been without his own automobile. Back in the early '20s he was a racing driver and roared round tracks when Tommy Middleton and Ralph de Palma were in the big names of the speedways.

Builds Own Home.

Coming to Waukegan with a growing family, he soon provided his own shelter for them. He built the five room bungalow that is his home back in 1922. He put it up himself in one month. A frame house, covered with brick siding within the last few years, it stands over a full basement.

The home is on the south side of Waukegan, residence section of many of the area's workers. Erickson says his 50 foot lot cost him $500 and the house cost $3,300. The lot rolls back into a ravine as do many lots in Waukegan where deep gullies crisscross the land as testimony of old river beds that drained into the lake.

Erickson later put up a three car garage for $312. Therein he used to take cars apart and put them together again. He doesn't use the shop much now but says his son Ingevar, who lives in Gurnee west of Waukegan and has a 4 year old daughter, Patricia Ann, and a 3 week old son, Roger Lee, carries on the family tradition of working with cars.

Meet Housing Problem.

The family cottage is filled to overflowing these days. Residing there are Erickson's daughter and husband and baby son, Roy, 19 months, and his son Harold with his wife and three children, Harold Jr., 4; Geraldine, 6, and Dorothy, 5. Increased pay rolls at the factories and the growth of the nearby Great Lakes Naval Training station have brought a hous-

A Photographer Makes an Evening Call on Busy Waukegan Family

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Erickson and their granddaughter, Patricia Ann, 4 years old, read the news and look at a scrapbook on the front steps of the Erickson five room cottage at 628 Lincoln avenue, Waukegan. Erickson, 51, is a mechanic at Waukegan's Johns-Manville plant and president of the AFL union there. He went to work in a Montana lumber camp before he was 11 and has been identified with industry nearly all of the time since. In his living room, right, he plays with two of his grandsons, Roy Andrzejewski, 19 months old, son of his daughter, Martha, and Harold Erickson Jr., 4 years old, son of Erickson's older son. Roy tries a headstand while Harold balances a cart on his pate. Harold Jr., has two sisters. His cousin, Patricia, daughter of Ingevar, the second Erickson son, has an infant brother. There are six Erickson grandchildren, three girls and three boys. Patricia's home is in Gurnee, a village three miles west of Waukegan.

Because of the increased production and enlarged pay rolls of Waukegan and North Chicago industries, there is a shortage of living quarters. Consequently Erickson's only daughter and her family and the Erickson's elder son and his family share the five room bungalow. The daughter, Mrs. Andrzejewski, likes to cook and bake so she takes over that part of the housekeeping. Grandma Erickson's favorite household task is sewing. She used to make all of the clothes for her three children, but now she keeps pretty busy mending. Harold Erickson, who also works at Johns-Manville, likes to bowl. Lacking a ball at home, he demonstrates his technique with a whitewashed stone for the benefit of his daughter, Geraldine, 6. His 4 year old Dorothy was visiting her other grandmother when the photographer called.

GROWERS TO VIE IN ANNUAL SHOW ON NORTH SHORE

Opens on Saturday in Winnetka.

Upwards of 2,000 flower fans will attend a two day show starring more than 7,000 dahlias next Saturday and Sunday in the Winnetka Community house. It will be the seventh annual dahlia exhibition in the suburb. Growers along the entire north shore will compete in displaying the blooms.

The show, which gardeners say is one of the most elaborate of its kind in the state, is expected to reveal new varieties of dahlias in addition to all the standard types. The new specimens have been grown especially for the exhibition by professional and amateur horticulturists.

The exhibition of red, white, and pink blooms is sponsored by the American Gardeners' association which was founded on the north shore in 1934. The membership is made up of professional and amateur gardeners; only professionals have voting power.

Will Award Trophies.

Every one is permitted to exhibit at the show. Ribbons and silver trophies will be presented to winners of each of the 17 classifications.

Six north shore garden groups will display terrace table arrangements of dahlias grown by members. The units are the garden department of the Winnetka Woman's club, Kenilworth Garden club, Ravinia Garden club, North Shore Garden club, Woodley Road Garden club, and Lake Forest Garden club.

More than 500 individual dahlia blooms, including cactus dahlias, are to be displayed. The show will be open from 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon to 10 o'clock at night, and from 10 o'clock Sunday morning to 10 in the evening.

The show committee is headed by Friedrich Fischer, chairman, and Henry Carstensen, secretary. Other members are Thomas Simpson, Arthur Woodbury, Anthony Czaikowski, George Brave, Frank Moening, Herbert Humphries, Robert Carruthers, Tony Casorio, and Paul Zensola.

Taking Active Part.

Representatives of garden groups who compose the associate committee are Mrs. Morton D. Cahn, North Shore Garden club; Mrs. Arthur Fathauer, Ravinia Garden club; Mrs. Montague Ferry, Mrs. Stephen Gregory Jr., Mrs. Alice D. Miller, and Mrs. William C. Moffat of the Winnetka Garden club; Mrs. Waldo Gundlach, Mrs. Donald Jones, and Mrs. W. Lindsay Suter of the Winnetka Weeders; Mrs. John Gary, Lake Forest Garden club; Mrs. Lyle Harper, garden department of Winnetka Woman's club; Mrs. Louis E. McCauley, Woodley Road Garden club; Mrs. Bolton Sullivan, Northfield Garden club; Mrs. Harold F. Tideman, Kenilworth Garden club; Mary Williams, assistant director of the Winnetka Community House, and Mrs. Warren Lamson, publicity director.

Judges of the specimen classes, all members of the Central States Dahlia society, are James L. O'Brien, George Merchant, Harold Cummings, Edward Schoenlau, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Bluhm.

Judging of the arrangements classes will be done by Mrs. O. W. Dynes of Hinsdale, Mrs. Paul Magnusen of Dundee, and Mrs. Frank Nason of Kenilworth.

The regatta will be run under the rules of the Lake Michigan Yachting association, which provided the material for building the dinghies. Only members under 20 years old are eligible to compete. The squadron which which is represented by the winning crew will hold the city championship trophy until next year.

The organization now has 425 members, who had to pass tests in seamanship, swimming, safety abilities and knowledge of boat handling and navigation. The dinghies may be sailed in the lagoons at Diversey harbor, Burnham harbor, or Calumet park.

HEMENWAY METHODIST CHURCH TO DEDICATE AUDITORIUM, ORGAN

Hemenway Methodist church, 933 Chicago avenue, Evanston, will dedicate its rebuilt auditorium and a new pipe organ at a service to be conducted at 11 o'clock next Sunday. The Rev. C. Claud Travis, pastor of the church, will preach after the presentation of the organ by Mrs. John T. Smith, president of the Woman's society, which conducted the campaign to raise the organ purchase fund. Music will be by the Hemenway choir, directed by Wesley F. Bradburn, and Mrs. Marjorie Buchanan, the organist.

Using the new organ, Stanley Martin, organist of the Chicago Sunday Evening club, will give a recital at 8 o'clock Sunday evening. The Cadets, a radio male quartet, and Mrs. Forrest Buchtel of Evanston, violinist and member of the Woman's Symphony orchestra, also will take part in the recital. Members of the Cadets are Homer Allen, Kenneth Morrow, Clarence Scheibe, and Albert Strache. Their organ accompaniments will be played by Earl Mitchell.

The rebuilt auditorium first was used July 1, 1934, and the dedication was postponed to await installation of an organ. The preceding auditorium had been destroyed by fire Sept. 30, 1932.

Sleepy Hollow Horsemen to Sponsor Show Today

Twelve horsemanship and special events, including several for children, will be offered on the program of the second annual horse show of the Sleepy Hollow Saddle club to be held at 6206 Dempster street at 2 p. m. today. Winnetka Boy Tells Thrills of Underseas Life

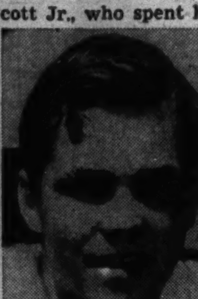
Seventeen year old Lincoln Lippincott Jr., who spent his summer vacation in the Hawaiian Islands as a one man crew for Capt. John Craig, the deep sea diver and underwater photographer, is back home in Winnetka with plenty of ideas for his semester theme at New Trier High school.



Lincoln Lippincott Jr.

After three months of fishing under water with native spear guns and diving with waterproof cameras, Lincoln returned in time to play center on the school football team. His friends say he's the luckiest boy in Winnetka—and Lincoln is inclined to agree with them.

Photography His Job.

He still can't get over it. Six months ago when he met Capt. Craig at a travel lecture he told him he'd like to go with him on one of his far country jaunts. He said it laughingly, knowing it could never happen. But it did happen. Three months ago Capt. Craig invited him along.

It was Lincoln's job in the Hawaiian Islands to set up the underwater camera some 15 to 20 feet below the surface of the sea on lava ridges around the islands.

LIFE for most 90 year olds is a business of sitting all day in a rocking chair. But not for Mrs. Mary Jane Light, who is more active than many women half her age. She lives with her son-in-law, and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Kutz at 6339 Ridge avenue. Mrs. Light recently returned from a 2,000 mile auto trip which included a stopover at Belle, Mo., for a family reunion on July 13. On Aug. 31 at the Kutz home she again presided over another reunion, this time with her granddaughter, Mrs. Dorothy Lindenmuth, and two great-grandsons, John and Dan of Tulsa, Okla. Next week Mrs. Light and her granddaughter plan to fly to Tulsa. It will be Mrs. Light's first airplane trip and she intends to take her knitting with her. She has resided in Chicago for 30 years.

Spot Where He Often Lingered Named for Him

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

As far back as 67 year old Arne Oldberg can remember the tiny three-cornered park at University place and Orrington avenue in Evanston was nameless.

Prof. Arne Oldberg.

Thru the years he's walked past the little park thousands and thousands of times. Sometimes, like other Evanstonians, he would stop and watch a squirrel race up a tree trunk. Sometimes he listened to the chattering of the sparrows and now and then he would pause to hear the more musical birds in a chorus of song.

At N. U. 44 Years.

Arne Oldberg was professor of piano and composition at Northwestern university for 44 years. He retired this year. His father was dean of the College of Pharmacy at Northwestern and ever since he was a boy he's been associated with the university.

It never occurred to Prof. Oldberg that the little park which he passed almost daily ought to have a name. To him and to other Evanstonians, it was just a nice, pleasant little plot of green. Perhaps Prof. Oldberg stopped there a little more often than other passersby because he likes to listen to the music of the birds.

Also Wrote Symphonies.

In between his walks thru the park, Prof. Oldberg wrote symphonies. Fifteen of his works have been played by the leading orchestras in the nation.

Last week the aldermen of Evanston gave a name to the park. They called it Oldberg park and Mayor Burt Ingraham made a speech.

"Mr. Oldberg has exerted a profound influence on hundreds of his students," he said. "Oldberg park has been so designated to honor him as one of Evanston's outstanding citizens in the field of music. It is particularly fitting that his name should be associated with a municipal park near the newest building on the music campus of Northwestern university."

America First Notes

Ald. Robert E. James of Evanston will address the suburb's America First chapter tomorrow evening at the Ridgeville Community House, 908 Seward avenue. He will speak on "Whose Country Is This?"

Ald. James was first elected in 1922. He has been chairman of the Evanston city council street committee for six years and formerly was head of the parks, police, and fire committees.

Wilmette America First chapter will meet next Sunday evening in the auditorium of the Howard school, 1701 Spencer avenue. John W. Maselter will be the speaker of the evening.

Directors of North Side Hadassah Meet Tomorrow

Directors of the north side district of Hadassah will meet for luncheon tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Hattie Callner, 211 Chestnut street. Members will discuss this year's activities. Mrs. Edmund B. Diamondstone is president of the group.

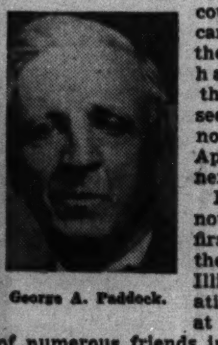
GEORGE PADDOCK AGAIN TO SEEK CONGRESS SEAT

10th District Member to Enter April Primary.

Congressman George A. Paddock of the 10th congressional district, one of the two Cook county Republican members of the 77th congress, has announced that he will again seek the G. O. P. nomination in the April primary next year.



George A. Paddock.

Paddock's announcement, the first from any of the incumbent Illinois representatives, was made at the insistence of numerous friends in the 10th district. It was made thru Ald. Clinton Merrick of Evanston, where Paddock has resided for many years. The district includes part of Cook county and all of Lake county.

It was accompanied by a copy of a letter from Congressman Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, minority leader of the house of representatives, praising his Evanston colleague's record and terming him "one of the ablest and best liked members of congress."

Letter of Praise.

"In his first term he was signally honored by being assigned to the major committee on interstate and foreign commerce," Martin wrote of Paddock. "That committee is one of the busiest and most important committees of the house. To it are referred the many complex problems of business, and thru Congressman Paddock's membership on that committee he is able to render great service to the state of Illinois and the middle west. He has won the confidence and respect of all his associates."

Paddock has long been active in Republican circles. When he was first elected to congress last year he was Evanston township committeeman and treasurer of the Cook county Republican central committee.

In the primary he was pitted against Drennan J. Slater, former state representative from the 6th senatorial district, and several lesser candidates. Paddock won the nomination easily, polling 37,897 votes as compared with 29,120 for Slater.

Beats Democrat Easily.

His Democratic opponent in the election was John Haderlein, whom he bested by the overwhelming vote of 199,418 to 125,827, the plurality of 73,591 being one of the largest ever compiled by the G. O. P. in the 10th district, which has never sent a Democrat to congress.

In both the primary and the election Paddock had the support of his predecessor, Ralph E. Church, who retired from congress to seek the Republican nomination for United States senator. Church was defeated and has made no announcement of any further plans in politics.

SINGLE TAXERS PLAN TO HOLD 3 DAY MEETING

Chicago for the fourth time will be the scene of the annual convention of America's single tax proponents. The Henry George foundation will hold its 16th convention Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Sept. 29, 30, and Oct. 1 at the La Salle hotel.

Formerly the convention was international in scope but now, due to the war, it will be a national gathering. The Henry George School of Social Science was founded in 1932 in New York. Since that time classes in the economic theories of Henry George have been organized in all parts of the world.

The theories of the movement are taken mainly from "Progress and Poverty," a book which George published in 1879. The book advocates collection of ground rent in place of all other forms of taxation.

Chairman for Tea

Miss Patricia Cummings, 6426 Lakewood avenue, is the chairman for the Theta Beta Omicron sorority installation tea in the Pompeiian room of the Orrington hotel, Evanston, this afternoon. Miss Cummings will be assisted by Miss Kay Enright, Miss Ann Lentz, Miss Marjorie Rowbottom, and Miss Irene Kimball.

600 DELEGATES DUE AT RALLY OF METHODISTS

Rock River Conference to Open Oct. 7.

Plans for the annual Rock River conference of Methodism at the Wilmette Parish Methodist church were announced last week. The conference of 600 clergymen and laymen will take place Oct. 7-12.

The church is to be transformed into a convention headquarters for delegates from 300 churches in the area extending from the northern state line to Kankakee and from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi river. The visiting clergymen from outside Chicagoland are to be housed in the homes of the Wilmette church members.

Will Greet Delegates.

The delegates are to be welcomed on Tuesday evening, Oct. 7, by H. C. Kinne, Wilmette village president; the Rev. Erskine M. Jeffords, pastor; Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, and R. G. Kimbell, lay leader. A mass communion service for the entire assemblage is to be given under the direction of Bishop Waldorf.

Among the Chicagoland speakers during the convention week will be Dr. Georgia Harkness of Garrett Biblical institute and Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate.

Music for the conference sessions will be directed by Dean F. McSloy, music supervisor of the Wilmette church. Luncheons and dinners will be served daily at the church. Several special meals will be served by women of neighboring churches.

New Yorker to Talk.

The chief address of the convention will be on the international situation and will be delivered by Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer of New York City, secretary of the board of missions, on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 9.

Bishop Waldorf will preside at the daily business sessions, preach at the Sunday morning worship service and read the ministerial appointments at the closing meeting, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 12.

Improvement Association Will Hear Fred Blaisdell

Members of the North Town Improvement association will hear a talk tomorrow evening by Fred Blaisdell, executive director of the Better Government association, at the Kiwanis Scout clubhouse, 2207 Devon avenue. His topic will be "Doings of the Association Toward Improved Conditions in the Government."

U. GUILD SEMINAR TO OPEN SEASON WITH PILGRIMAGE

Members Are to Visit Art Collection.

Mrs. Irving T. Roberts. [Eugene L. Ray photo.]

The art seminar committee of the University guild of Evanston will open its season this month instead of in October as in former years. The first fall pilgrimage will be on Sept. 22 to the home of Mrs. John R. Thompson in Lake Forest. Mrs. Irving T. Roberts is chairman of the art seminar committee.

This first fall pilgrimage will be an opportunity for guild members to see the art treasures collected by the late John R. Thompson and now owned by Mrs. Thompson and her daughter, Mrs. Donald McGibeny. The collection includes a 15th century Flemish tapestry showing the marriage of Anne of Brittany to Charles VIII. of France.

Other art pieces in the collection include "Merry Lute Player," by Franz Hals; "Child with Dog," by Gainsborough; a portrait of Mrs. Thompson, by Louis Betts, and one of Mr. Thompson, by Oswald Burley.

Mrs. Robert Wyness Millar, Mrs. John L. Little Jr., and Mrs. Peter Johansen will describe the paintings. Guild members attending the art program will meet for luncheon at the Moraine hotel in Highland Park and go from there to the Thompson home. Mrs. Little and Mrs. Johansen will speak at a preliminary seminar the art group will hold at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning at the art center in Evanston.

Mrs. James M. Judson is president of the guild, and the regular meetings of the organization will begin on Oct. 5 in Scott hall on the Northwestern campus. It will be a musical, starting at 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon. Rudolph Ganz will be the piano soloist, assisted by Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano. A reception and tea will follow.

Church School.

The fall session of the church of the First Methodist Church of Evanston will get under way this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

President of Sorority Alumnae

Mrs. Igor de Lissovoy of Evanston will serve this year as president of Alpha Beta chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, the alumnae chapter in Evanston. [Carlos Photo.]

SORORITY GROUP TO OPEN SEASON ON WEDNESDAY

North shore alumnæ of Kappa Alpha Theta will meet at a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday afternoon at the home of Dr. Katherine K. True, 418 Forest avenue, Wilmette. This will be the first session of the 1941-'42 season, and a special musical program has been planned. Miss Louise Yates of Kenilworth, a Theta junior at Northwestern university, will sing. Miss Yates had a leading rôle in last year's Waa-Mu show.

Mrs. Ericsson F. McLaughlin of Evanston, recently elected president for a second term, will read a report of the Kappa Alpha Theta districts 2 and 10 convention held in Genoa City, Wis., a short time ago.

Mrs. Charles E. Brandiff of Highland Park, new program chairman, has announced several important events on the fall schedule. The first is the annual tea in honor of Northwestern pledges and their mothers to be held at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 15 at the home of Mrs. A. R. Brueggeman, Hubbard Woods. This event will be given jointly by the Theta alumnæ and the Theta Mothers' club. A football dance is planned for October, too, with the date to be announced.

Mrs. Robert Sykes will be hostess at a luncheon at her home in Golf on Nov. 12, and Mrs. Lloyd A. Faxon will give one of her book talks on that day.

WINNETKA BOY THRILLS AT LIFE FOUND UNDERSEA

Recounts Adventures on Hawaiian Trip.

that exists under water near the islands," he declares. "If you're ever going to the Hawaiian Islands you'll miss 50 per cent of the scenery unless you dive. It's another world. You see the most beautiful vegetation, and purple, red, and blue animal life. You don't need a diving helmet. All we used was a pair of underwater goggles. Of course, you stay down only some 20 seconds or so, but you make many dives."

Dives Feet First.

The best way to dive in the buoyant, salty sea around the islands, Lincoln explains, is to dive feet foremost until the body is completely submerged, then turn over. "One quick stroke takes you to the bottom," he says.

Using a native spear gun which operates only under water he was able to spear several Hawaiian fish. The spear is shot out of a bamboo gun barrel by means of a heavy sling device.

"That was thrilling enough," he says, "but it doesn't compare to diving simply to see the underwater sights. It's so wonderful that you don't want to come up. You see gorgeous flowers and trees, fish that look like flowers, miniature mountains and valleys of lava and caverns lined with colorful fernlike growths."

Makes Own Net.

He fished in the Hawaiian manner, with spear guns and throw nets. "When you've tried it once," he asserts, "you'll never go pole fishing again."

Now in addition to playing football and writing about his trip for his composition work, Lincoln, who lives with his parents at 915 Ash street in the suburb, is spending his spare time making a Hawaiian throw net. When he completes it he intends to try it in the lake.

How Ericksons Surmount Life's Obstacles.

ing shortage to Waukegan and North Chicago.

Completing the Erickson family circle is Raymond Wood, 12 years old and in high sixth grade at McAlister school, two blocks from the house. Mrs. Erickson, sweetfaced and with gray hair which is as curly as her husband's, kept Raymond for a few days when he was 3 years old. When she returned him, she regretted giving him up so much—his mother said she might keep him awhile longer—and that was nine years ago. The boy's older sister married Ingevar Erickson, so Raymond is kind of in the family now, anyhow.

Erickson, who couldn't interest either of his sons in wrestling, began early with Raymond, but the youngster has lost interest, too. Now Erickson is looking hopefully at his three grandsons.

Keeps No Budget.

The Erickson income is from $1,900 to $2,400 a year depending upon the time Erickson can roll up on his paycheck. He gets $1.03 an hour, works steadily on the day shift, 8 to 4:30 o'clock. He says he has no budget because he's always broke. However, he has considered old age. He pays into a factory retirement plan which, he hopes, will give him an income of about $20 a month when he is 65. He's depending on collecting his social security benefits too.

Mrs. Erickson smiles as she listens to him explain that he needs no budget because he never has any money. She doesn't appear worried. A capable housekeeper, she not only papers the rooms of her little house but cuts the lawn and tends the flowers. Her daughter likes to cook and bake, so that part of the housekeeping is left to the younger woman. Mrs. Erickson's favorite household task is sewing.

Ordinarily she cans fruit for winter use, but the excitement of having a new grandson this season interferred. She boasts that now there are six Erickson grandchildren, three girls and three boys.

Has Many Charges.

The glassed front porch of the cottage has to be used as a bedroom now. All day long the tots play across the house—in the living room with its red rug and dark figured loveseat and chairs, in the dining room with its walnut finish set, and out into the bright kitchen. Mrs. Erickson says she enjoys the kids. Her eldest son's children as especially in her charge thru the day because their mama is a waitress at the naval station, carrying on the family tradition of work, frugality, and getting ahead.

Evanston Girl Is Bride

Margery Elaine Holloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Holloway, 2529 Orrington avenue, Evanston, was married recently to James Roger Snipe, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Snipe of Perry, Ia. The couple will live in Berkeley, Cal. [Bernie Photo.]

READY TO TEACH RETAIL SELLING AT WASHBURNE

Boys, Girls, Housewives Are to Attend.

Classwork in the morning and a job in the afternoon is the general plan of the one semester retail selling and merchandising course being organized at Washburne Trade school, Division and Sedgwick streets. Boys and girls, recently graduated from high school, housewives who would like to earn extra money for Christmas, middle aged men and women who need employment—all are eligible to enroll.

Registrations will be taken any school day, and prospective students are urged to sign up now in order to gain extra training before the part-time jobs are assigned Oct. 1.

The retail training program at Washburne will be under the supervision of Miss Edna J. Bowles who will confer with students wishing to register. Classes will be from 9 o'clock until noon five days a week. Students will go to their jobs afternoons and Saturdays for a minimum of 15 hours a week employment at prevailing retail wage scales, which are 33 cents to 45 cents an hour.

In School System.

Washburne, a trade school under the city system, takes students from all parts of Chicago. Students applying for retail training will be referred to a committee of employment managers for selection and placement on the part time basis. Students will be excused from class attendance when employers find need for extra services in peak selling periods.

Each student will take two retailing subjects, retail selling and merchandise facts. He may add one commercial elective to his course. Retail selling includes personality and technique training, instruction in cash register use and sales check writing.

The merchandise course provides pertinent information on products. Store management, store organization, trade practices, and advertising types are other phases of the training.

Studies Her Work.

Miss Bowles, who keeps abreast of her work by part time selling, bases her lectures on the general theme of her own definition of salesmanship—". . . the art of honest and enlightened persuasion." High school graduation is required of young enrollees in order that they shall be of employable age. Adults of demonstrated ability and aptitude need not comply with that educational requisite.

The course at Washburne is set up under the provisions of the George-Deen act which provides federal funds for vocational courses. H. H. Davison is coördinator of the act for Washburne and Chicago's three junior colleges. Warren E. Hill is director of Washburne Trade school.

STUDY BUSINESS AREA EXPANSION TO HELP ZONING

Plan Commission Gives Data on Growth.

Chicago's business and commercial areas are expected to continue to develop naturally after the proposed new zoning ordinance is adopted, just as they have in the past. That assurance was given last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the sub-committee that is preparing the new land use law for submission to the city council, probably next month.

The subcommittee is basing zoning changes on studies of how the more prosperous business localities grew before zoning came into use, Ald. Lindell said.

Because the present ordinance of 1923, the city's first venture into the field of zoning, set up several times as much commercial territory as the city requires, the drafters of the new ordinance are rezoning much of this space for residential use.

Plat Best Business Areas.

Their big problem at the outset was to determine which business zones had been unwisely established and which should be allowed to remain. No reliable data on the subject was available, so the Chicago Plan commission, of which Ald. Lindell is a member, undertook to determine scientifically which spots are best for business zones.

Commercial zones as delineated in the present zoning ordinance permit all kinds of businesses such as department stores, theaters, and gasoline stations, as well as light manufacturing. The new ordinance would set up a new "business" classification, which would permit only small stores and professional offices, restricting the heavier uses to commercial zones.

Visiting store owners personally and studying occupancy and income records, the commission's workers were able to map the approximate boundaries of the profitable portions of the larger business centers.

Where Trade Is Best.

They found that, whereas the present ordinance provides business zones in continuous strips on each side of most important thorofares, the natural tendency of trade areas is to cluster fairly closely about the intersections of section or half-section lines. The reason is that most main travel areas in the city and such transportation facilities as street cars and buses are on survey lines.

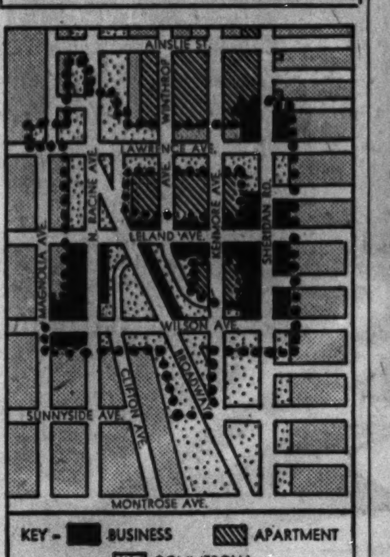
The plan commission workers established from various previous studies that there are 21 principal outlying business areas, most of which follow the section line rule. They are:

Devon-Western.
Lawrence-Kedzie.
Lawrence - Wilson - Broadway - Sheridan.
Lincoln-Ashland-Belmont.
Milwaukee from Logan Square to Wellington.
Milwaukee-Irving Park-Cicero.
Milwaukee from Division to North.
Chicago-Western.
Chicago-Pulaski.
Roosevelt-Halsted.
Roosevelt from Pulaski to Kedzie.
26th from Pulaski to Kedzie.
47th-South Park.
63d-Halsted.
63d from Stony Island to Cottage Grove.
71st-Jeffery.
79th-Halsted.
92d-Commercial.
Michigan from 110th to 115th.

Look to Future.

Ald. Lindell said that while a few of these primary business areas have spread out laterally from the busy intersections where they began, most of them are bunched fairly closely about the crossing points. The same is true of the lesser trade areas in the city, to which the plan commission survey is being extended, he said.

How Business Spreads



The outer dotted line marks the boundary of the more successful portion of one of Chicago's 21 major outlying shopping centers as indicated by a Chicago plan commission survey. The keyed areas show the land use recommended by the commission to the framers of the proposed new zoning ordinance, based on zone characteristics assumed during many years of natural growth. The two apartment areas are set aside within dotted lines to distinguish them from the surrounding business area.

Mrs. Ellis is well known as a book reviewer and commentator and has appeared for many seasons as a speaker before women's organizations. Mrs. Ellis is the daughter of a Toronto newspaperman and is well grounded in newspaper work herself. She is a world traveler and has had a career as an actress.

In addition to book comment by Mrs. Ellis, the program will include informal chats. Mrs. Ellis will have well known personalities as her guests at the broadcasts.

Each broadcast will be dedicated to some charitable or service organization, one of whose members will be honored with a "Bow and Camellias." A story of the work typical of that organization will be related by Mrs. Ellis.

Betty Co-ed will have her chance to sing on a coast to coast network, win $1,000 in cash, and earn a $4,000 musical fellowship. Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra will give talented college girls that opportunity on the Hour of Charm program beginning at 9 p. m., Sept. 28, over WMAQ-NBC.

The best feminine vocalist from each of 10 leading state colleges and universities will be heard in 10 successive weeks on Hour of Charm.

Then the three girls adjudged best in the group will be brought back for additional appearances. Each of the three finalists will receive $1,000 in cash and one of them will carry back to her college or university a $4,000 fellowship to be awarded in her name to deserving fellow musical students over a four year period.

Double or Nothing Opens New Series at 6 Tonight

"Double or Nothing," W-G-N-Mutual quiz show, will start its second year on the air with a new day and a new time. It will be heard from 6 to 6:30 p. m. Sundays, starting today.

The series, featuring Walter Compton, Frank Forest, soloist; Nat Brusiloff's orchestra, and Announcer Alois Havrilla started a year ago and soon won a place as one of the country's leading audience participation shows. The Mutual network hook-up of 116 stations is the largest of any quiz show on the air.

Helen Hayes to Return with Theater on Oct. 5

Helen Hayes, one of America's best known actresses, will return to the air with her own theater at 9:30 p. m., Sunday, Oct. 5, over WBBM-CBS. This season she plans to present some plays especially written for her as well as reviving old favorites.

MARION CLAIRE SINGS TO LEGIONNAIRES IN MILWAUKEE TONIGHT

Marion Claire, singing star of the Chicagoland Hour on W-G-N and the Mutual network, will make a guest appearance in Milwaukee, Wis., tonight at the first mass gathering of delegates to the American Legion convention. She will sing two songs at patriotic services in the Emil Blatz Temple of Music, Washington Park. Henry Weber, her husband, conductor of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, will accompany her at the piano. The numbers will be "Maids of Cadiz," by Delibes and "Melody of Love" by Lehar.

MUTUAL TO SEND WORLD SERIES TO 300 STATIONS

The world series will begin Wednesday, Oct. 1, in the Yankee stadium, home of the American league champions, the New York Yankees, it was officially announced by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis. The broadcasts of the games will be heard exclusively over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Bob Elson and Red Barber will handle the play by play account. More than 300 stations will be hooked up for the broadcasts and the games will be short-waved abroad.

OPERETTA HOUR WILL BE 9:45-11 DURING OCTOBER

"Merry Widow" Opening Show Oct. 4.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Because Chicago will continue with daylight saving time thru October the Chicago Theater of the Air will be presented for four weeks over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network from 9:45 to 11 p. m. The first production will be "The Merry Widow," by Franz Lehar on Saturday, Oct. 4.

The Theater of the Air is to return to W-G-N and Mutual in response to the appeal of a multitude of last year's operetta listeners. The schedule for this season calls for 26 operettas, half of them favorites of the 1940-'41 season. The remainder will be equally beloved scores slated for their first radio appearance.

The program will be heard at 8:45 p. m. starting in November.

Col. McCormick to Speak.

The plan for the operetta programs will include an address by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who has been heard thru the summer on the Saturday night Chicagoland hour.

This season the Theater of the Air will be on the air 1 hour and 15 minutes, a quarter hour longer than last season. William R. Bacher, director of programs and production, who will again direct the operettas, said that the added time will make possible a fuller and more desirable treatment of each operetta than could be given in the past.

Singing stars of the opening production, "The Merry Widow," will be Marion Claire, prima donna in all 20 of last season's operettas, and Allan Jones, romantic tenor of the opera and screen.

List of Productions.

Then, on successive Saturday nights, there will be "New Moon," Oct. 11, with Thomas Thomas, New York baritone; "Sari," Oct. 18, with Igor Gorin; "Sweethearts," Oct. 25, with John Carter, star of opera, the concert stage, and radio, and "The Red Mill," Nov. 1, again with Carter. Miss Claire will sing the soprano lead in each of these productions.

Later in the season the Theater of the Air will offer "The Vagabond King," "Naughty Marietta," "The Mikado," "Hansel and Gretel," "Belle of New York," "Pinafore," "The Desert Song," "Rose of Algiers," "La Bohême," "I Pagliacci," and "Carmen."

Singing stars to be heard with Miss Claire in various of these operettas are Jan Peerce, John Brownlee, Charles Kullman, Frederick Jagel, Robert Weede, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor star of the Chicagoland hour.

Belbenoir on W-G-N.

Rene Belbenoir, noted author of two best sellers, "Dry Guillotine" and "Escape from Devil's Island," will be the guest of "Danger Is My Business" over W-G-N and the Mutual at 9:15 p. m. next Wednesday.

Starts Own Show

Virginia Simms, who became famous with Kay Kyser when they were at the Blackhawk and on W-G-N, is leaving the Kyser College of Musical Knowledge on NBC, and starting a show of her own at 8:55 p. m. next Friday on WBBM-CBS. She also has a new long term movie contract.

It's graduation time for Ginny Simms, prettiest pupil in Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge, aired at 9 p. m., Wednesdays, over WMAQ-NBC. After four years of singing with Kyser and his orchestra, Ginny and the "Old Professor" are parting.

When Kay and his boys leave for the east soon, Ginny will remain in Hollywood to devote her full time and attention to screen work for RKO and a new program of her own on CBS Friday evenings. Ginny made her film debut in Kyser's first starring film, had a better spot in her second show, and is one of the hits of his current "Playmates."

HARMONIOUS USE OF WOOD GIVES CHARM TO HOME

Dove Gray Finish Is Used Thruout House.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The harmonious use of beautiful wood is an outstanding impression of the new home of Dr. W. A. Schimmel, 630 North Belmont, Arlington Heights.

The architect, W. F. McCaughey, Pickwick building, Park Ridge, designed the house in a modified California ranch type, using stone gray tapestry brick for the lower story and garage walls and rough sawed batten striped cypress boards for the second story.

The interior treatment possesses many features of distinction and interest.

Wood Finish Is Gray.

The wood thruout is finished in a dove gray which supplies the background for the interior decorations. The furnishings are a combination of French provincial and California ranch house.

The large living room with a great 30 paneled window in the front has a ceiling of 6 inch V-jointed fir planking and 6 by 10 chamfered beams. The walls of both rooms are lightly textured of white plaster, the wood trim is oak, and the fireplace has a black marble face edged with a rope twisted oak moulding.

Antique Brass Lights.

There is the same ceiling treatment in the dining room with its large draw table, its rush bottom chairs, and draw drapes in turquoise, terra cotta, and yellow. Four bracket fixtures in antique brass supply the lighting and there's a beige and brown patterned rug on the floor.

As one looks thru the house from the front hall the full glass west wall of the breakfast room gives a view of the garden and pines. Here the walls are papered with an apple blossom pattern on turquois blue and a brass bowled light with a pewter shade hangs from the ceiling.

There is a convenient service entrance which leads both to the kitchen and to the doctor's den. This den can be used as a supplementary office and its treatment is the type to appeal to a masculine eye. It is paneled and trimmed with 6, 8, and 10 inch V-jointed grayed oak planks and furnished with oak furniture that has a suggestion of Viking sturdiness.

Red Floor in Den.

The desk chair is studded with brass nails and backed in red-orange leather, bookcases are on each side of the window, and the red and beige checks in the drapes relate to the red tile linoleum floor pattern. The final masculine touch, however, is the 41 pound wahoo which hangs on the paneled wall—a proud trophy of Dr. Schimmel.

Mrs. Schimmel is especially delighted with the treatment of wood thruout the house because of the ease of maintaining it.

On the hall staircase to the second floor the oak turned spindles and rails of the hall staircase almost match the gray-beige of the rough lock weave carpet.

Porch Off Bedroom.

In the master bedroom large hydrangeas in rose and gray greens pattern the walls, with birch trim and doors supplying the gray-beige color, and the furniture is French provincial in spirit. An open porch is reached thru this room, directly over a large screened porch on the ground level.

Grayed oak furniture in a ranch house style is the perfect choice for the boys' room. Here the paper is bridle and spur in red, green, and white on deep blue. There are sturdy red leather hassocks and red embroidered names of the boys on the rough cream colored bedspreads. Another very masculine room, with a door to an upper deck and over this deck the branches from a spreading tree close to the house.

There's a guest room, too, papered in pink and blue flowered chintz and furnished in Victorian walnut and blue chintz drapes.

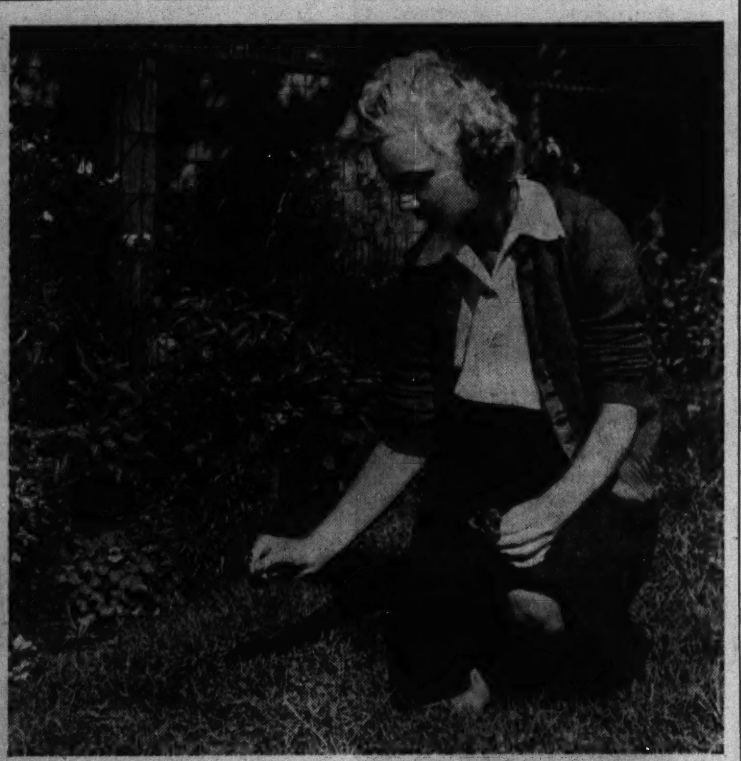
Gets Bouquets of 4 Leaf Clovers



Four leaf clovers are sprouting so plentifully in the back yard of 14 year old Shirley Ann Dricker, 1410 Fowler avenue, Evanston, that she picks bouquets of them. In less than five minutes the other day Shirley Ann picked 42 four leaf clovers. She is a freshman at the Evanston Township High school. Her father is Patrolman Henry Dricker of the suburb's police department.

4 LEAF CLOVER HUNT ATTAINS NEW HIGH MARK

Originator's Harvest Is Reported at 133.

This week's harvest of the north side's Four Leaf Clover club [as yet unorganized formally] reached a new high for the season.

Stories previously printed in the Metropolitan section about the four and five leaf clover crop in north side back yards last week stepped up the letter crop from readers who told of their finds.

Mrs. Catherine Copeland, 1307 North Shore avenue, who began the hunt several weeks ago, reports that her four leaf clover harvest is up to 133, plus one five leafer. All of them are from a single plant growing on her lawn.

Mrs. A. C. Fregd, 4341 Parker avenue, who usually carries at least one four leaf clover in her purse, has this to say:

"I had ordered my first pair of glasses, and before I received them I decided to look for four leaf clovers. In a short time I had found 22. I was advised to cancel my order for glasses because any one who could find that many within an hour did not need glasses."

Then there is the case of Garnett E. M. Lowry, Atwater Park, Fox Lake: "I have found more than 100 four leaf clovers this year and 10 five leafs. I've found four leaf clovers for years."

SPY EPISODES IN 'LINDA'S FIRST LOVE' PROGRAM

More thrilling escapades for Linda, Daisy, and Danny in "Linda's First Love" radio serial are to be aired over W-G-N and the Mutual network Monday thru Friday at 9:45 a. m., starting tomorrow.

Dr. Danny Grogan, member of the secret service division of the army, narrowly misses death when a suspected espionage agent, Kurt Tollman, plants Danny in the path of toppling masonry.

But this is merely a prolog to the adventures in store for Linda, Daisy, and Danny before the week's end.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 15.

Gardeners living in suburbs where evergreens flourish may plant at this time. Replace poor soil with good fresh soil. Buy good, well grown stock that is baled and balled; have the holes ready for the reception of the plants and plant immediately. Water as the hole is filled around the roots and leave a depression for holding water. Syringe the tops several times.

Decidious shrubs make a nice contrast when planted with evergreens and especially fine are a few red barked dogwood.

Tuesday, Sept. 16.

Bulbs of various kinds may be purchased now. Try a few early narcissus, the paperwhites, in gravel and water; they will do well in Vermiculite, a light flaky browning material that holds moisture. Place several bulbs in the container, fill with water and stand in a cool, dark, cellar, closet or other place until well rooted. Then place in the light window.

A few bulbs will flower without soil or water by simply placing several on a saucer. Among these are autumn crocus [colchicum] with beautiful pale lavender flowers. The Chinese sacred lily does delightfully in pebbles and water and the amaryllis will do the same. The latter should be kept growing until the leaves turn yellow and then allowed to rest until spring.

Wednesday, Sept. 17.

The hardy chrysanthemums are coming into flower. Apply commercial plant food when the buds show and keep well watered. Just before frost lift and pot a few and remove to the house for indoor blooming.

Divide spring and summer flowering perennials and plant in rich soil, but wait until spring to transplant autumn flowering kinds. The latter do not have time to become established before freezing weather and are likely to winter freeze.

Divide lily-of-the-valley and plant close together [three inches] in rich soil. This is a fine plant to grow in shade or as a ground cover. Buy and transplant shrubs. Do not plant too many trees. Use a few dwarf fruit trees for height among shrubs along the back fence for they are as beautiful as any flowering plant in season.

Thursday, Sept. 18.

Gardeners should organize a neighborly club to cut and burn vacant weed infested lots. Millions of seeds are destroyed, insect harbors are burned and the gardener's work reduced the following year.

Hardy lily bulbils can be collected and sown in the frame and they will grow the following season. Fuchsias that have flowered can be stored until spring, started into growth, the young growths used as cutting materials and the old plants cut back and grown again.

Friday, Sept. 19.

Saving tender water lily plants during winter is often a problem, and often the plants are lifted about frost time, the leaves and roots cut back, a pit dug and the plants placed in it. The whole is securely covered with any available material. If no facilities are available whereby the plants can be kept over, purchase strong plants in spring and plant toward the end of May or the first week in June.

When lilacs fail to bloom well practice root pruning to aid in the formation of flower buds instead of stem growth. Top dress the soil around the plants and remove all dead wood. Tall, ungainly lilacs should be severely pruned while dormant to force fresh, luxuriant growth and a better shape.

Saturday, Sept. 20.

With fall here tomorrow and this date being the time when the first light frost can be expected, it is wise to get all tender plants under cover or temporarily protected. Keep the lawn cut as usual. Order all trees that are to be fall planted.

Keep an eye out for the dahlia borer for it easily can work havoc in a few days. Slit the stems and extract and kill the borer. Its presence is indicated by a sudden wilting of the stem. Try a few Oxalis bulbs for hanging baskets. Adopt a regular spraying calendar for plants that are to be used indoors.

Soon Your little bird... will Fly Away!

He's yours for a few fleeting moments that boy you hold . . . Soon those little elbows that lean upon your tired knee will be gone . . . Only too quick you'll miss the velvet touch of warm, moist fingers holding yours so tight . . . The restless, curly head from off your breast . . . The lisping tongue that chatters constantly . . . The footprints when the days are wet . . . Those little muddy boots, or cap, or jacket on your spotless floor . . .

Soon all you may have to remember baby's tight pink fists will be this little teddy bear . . . this dumb little creature into whose lifeless bead-like eyes your little boy's dear eyes look so lovingly . . . Or a mended cart and a kite you made to help him reach the sky . . .

Somewhere in the Skokie Valley there are hundreds of mothers with treasure chests of precious golden moments spent with their children . . . Moments made possible through the time and energy saving service of the SKOKIE VALLEY LAUNDRY. This week and every week we're selling GOLDEN MOMENTS FOR YOUR TREASURE CHEST OF LIFE . . . FINDS LOST DOG!
Tribune want ad gets results overnight!

When Mrs. Irving Bingel, 3718 N. Ashland avenue, lost her dog, she phoned a Lost and Found want ad to the Tribune at once. The next day a Tribune reader returned the dog.

Whenever you lose anything of value, be sure to telephone a Lost and Found want ad to the Chicago Tribune. Thousands of dollars' worth of property is restored each year to owners who advertise in the Lost and Found column of the Tribune want ad section.

Regardless of what you may have lost, or where in Chicago or suburbs you may have lost it, there is a good chance that a Tribune reader will find it.

The Tribune sells from 440,000 to 460,000 more copies right in metropolitan Chicago than other Chicago daily newspapers and on Sunday from 345,000 to 410,000 more than other Chicago Sunday newspapers deliver in metropolitan Chicago.

Further, the Tribune is Chicago's big want ad marketplace, carrying far more want advertising and, as a result, attracting far more want ad readers than any other Chicago newspaper.

CALL SUPERIOR 0100—WANT AD-VISER and ask for Miss Miller if you wish to recover lost valuables. Miss Miller will help you word your want ad. If your name is in the phone book, you may charge your Tribune want ad.

HERE'S A PEEK AT THE GHOST WRITER TRADE

Woman Tries to Keep Her Speeches Brief.

Miss M. Catherine Lyons, who has been in the ghost writing business since 1908, is a literary tailor. She writes speeches for other people and she figures that in 33 years she has written 25,000 speeches.

"Speeches to fit the individual" is the way she advertises herself. When a business executive comes to her office in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue, to be fitted up for a speech, Miss Lyons engages him in casual conversation.

"I first of all get his measure," she says. "I find out what sort of man he is, whether he is jovial, stern, serious, highbrow, or illiterate. I learn what he wants to talk about, what kind of an audience he will have, and what ideas he has. Then I write the speech and coach him in delivering its principal ideas, but never word for word."

Puts Stress on Brevity.

The hardest type of speech to write, Miss Lyons says, is the after-dinner speech. Most men have a notion that to make a successful one they merely tell a string of so-called after-dinner stories, usually dirty ones. That type of thing Miss Lyons gently and firmly discourages.

"I tell all my after-dinner speech clients that to be successful they must be brief. I seldom write one that is more than five minutes long. Usually I try to convince the speaker to boil down what he has to say to less than three minutes. The shorter my after-dinner speech, the more I charge, incidentally."

After ghost writing a speech Miss Lyons usually goes to hear it. She sits listening for comments, "audience reaction," as she puts it. She gets much repeat business, but, she remarks, "if the customer is intelligent, he usually gets the hang of writing his own speeches after a while." Tho she loses the person's business, she encourages this, she says, because once a customer has no further need for her services he will send others to her.

Incident with Club President.

Once a clubwoman who had just been elected president of her group came to her for the inaugural address. The woman wore her clothes smartly, seemed intelligent, spoke softly, but, Miss Lyons says, "she was illiterate." She spoke so rarely and appeared so calm at all times that her fellow club members thought of her as being a capable executive.

"The woman actually had the vocabulary of a fifth grade child. She had some brains, but no imagination, no ideas. I talked with her a long time and told her frankly the best thing to do would be to resign. She wouldn't. Her election, she said, had made her husband very proud and she insisted I write her a speech.

"I probed into the mechanics of the club and worked out a policy for her to follow as president. Then I gave her a course in vocabulary. I explained fully the meaning of every word in the speech and I rehearsed her over and over again. She delivered it before 700 women and I sat in the audience listening. The speech was successful."

Helps Insull Secretary.

Then there was the time Miss Lyons ghosted for a ghost. "Samuel Insull is dead now, so it can be told," she says. "A secretary used to write his speeches, but they were beginning to fall flat. Worried about losing her job if she didn't produce better talks, the secretary came to me and I wrote his speeches. Of course he never knew it."

Miss Lyons, who resides at 4727 Ellis avenue, has written speeches for all types of people—principals of schools, high school students, debaters, business men, engineers, fashion designers—but never has she written a speech for herself. "It isn't at all necessary," she says. "You see, I speak extemporaneously."

An Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. William Linz, 3813 Wilton avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lottie, to Myron M. Heeger, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Heeger of Sioux City, Ia.

Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

'Claudia' Opens Fall Drama Season Tomorrow Night

Chicago's 1941 Opera Season Will Open November 8

The Chicago Opera company is not dead and has not even been sleeping. True, there has been a great dearth of news about it lately, but the reason for that, apparently, is that the company has been saving up its announcements for one big blast rather than wasting them in semi-weekly pops.

For weeks now General Director Fortune Gallo has been wrestling (figuratively) with artists and managers and scratching his head over problems of repertoire. Besides all this, he has had to do some negotiating with New York's Metropolitan opera in order that that organization's new and more stringent rules relating to the residence requirements of its personnel might not ruin the Chicago season entirely by keeping most of the "name" artists close to New York.

While Gallo has been working along these lines (and working successfully, as the following paragraphs will show) his lieutenants here in Chicago have been far from idle. They have disposed of more than $20,000 worth of season subscriptions and they have renovated the Civic Opera house—at least to the extent of taking out those pointless main floor boxes and replacing them with regular seats.

The 1941 season will open on Saturday, Nov. 8, with a non-subscription performance. The subscription season starts the following Monday, Nov. 10, and runs for five weeks, closing on Saturday, Dec. 13. Regular performances will be given on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoons. In addition, there is to be a series of popular priced board of education presentations on Friday evenings. Thus, the total number of performances now contemplated is 26.

In point of length and number of presentations, this will be one of the most modest seasons in Chicago's recent history, but this very fact will tend to make its quality higher by allowing more time and thought and attention to be given to each performance. And in the matter of personnel, standards are to be very high.

To take first the artists who contributed to the brilliance of the 1940 season, the company has announced that the following will be part of the 1941 roster: Josephine Antoine, Rose Bampton, Dusolina Giannini, Helen Jepson, Dorothy Kirsten, Grace Moore and Lily Pons, sopranos; Karin Branzell, Ada Paggi and Sonia Sharnova, contraltos; Jussi Bjoerling, Richard Crooks, Frederick Jagel, Jan Kiepura, Giovanni Martinelli, Lauritz Melchior, James Melton,

Miss Phyllis Thaxter plays the title role in "Claudia," which will raise the curtain on another theatrical season at the Selwyn theater tomorrow night. The comedy comes from the pen of Rose Franken, who has in it dramatized her own set of stories about the young married couple, Claudia and David Naughton. It was staged by the author and produced by John Golden.

You are gazing at Lynne Overman and Jon Hall who participate in a new movie the Chicago theater will house. "Aloma of the South Seas" is its title. Mr. Hall, you will recall, was the big, strong, naive native in "Hurricane."

Rose Franken's Play to Be Presented at Selwyn Theater

Tomorrow night, as the curtain rises in the Selwyn theater on Donald Oenslager's inviting living room set for "Claudia," another theatrical season gets under way. The autumn's first entrant is a comedy with serious undertones concerning the early marital tribulations of a beguiling young couple, Claudia and David Naughton. Rose Franken, author of "Another Language," an observant and trenchant comedy of fond memory, has based her current play on a series of her own short stories. She herself directed it, and John Golden is the producer. Among other things, "Claudia" serves also to launch the Theater guild and American Theater society subscription series for the season.

Since the original cast of "Claudia" is still playing to large audiences in New York, Chicago will see its own hand-picked company. As experience has shown in the current "My Sister Eileen" or the recent "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "Life with Father," second companies can be far from secondary. Phyllis Thaxter and Reed Brown Jr. play the young couple in the production opening Monday night, and Beverly Bayne completes the trio of leading characters as Claudia's mother. Marguerite Namara, Lila Lee, Robert Craven, Edith Angold, and Bruno Wick round out the cast.

John Golden's name as producer of "Claudia" should be some sort of guarantee that it will be a local success, for Mr. Golden claims—and we believe rightly—that he has never had a failure in Chicago. In a quarter of a century of producing he has presented 62 plays, of which 40 have been seen in this city. The record begins with "Turn to the Right," and continues thru such hits as "Lightnin'" (Chicago's second longest run show), "Three Wise Fools," "The First Year," "Seventh Heaven," "Pigs," "Two Girls Wanted," "When Ladies Meet," "Let Us Be Gay," "Susan and God," and "Skylark."

As recounted in "Stage Struck John Golden," a biography that appeared some years ago, the producer's interest in matters theatrical sprang from seeing, as a boy, the late Edwin Arden in a piece called "The Eagle's Nest." Young John rewrote as much of the play as he could from memory and then staged it in a neighboring barn, pricing the tickets at a penny apiece.

Business, journalism, and inventing occupied Mr. Golden only briefly as a young man; for as actor, author, and song writer, he was soon indulging his passion for the stage. Between 1909 and 1918, either alone or in collaboration, he wrote "The Candy Shop," "Hip, Hip, Hooray," "The River of Souls," "The Big Show," "Go

Below: Spencer Tracy looks mighty kind and true in this scene with Lana Turner. That's because he's Dr. Jekyll-ing. You can see Mr. Tracy personifying the bad in the best of us and the good in the worst of us in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," soon at the United Artists.

Griff Williams Wins Plaudits in Empire Room

By Will Davidson.

The happiest music in town.

That's what Griff Williams is giving patrons of the famous Palmer House Empire room as his contribution to one of the most notable weeks in the city's night club ledger.

There was Griff opening the biggest engagement of his life; there was Henry Busse coming back to town in a new environment, the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel; there was a gay new show at the Rhumba Casino, featuring dancers Georges and Jalna; there were Ralph Cook and Dolly Kay co-headlining in the biggest show yet at Harry's New Yorker; and then last night there was Del Courtney's triumphant return to the Stevens hotel Continental room.

There isn't a more genuine person in show business than Griff Williams, and the spontaneous and insistent applause that greeted his debut in the Palmer House was as much a sincere tribute to that personal quality as to his impeccable musical talents. Griff's charm is no mere sheen of physical glamor, altho this dancing fool from Stanford has plenty of that. It is the expression of a friendly, eager, happy spirit.

There is a vast range to Griff's music. It is deep and rich, it is gay, it is maleable. From Griff's own beautiful piano playing, down to the delightfully silly novelty numbers, this is excellent, satisfying music. It is an ideal background for one of Maitre Fritz Hagner's elegant dinners. It practically impels you to dance. And it welds a difficult variety show into an artistic entity. Methinks there's a very large national reputation awaiting Griff and his boys.

With the Three Nonchalants back for their fourth visit, one of the funniest acts in the business is again on view here. These athletic lads can tumble with the best of them, and who can challenge them as delightful comedians? Johnny Woods gets an unhappy start on his radio mimicry with a slightly off color song, but quickly switches into some very funny impersonations, which end on the high note of Cab Calloway singing "When You're Smiling." Dorese Midgley is a pert little gal with a sparkling tap routine that is quite popular.

Unhappily, the co-stars of the revue, Raye and Naldi, on opening night, let a poisonous display of cheap temperament completely nullify their unquestioned artistry as ballroom dancers. That is, Mr. Naldi did. By what vagaries of reasoning he could possibly imagine that his opinion of Miss Raye's very lovely work was of any interest to the people he was hired to entertain, I'll never know.

The Merriel Abbott girls have another of their traditionally cute routines in "School Days," with Griff as teacher. And their autumn fantasy is beautifully conceived and executed. Two of the girls, Rita Roper and Gertrude Simmons have a starring rôle in the midevening "Little Show," which is too good to crowd into this week's review.

When Henry Busse acknowledged a personal request for "Hot Lips" Edgewater Beach hotel diners heard something they could hear from no other musician. For Henry and his trumpet and "Hot Lips" are a trinity that will always stand alongside Whiteman and "Rhapsody in Blue," and Ted Lewis and "Is Everybody Happy?" Henry still is his amiable, elegant little self and he has a good band. Young Lee Edwards, just breaking in, is a coming vocalist, and fits in well with Fuzzy Combs, Otto Glaeser, and Chubby Jackson as soloists.

The revue is one of the best in months at the Beach. Jack Spot, unicyclist, is a rare comedian, and the Albins, comedy dance team, have something unique and good. The Dorothy Dorben girls appear in two numbers that bear the unmistakable Dorben stamp.

Ralph [Thank You Very Kindly] Cook and Dolly Kay are bulging the walls of Harry's New Yorker in as good a show as Charlie Hepp and Dave Branower have ever staged. Cookie is the never changing Mad Rushin'. He is as subtle as a siege gun, and as unobtrusive as a massacre. The unending energy he puts into his act gives hilarious point to his greeting to a late arrival—"Hya, Doc, has my blood come?"

Dolly Kay, looking more attractive than ever, is the tremendously liked song seller of old. Her showmanship is something to watch, and she has an unerring ability to pick crowd-pleasing tunes.

Holdover favorites are The Waltons, the best dance team Harry's has had in years. And a popular comeback star is Darlene Walders, a lively, and highly talented acrobatic dancer. The New Yorchids offer several sparkling new routines, and Arne Barnett contributes his always pleasing music.

I've one other unhappy duty to perform and that is to speak in sadness of Diosa Costello's abrupt letdown of those of us who so anticipated her arrival at the Rhumba Casino because of her sparkling performance in "Two Many Girls." From a spitfire, amusing Puerto Rican pixie she has descended to just another posturer, whose dances are, with few exceptions, in completely poor taste.

But it matters little, for the Casino has a good show, starring Georges and Jalna. Tireless, talented, and versatile to an exciting degree, these dancers prove themselves one of the rarely entertaining teams in a vastly overcrowded field. They waltz beautifuly, they are exciting in a rhumba, and they are entirely delightful in "Dark Town Strutter's Ball."

Gali Gali, the amusing magician; Greco, a fairly competent flamenco dancer, and a beautiful line of girls in some ordinary routines fill out the bill.

Boswelling the Bistros! Felicitations to Loraine Sanchi and Mickey Levin, popular figures in local show circles, who were married a week ago. . . . Gary Stevens, the singing star with Charlie Spivak who comes to the Palladium Friday, played trumpet, until he heard Charlie do it as it should be done. . . . Henry Busse was born in Holland, but really came to life when he joined Paul Whiteman in 1918.

IN CAST OF 'THEATER'

Helen Flint is a featured member of the cast supporting Cornelia Otis Skinner in "Theater," coming to the Harris theater two weeks hence. Miss Flint was last seen in "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

'Claudia' to Open Fall Drama Season Tomorrow Night

to It," "The Old Stage Door," "Cheer Up," and others. As a composer he turned out part of the scores for "The Hoyden," 1907, and "Over the River," 1912. One of his songs is still popular and bids well to remain so for a long time to come—"Poor Butterfly."

Altho Mr. Golden is in his 67th year, his activity shows no signs of abatement. According to John Pollock, who presides over the producer's newly established Chicago office, Mr. Golden is an indefatigable worker, "always the first to arrive at his office and the last to leave. He reads more scripts than his play reader and knows every infinitesimal detail of the production in hand."

He is still willing to strike out in fresh paths as is evidenced by the aforementioned Chicago office. This he has set up to see that the midwestern metropolis gets as much attention from him as Broadway does. Two weeks after "Claudia" opens, his production of "Theater," starring Cornelia Otis Skinner, will come into the Harris theater prior to its New York showing. Then, after the first of the year, he hopes to bring in a new play by Rachel Crothers, depending on whether or not the script is finished. And any time that he should come across a good, new play—a rarity, as any producer will tell you—it can be assumed that Chicago will be given a chance to judge it as soon if not before New York does.

As if his theatrical ventures were not sufficient to keep him busy, Mr. Golden is at present working overtime as co-chairman of Marshall Field's Defense Recreation committee, which attempts to provide free or low cost entertainment for the men in uniform. He was quick to include his own show, "Claudia," in the project, and numerous sailors and army men have been given permission to see it without charge.

Notes of the Theater

The National Association for Youth Adjustment, a privately sponsored organization, is preparing a pageant depicting America's progress from the early days of the revolution up to the present time which it will give in the Civic Opera house from Monday thru Sunday, Sept. 22-28. The spectacle will depict such famous or important scenes as the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Washington crossing the Delaware, the signing of the Louisiana Purchase treaty, the Fort Dearborn massacre, the Civil and World wars, and numerous others. Venita Rich McBurney has conceived the project, and over 500 actors, dancers, and musicians are expected to take part.

The association was founded by Mrs. Mary Connorton to "create, maintain, and operate properties thruout the United States, each to be known as 'Youthtown,' for the betterment of underprivileged youths from back streets of blighted areas thruout the nation." Chicago offices of the organization are at 32 West Randolph street.

Herman Shumlin, producer of "The Corn Is Green" and "Watch on the Rhine," has bound the leading players by contract to appear in their respective plays until May 31, 1943. This would indicate the producer's confidence in the success on the road as well as in New York of his two productions. It also guarantees the fact that when the plays appear in Chicago on the Theater Guild and American Theater society's subscription series Ethel Barrymore will still be in "The Corn Is Green" and Paul Lukas, Lucile Watson, and Mady Christians will still be with "Watch on the Rhine."

Besides "Claudia" and two Shumlin dramas the guild will offer Maxwell Anderson's latest play, "Candle in the Wind," starring Helen Hayes; Sophie Treadwell's "Hope for a Harvest," starring Fredric March and Florence Eldridge, and a revival of Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple," starring Spencer Tracy. Guild subscribers also will be given reduced rates on tickets and seat priorities on the series of revivals being produced by the New York Theater Guild and described on these pages a few weeks ago.

Donald Cameron.

Donald Cameron, who plays the father of Ruth and Eileen Sherwood in "My Sister Eileen," is a stage veteran with 28 years in the profession to his credit. After studying for the stage at the American Academy of Dramatic Art he made his professional debut at Berkeley, Cal., in September, 1913, as a member of Margaret Anglin's company in Sophocles' "Electra." He stayed with Miss Anglin for some time and then appeared successively in "The Bubble," "Wake Up, Jonathan!," "Dreams for Sale," "The Dice of the Gods," "Brook," "Queen Victoria," "The Bride," "A Good Bad Woman," and "The Dunce Boy." In October, 1927, he joined Eva Le Gallienne's famous Civic Repertory theater. In his four years with that company he tried a variety of rôles in such classic works as "The Good Hope," "Hedda Gabler," "The Cherry Orchard," "Peter Pan," "The Cradle Song," "The Women Have Their Way," "Romeo and Juliet," "Siegfried," "Alison's House," "Camille," "Liliom," "The Three Sisters," "Alice in Wonderland," and others. In more recent years he played in "Stop-Over," "Escape This Night," and in some of the Maurice Evans Shakespearean productions.

Next to the last warning: "My Sister Eileen" remains at the Harris theater for only two more weeks.

Eddie Dowling, seen here last season in "The Time of Your Life," begins rehearsals shortly on "Purple Dust" by that formidable Dubliner, Sean O'Casey. This was a comic but strong indictment of English society, which, to make it currently acceptable, has been reduced to a humorous satire on a pair of Englishmen. Nothing remains of its political bias, which was notably leftist, except an arraignment of the appeasement party and certain minority politicians. Despite the bitter attacks the first version contained, English critics hailed the play as one of O'Casey's best and as exhibiting some of his most vivid writing. It is natural, after all these years, that the English are able to appreciate good Irish satire at their own expense. Three other eminent, Dublin-born playwrights, Sheridan, Wilde, and Shaw, have made them used to it.

Speaking of Shaw, this department would like to call attention to the arrival in town of the film version of "Major Barbara." The picture was made during an early period of the war when there was little theatrical activity in London, leaving many major English actors and actresses free to perform in it. The cast is almost surfeited with expert players: Dame Sybil Thorndike, Robert Morley, Rex Harrison, Wendy Hiller, Penelope Dudley Ward, Emlyn Williams, Robert Newton, David Tree, and Marie Lohr. The producer, Gabriel Pascal, also was responsible for the enormously successful screening of Shaw's "Pygmalion."

"Theater," the Somerset Maugham-Guy Bolton comedy due at the Harris theater on Sept. 29, begins its fall tour at the Erlanger theater, Buffalo, on Thursday night. From there the company goes to the Royal Alexandria theater in Toronto for the week of Sept. 21. The Chicago run will follow immediately.

Lehman Engel will provide an incidental score and Lemuel Ayers will design the costumes for Maurice Evans' revival of "Macbeth." Besides Judith Anderson as Lady Macbeth, the cast now includes Viola Keats as Lady Macduff, Herbert Rudley as Macduff, Staats Cotsworth as Banquo, and Harry Irvine as Duncan. The production is due in New York on Nov. 11 after visits to New Haven and Boston.

IN CONTINENTAL ROOM

Del Courtney is back in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel for an indefinite run. Delightful Del established himself as a Chicago favorite last spring in the famous bronze and green room.

Current Music News

The Ballet Theater is expected to make a cross-country tour during the forthcoming winter and spring seasons. Several changes in personnel have occurred during the summer. The reorganized company is now managed by Sol Hurok and directed by Gerald Sevastianoff, and it has Antal Dorati for its conductor. The company has lost Nana Gollner, Katherina Sergava and Leon Danielian to the Original Ballet Russe, but has acquired Irina Baronova, Alicia Markova, Sono Osato, Rosella Hightower, George Skibine, Simon Semenoff, Jeanette Lauret and Ian Gibson. Seven new ballets will be added to the already large repertory. Michel Fokine will do Prokofieff's "Romeo and Juliet" and is already at work on "Bluebeard" to music by Offenbach. Bronislava Nijinska's "Bien-Aimée" is being revived by her, and a group of Slavonic dances has been arranged by Vania Psota under the title "Slavonika." A new version of "Aurora's Wedding" will be staged by Anton Dolin. Antony Tudor's "Verklärte Nacht" and Eugene Loring's "The Man from Midian" complete the list.

Critic Addresses Advice to New Students of Music

Field Already Overcrowded, He Points Out

By Edward Barry.

At a time of year when tens of thousands of persons are enrolling in conservatories and in the classes of private teachers thruout the country, a few observations on the purposes of music study cannot be out of order.

The primary purpose is the enrichment of life thru close contact with music. A secondary purpose may be the acquirement of a skill and knowledge by which a livelihood can be earned.

This distinction is made with a full knowledge of the fact that a large number of students—perhaps as many as half—harbor somewhere in the back or even the front of their minds the idea of making music their life's work. It is these who will profit most by brooding over the statements made in the preceding paragraph, for it is entirely possible that they can save themselves much bitter disappointment later by courageously facing the facts now.

For the sad truth is that music is not a good way to make a living. True, public interest in the art is increasing by leaps and bounds, but the deduction one might be tempted to draw from this—that opportunities for musicians also are increasing by leaps and bounds—is not a sound one.

For one thing, radio and recordings provide the bulk of musical experience for the vast majority of the public, and these two media are able to widen their services without increasing, in anything like the same degree, the number of musicians they employ. Chain broadcasting and the manufacture of astronomical number of records of a single performance permit the public to hear a limitless amount of first rate music and still utilize the services of an almost negligible number of musicians.

Consider, too, the fact that as public acquaintance with music increases public standards rise. There is less tolerance now than there was a generation ago for the not quite first rate musician or musical organization. And since nature is as parsimonious as ever, and endows not one in 10,000 persons with the extraordinary ability which would allow him to rise to the top, the overwhelming majority of students must resign themselves to the knowledge that never, never will their gifts set the world on fire.

So, with the exception of those who have their faces set toward the goal of school and college and university teaching [of which more later] the music student of 1941 is hardly better off than was his fellow of a generation ago. In fact, conditions as they exist today may more than offset the great increase in public interest in music and render him actually worse off. There is much stiffer competition. Increased attention to music in the schools and greater opportunities for hearing music via phonograph and radio tend to make more youngsters music conscious than ever before and to implant in some of their minds the idea that music might make a pleasant and profitable profession.

A generation ago such an idea could hardly occur to children, unless their parents were members of small musical groups in cities and large towns. Thus the number of serious music students in those days was considerably smaller than now, and the competition was less keen.

The prospects of those students of today who have determined to win success as instrumentalists or singers are nothing less than grim. Players of orchestral instruments may, if they are very good and if they have a run of luck, some day find a place for themselves in one of the stable, well paying symphonic ensembles of the country or in one of the even better paying radio organizations. Aside from this there is not a great deal to look forward to.

Solo pianists and violinists of considerable ability may give a debut recital in some large city and write off the financial loss they will almost inevitably incur against the prestige that will accrue to them. With this prestige they may possibly be able to get a few club dates a year or even acquire three or four pupils. But the problem of how to earn a living is not solved by any such minor triumphs. Great ability, extraordinary luck and generous financial backing—these seem to be the things needed if a young pianist or violinist is to rise from the club date, small time teaching state to one of genuine financial stability.

With singers the case is slightly different, for a person to whom nature has given a remarkable voice may, with good training and good luck, find more opportunities open to him than either the pianist or the violinist. There is church work and radio work besides club work and teaching. Even so, the distance between this and a big success in the concert world, with the economic stability such a success would give, is very great. Not one out of 1,000 is able to make it. Other things besides a good voice and good luck are desirable. There should be genuine musical ability, an attractive personality, and good financial backing during the profitless years.

In this dark picture of a music student's prospects there is at least one fairly bright spot. The number of teaching positions in the schools and colleges and universities has risen, and the student who sets his heart on one of these is not pursuing quite the will-o'-the-wisp that his brothers are who have determined to win a livelihood for themselves as instrumentalists or singers. Not that these positions in the schools and colleges and universities are easy to get or that there are vast numbers of them—but at least they exist and one has a fighting chance for them. They offer an opportunity to give society what society demands, and the teacher is not in the position of the performing artist who has to force on society services which it usually does not want and has too much of already. This fact has an obvious relation to the financial stability of the person who is proffering the services.

Let it not be implied that positions in the schools are for students of limited ability. To hold one of them requires great ability, but not necessarily great musical ability. Such work constitutes an attractive goal for those who are deeply interested in music and who have the knack of imparting knowledge, but who realize or suspect that they do not possess the type of personality nor the purely musical gifts which, together with good luck and generous financial backing, might give them a reasonable chance for success in the concert field.

But despite this one bright spot in the picture, the fact is that the vast majority of music students never will earn a single dollar with their music. They must prepare to make their livings in some other way, and realize that the primary purpose of music study is the enrichment of life.

RETURNS IN OPERA ROLE

Among the sopranos who will return to the Chicago Opera company for the 1941 season is the Philadelphia-born Dusolina Giannini. Among the operas in which she probably will be heard are "Falstaff" and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Monte Carlo Ballet Adds Three Works

Three new works will have been added to the répertoire of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo by the time it opens its mid-winter engagement at the Civic Opera house. The most important is the already mentioned "Labyrinth," having a libretto, scenery and costumes by Salvador Dali, and choreography by Leonide Massine. The music for it will be Schubert's C Major symphony. The second Massine creation will be "Saratoga," with an original score by Jaromir Weinberger. For the third item Alexandra Fedorova has revived from the Petipa-Ivanoff choreography the third act of Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake" and given it the title of "The Magic Swan."

Public Library Exhibit Covers History of Opera in Chicago

The history of opera in Chicago—and it covers more than a century—is evoked currently by a remarkable exhibit in the lobbies of the Chicago public library. Lee K. Preston, who knows more about the subject than any one else, has assembled the material and put it on display with the library's aid. The exhibit is suggestive rather than complete, as Mr. Preston will be the first to tell you, and only a vague attempt has been made to arrange it in chronological order. Still it succeeds in what it attempts, to arouse wonder, amusement, and nostalgia at the career of lyric drama in this robust city.

For a long time it was thought that Chicago's first opera was Bellini's "La Sonnambula," given on July 29, 1850, at Rice's theater, 84 Randolph street. This fact is celebrated in "Musical Memories," a general history of music in Chicago by the city's first major music critic, George P. Upton, and in a monograph by the late Karleton Hackett.

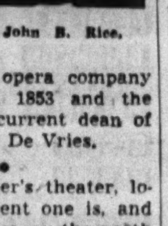
As discovered by Mr. Preston, both chroniclers overlooked or ignored a tiny, but popular ballad opera, "The Poor Soldier," given on Sept. 25, 1839, at the Rialto theater, which was the converted upper floor of a wooden building on the west side of Dearborn street between Lake and South Water streets. The Jefferson family figured largely in the Illinois Theatrical company, which gave "The Poor Soldier," the father as one of the managers, the mother as a member of the cast, and son Joseph as a singer of comic songs, ballads, and sea chanteys. This was the same Joe Jefferson who later was to make his fame as Rip Van Winkle. As for the opera, it originally bore the title, "The Shamrock." Composed by William Field, it was first given in London in 1783 and reached New York two years later. It was popular wherever ballad operas were given in this country at that time, continuing its vogue thruout its presentation in Chicago.



John B. Rice.

The library exhibition contains a photostatic copy of the Daily American's announcement of "The Poor Soldier," and goes on from there with pictures of Rice's theater, the manager, John B. Rice; a Milwaukee paper's review of the 1850 "La Sonnambula," and Signora Rosa De Vries, the leading prima donna of an Italian opera company which came here in 1853 and the mother of Chicago's current dean of music critics, Herman De Vries.

• • •

The second McVicker's theater, located where the present one is, and the Crosby Opera house, on the north side of Washington, midway between State and Dearborn streets, are represented, since both played an important part in the growth of opera's popularity. It was at McVicker's, for example, that Chicago saw its first "Aida" [1874] and "Carmen" [1878]. Also pictured are the famous singers who sang here during the last part of the 19th century, Giuseppe del Puente, Emma Albani, Sofia Scalchi, Alwina Valleria, Myron W. Whitney, Antonio Galassi, J. Victor Capoul, Etelka Gerster, Italo Campanini, brother of the illustrious Cleofonte, who established resident opera here; Christine Nilsson, and Zelia Trebelli.

Adelina Patti.

Indispensable to any record of local operatic history is the Auditorium theater, erected in 1889. The display recalls many an artist who sang there prior to the creation of a resident company. There are Adelina Patti, who sang in the inaugural opera, "Romeo and Juliet"; Lillian Nordica, Nellie Melba, Emma Eames, Rosa Olitzka [now a resident of Chicago], Marcella Sembrich, Johanna Gadski, Marie Brema, Lilli Lehman, and Emma Calvé. All of them were artists of such fabulous reputations that their names carry weight to this day. When the Civic Opera company quit the Auditorium theater in 1929, "Romeo and Juliet" was appropriately chosen for the final performance, and the caps and fans which Edith Mason used in it as Juliet are on display.

The golden age of opera in Chicago, from 1910 to 1932, is represented well enough to make all true opera lovers wistful and nostalgic. The exhibition invokes memories of Cleofonte Campanini, founder and director of the Chicago Grand Opera company, the original resident organization; of such conductors as Egon Pollak, Giorgio Polacco, and Roberto Moranzoni; of a trio of superb baritones, Giacomo Rimini, Georges Baklanoff, and Vanni Marcoux; of the indispensable Virgilio Lazzari; of such popular tenors as Tito Schipa, Charles Hackett, and Charles Marshall; of the exceptional Wagnerian artist, Frida Leider; of the lovely Edith Mason, and, finally, of that extraordinary triumvirate of sopranos, Rosa Raisa, Mary Garden, and Claudia Muzio. The Civic Opera house, built in 1929, finds a deserved place in the record, and the last and most recent era of resident opera is given representation with numerous photographs, clippings, and librettos.

Other sections of the exhibit are concerned with the presentation here of rarely heard works by local or visiting organizations. Bohemian, German, Polish and other national groups have produced operas which were popular only in their home countries, such as Dvorak's "Rusalka" or Moniuszko's "Halka." The University of Chicago has staged Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas," Handel's "Xerxes," Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris," Weinberger's "Schwanda," Telemann's "Pimpinone," and Lortzing's "The Armourer." Touring companies have brought such novelties as Gruenberg's "The Emperor Jones," Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," Milhaud's "The Poor Sailor," Ibert's "Angélique," and others.

Chicago Opera Season Opens on November 8

Gladys Swarthout.

A very impressive list—which is made even more impressive by the addition of several artists who are returning to Chicago opera after an absence of two years or more, and of others who have still to make their local operatic debut. The following are in one or the other of these categories: Mobley Lushanya, Elisabeth Rethberg, and Bidu Sayao, sopranos; Irra Petina and Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-sopranos; Raoul Jobin, tenor; Salvatore Baccaloni, Richard Bonelli, and Lawrence Tibbett, baritones.

Baccaloni is the great Metropolitan buffo who has been making even the most dignified New Yorkers laugh. He sang here several years ago. Jobin and Petina are likewise Metropolitan artists. They took part in the successful eastern revival of Donizetti's "The Daughter of the Regiment." Sayao is the Brazilian soprano who acquitted herself brilliantly in an appearance with the Woman's Symphony orchestra here about three and one-half years ago. The other artists named above have all sung here recently in opera. Tibbett, it will be remembered, canceled his engagements last season because of throat trouble, and Verdi's "Otello," in which he does so outstanding an Iago, was removed from the répertoire.

Among the 1941 conductors will be Gennaro Papi, the distinguished Italian who left the Chicago company during the 1935 season, and Emile Cooper, a Russian who was active here from 1929 to 1932. The stage director this year will be the same William Wymetal who functioned so well in that capacity last season.

Among the revivals contemplated for the coming season are Donizetti's "The Daughter of the Regiment," not heard here since 1926, and Verdi's "The Masked Ball," whose last local performance was in 1930. Pons will appear in the Donizetti work during the first week of the season, with Papi conducting.

The other works which may be restored during the 1941 season hardly deserve the name of revival, for they have been out of the répertoire a very short time. They are "The Barber of Seville," "La Bohème," "Faust," "Lohengrin," "Mignon," "Otello," and "The Tales of Hoffman." The last named, if it is given at all, will be given in English.

The rest of the répertoire will be selected from the following list: "Aida," "Carmen," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Falstaff," "Hansel and Gretel," "The Jewels of the Madonna," "Madame Butterfly," "Martha," "Pagliacci," "Rigoletto," "Tannhäuser," "Tosca," and "La Traviata." Of these, three would be sung in English—"Falstaff," "Hansel and Gretel," and "Martha."

The same chorus which contributed so much to both the musical and the visual beauty of last season will be on hand this year. The Littlefield ballet, which worked with the opera company in the seasons of 1938 and 1939, will be back this fall to supply the dance sequences in all operas requiring ballet. Catherine Littlefield is founder and director of the group.

All in all, the 1941 season looks promising. The company has good personnel and interesting plans, and in the Civic Opera house it has what is probably the finest and best equipped opera producing plant that the world affords.

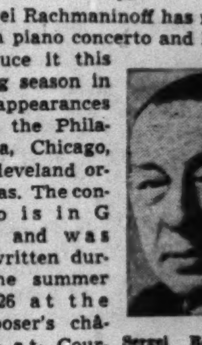
Besides General Director Gallo, the officers for this season are as follows: Chauncey McCormick, chairman of the board of governors; Robert Hall McCormick, chairman of the board of trustees; Abner J. Stilwell, treasurer; William D. Saltiel, secretary, and William H. Stevenson, assistant to the board.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Dennis Morgan, tenor and film star, and Karin Branzell, contralto of the Chicago and Metropolitan Opera companies, are scheduled to give recitals in Chicago this fall. Mr. Morgan will sing on Oct. 4 and Miss Branzell on Nov. 14.

Ruth Page and Bentley Stone, Chicago dancers, will invade the supper club entertainment world when they begin an engagement at the Rainbow room at Rockefeller center on Nov. 18.

The program for the first of the concerts on the Chicago Festival of Ancient Music at the Goodman theater will be devoted to music by Henry Purcell and Johann Sebastian Bach. It includes Purcell's Fantasias for strings, the adagio from Bach's Concerto in C major for two harpsichords, Purcell's incidental music for "The Fairy Queen," a Sonata in G major for viola and harpsichord by Bach, trio sonatas in D major and G major for violins, cello and harpsichord by Purcell, solos for spinet and harpsichord by both composers, and Bach's Concerto in C major for three harpsichords and strings. The date of the first concert is Sunday, Oct. 5, and subsequent programs will be given on Oct. 12 and Oct. 19. Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, harpsichordists, will present the festival with the assistance of Leonard Sorkin and Oscar Chausow, violinists; Milton Preves, violist; Dudley Powers, cellist, and Dorothy Lane, harpsichordist.



Sergei Rachmaninoff.

Sergei Rachmaninoff has revised his Fourth piano concerto and he will reintroduce it this coming season in his appearances with the Philadelphia, Chicago, and Cleveland orchestras. The concerto is in G minor and was first written during the summer of 1926 at the composer's château at Courbevoie, not far from Paris. Its first performance was given by the Philadelphia orchestra under Leopold Stokowski on March 18, 1927, and it was first played here by the Chicago Symphony during the 1930-'31 season. Rachmaninoff has spent the last summer at his home in Huntington, N. Y., revising the concerto. It is said he has not altered his thematic material, but he has changed the orchestration and almost rewritten the final movement. The pianist-composer appears with the Chicago Symphony on Nov. 6 and 7, and later in recital on the History and Enjoyment of Music series.

The last of four recitals presenting the piano works of Johannes Brahms will be given in the Evanston Catholic Woman's club, 1560 Oak avenue, Evanston, tomorrow night at 8:30. The series is under the direction of Karl McGuire. Monday's program lists the sonatas in F sharp minor, C major and F minor. They will be played by Hazel Penney, Mary Roth and Doris Bartholomew, respectively.

Katherine Dunham and her group of dancers have made a series of short films, the first of which is now to be seen at the United Artists theater. It is called "Carnival of Rhythm." Miss Dunham's choreography, her dancing and that of her company are only partly successful. Some of the fault lies in the limitations of the two dimensional screen and some in the picture's direction and cutting.

By Mae Tinee.

Good morning!

Add "Major Barbara" to your list of propaganda productions.

The film proper favors armaments and their adaptation for peaceful projects. . . . In the seven minute prolog Mr. Shaw, talking down his nose to us, I thought, invites America to assist in the abolishment of white slavery in Europe. . . . He starts his address to "movie fans of the United States" thus:

"I am sending you my old plays, just as you are sending us your old destroyers. . . . Our government has very kindly thrown in a few naval bases as well. . . . It makes the bargain, perhaps, more welcome to you. . . ."

This 1905 Shaw play presents the romance of a Salvation Army girl major—daughter of a powerful munitions manufacturer—and a young professor of Greek—who joins the army because he loves her—as an island, bristling with forests of Shavian wit and completely surrounded by an ocean of Shaw conclusions on many subjects. . . . He—thru the mouths of his characters—speaks brilliantly and at length on war, whisky, religion, art, finance, education, journalism.

You will—perhaps—learn why the whisky traffic is, possibly, an angel in disguise and the manufacture of gunpowder, in its way, a godsend to humanity. . . . You will see—maybe—that the Salvation Army sometimes argues wrongly. . . .

Religion, ecstatic and all acceptant, is represented by Major Barbara. War, by her papa. These are the main subjects disposed of by Mr. Shaw.

From the production standpoint the photoplay, aside from its too great length—and how to get away from that in an honest to goodness Shaw adaptation I wouldn't know—is practically flawless.

Wendy Hiller as Barbara is a sensation and should have every Hollywood scout galloping on her trail with a lariat. . . . With Rex Harrison's smooth, humor, bejeweled work you are happily familiar. . . . Robert Morley is splendid as the munitions manufacturer tho his makeup gave me the creeps. I couldn't decide whether he looked most like Socrates escaped from a winding sheet or somebody who had been nipped in the night by a vampire bat. . . . Magnificent portrayals by Robert Newton, Emlyn Williams, and, indeed, every other member of the cast.

This film is bound to interest The Thinker, but, I wonder, WILL it have popular appeal?

See you soon.

Gertrude Lawrence, Frank Craven Open Theater Season

'Lady in Dark' Has Undergone Cast Changes

By Burns Mantle.

Gertrude Lawrence. [Seymour Photo.]

New York [Special].—We got the theater season started fairly early this year. Down on Cape Cod, Gertrude Lawrence took off her slacks and put on one of her print dresses and came gliding back to town to resume her run in last season's most successful show, "Lady in the Dark." The "Pal Joey" cast, which had been resting for several weeks, also reassembled and resumed work in that musical toughie which has to do with a night club dancer taken up by a society matron in Chicago.

And then along came Frank Craven, recently of Hollywood, but more recently of the barn theater circuit, with the first new play of the season, a homely piece called "Village Green," which tells of a Democrat who finally got elected to congress in a New Hampshire community which had been devoted to the Republican party from the days of the Whigs. Or was it the Federals?

Miss Lawrence literally picked up "Lady in the Dark" at the very spot where she laid it down 11 weeks ago. She is again at the Alvin theater, the theater is again being swarmed upon by anxious playgoers, and there have been no changes in the engagement routine, except that there is a new assortment of help.

Four leading men quit her ladyship during the summer, and they were not easy to replace. Still, as I have long insisted, if the part is worth playing you can always find an actor to play it, and play it well. One actor will fit a part better than another, but any of them who is competent will play any part well enough to keep the play in balance.

Take, as you will have to, the case of Danny Kaye and the chief comedy rôle in "Lady in the Dark." Danny, in the original production, was, next to the star, the entertainment's chief attraction. He had come up slowly from summer stock and winter night clubs. His wife [Sylvia Fine] had written several clever patter songs for him, and he was ready for a major Broadway assignment.

To help him, Kurt Weill, composer, and Ira Gershwin, lyricist, of "Lady in the Dark," copied one of Miss Fine's patter songs, replacing the twisted names of Russian ballet dancers with those of Russian composers, calling it "Tschaikowsky," and spotting it in a fantastic circus scene in the play.

Danny, as intimated, was an overnight hit. For any ordinary attraction his withdrawal from the cast would have been disastrous. During preliminary rehearsals Rex O'Malley was tried in the part. Four days before the reopening, Moss Hart, the author, decided that O'Malley was not the type. There were words and O'Malley withdrew.

In the emergency a young fellow who got a B. A. from the university of Wisconsin a few years back, Eric Brotherson, was pressed into service. Not more than a few persons had ever heard of Eric, even tho in a Federal theater production of a musical play called "Sing for Your Supper" he was the first to sing "Ballad for Americans." But Hart had seen him, liked his performance, and decided to give him this chance.

Happily, Brotherson also was an overnight success, not as a character comedian, copying the Kaye performance, but just as a likable, talented, attractive youngster playing a well written and important rôle as it was written to be played. Now I read that it has been decided to feature young Brotherson with the other principals. It can happen that way. But it doesn't, not very often.

• • •

There was another hard part to fill, that of the movie glamor boy, the favorite "hunk of man" that women raved about. Victor Mature was the original. Now it appears that the casting agencies are awash with glamor boys if you're really interested. The one chosen as Mature's successor happens to be Willard Parker, a handsome brute whose physical allure went for nothing in "Johnny Belinda" last year. Why? Because last year Willard was playing the villain of the piece. He seduced the heroine and got shot, and all the women in the audience cheered. And are they gasping now, when they catch him as an Apollo in polo shirt, belt, breeches, and boots! Yes, Ma'am, they are!

To get back to Craven's official opening of the theater season with "Village Green" it must be admitted that this did not amount to much. "Village Green" is a nice little old fashioned comedy about Judge Peabody, an amiable jurist living in a small New Hampshire town. For 16 years the judge had been running regularly for congress on the Democratic ticket, just for the fun of it, and not with the least hope of election.

But now, suddenly, he finds himself the center of a village scandal that works to his advantage. His daughter's sweetheart, painting a symbolic nude in the court house murals, has, almost without thinking, put the Peabody girl's face on it. The prudes and the hypocrites insist she must have posed for the disgraceful thing, which she denies. Judge Peabody also insists she didn't do it, but if she did, he says, she had a right to her freedom of expression, the same as the artist.

The prudes and prisms set loses, and the judge wins the election on the freedom of expression issue. Craven is perfect as the judge, and his son, John, plays the young artist. But neither of them has much to work with. Perry Wilson is the ingénue, and very nice. But "Village Green" still is a quarter of a century behind the times. Probably it will make a good class B movie.

What you try to do in vacation time is to "get away from it all," "it all" meaning no more than the deadly daily routine. My last escapist tour was to Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D. C. I assume that you know about these inspirational centers of an older and happier America than we read about these days. And I earnestly wish, if you do any traveling during September and October [really the most beautiful months of the year] that you would try to contact one or both.

At Williamsburg a company known as Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., financed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. in the aggregate sum of $13,000,000, has virtually restored the original colonial capital of Virginia. Neither Rockefeller nor his researchers have spared the budgets. Their one aim, apparently, has been to bring the old Williamsburg back to life. The results are a definite lift to the spirit.

There are now six or seven of the original Williamsburg buildings completely restored and refurnished, the capitol, the public jail, the Raleigh tavern, the Ludwell-Paradise house, the George Wythe house, and the governor's palace. Nothing has been neglected or cheapened in any of these restorations, down to the minutest details. There are fresh flowers in all the posey-holders. There is real wine in the decanters. Every reproduction is as exact as the researchers could demand, and as costly as need be. Restored Williamsburg is a Rockefeller hobby, I gather, and J. D. Jr. happily has been able to indulge it to the fullest. The result is a sort of shrine to colonial America from which you come away with misty eyes and a grateful heart.

And then, if you continue on for another couple of hundred miles, over perfect roads, you may happen upon the Lincoln Memorial in Washington by moonlight, and all the new architectural beauty of the nation's capital, plus all the bustling activity of these days of preparation for defense. If you do, I have a feeling that there will be a definite easing of your tax paying resentment. It is a great pity, I think, that so many of us know so little of this America we are asked to help preserve.

Pan-American Theater Gains in Importance

A bi-lingual theater of importance is rapidly gaining recognition, not only in Mexico City where it is situated, but also in this country. It is the Pan-American theater, which gives Mexican and American plays in their original language and some of the latter in Spanish translations.

Isabela Corona.

The theater was launched four years ago at an obscure workers' center by Fernando Wagner, a teacher and lecturer who has spoken in Chicago as well as other American cities. From its humble beginnings the organization has now reached a point where its annual répertoire is housed in the elaborate Palace of Fine Arts, thus denoting that it has the benediction and sponsorship of the government. And for four years it has been steadily presenting the only Spanish-English dramatic fare to be found in this hemisphere.

Four plays by Mexicans are in the Pan-American theater's répertoire. "Lazy Monday," a drawing room comedy about the impact of the war upon cultivated, cosmopolitan Mexicans, is the work of Margarita Ureta, called "The Clare Boothe of Mexico." "Mañana Is Another Day," the joint work of Theodore Epstein, a naturalized Mexican, and Dwight Morris of New York, is a light comedy contrasting United States tourists in a Cuernavaca pension with their Mexican hosts and household servants. "Mexican Mural," by Ramon Naya, will be remembered as the first prize winner in the 1939 contest conducted by New York's Group theater. Last of the quartet of native works is "Ashes of Dreams," a mystical play by Celestino Gorostiza, a former director of the Mexican government's fine arts department.

Alongside of these plays are given such American products as Irwin Shaw's "Bury the Dead," Mark Reed's "Petticoat Fever," and Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie." These were presented in Spanish with the Mexican plays in the winter season. But they were done in English during the summer when the American tourist trade is at its height. At that time "Mañana Is Another Day" and "Mexican Mural" were also done in the English language.

At present the répertoire is being expanded by the works of four English writers, Edward Percy and Reginald Denham's "Ladies in Retirement," Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound" and Noel Coward's "Hay Fever." Presumably these, too, will be done in Spanish when the winter season rolls around shortly.

The acting company is a strange mixture of Mexicans and aliens. Among the former are Isabela Corona, considered Mexico's finest actress; Arturo de Cordoba, who stars on the screen as well as the stage; Consuelo de Alba and Pedro Armendariz. Others in the group are Maria Temple, whose training was in London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Art and on English provincial stages; Thomas and Patricia Ireland, both from the Cleveland Playhouse; Irene de Bahus, a Hungarian dancer, and Orlando Weber, who has played musical comedy thruout Europe.

Out of such heterogeneous material and under the guidance of the dynamic Prof. Wagner has emerged a potentially great factor in increasing the understanding between the United States and its southern neighbor.

National Symphony Plans Concerts for Washington

Riverside Stadium, Washington, D. C., will be the scene of the first series of "pop" concerts ever to be given by the National Symphony orchestra, Hans Kindler, conductor. The floor has been set with sufficient tables to accommodate 1,200 persons. The balcony and bleacher seats number 5,000 but offer no table service. Two intermissions will be granted at each concert for replenishing at the lunch counters.

Joseph Schildkraut Returns to Stage After 7 Years

After being absent from the stage for seven years Joseph Schildkraut will return to play Tallulah Bankhead's leading man in Clifford Odets' "Clash by Night," which Billy Rose is producing. Lee J. Cobb will be featured in the cast, and Lee Strasberg will direct.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Just as certain magnificent inventions, originally intended to make man's life a happier one, have been perverted to destructive causes, so in bridge we have conventions that can either benefit or destroy their users, according to the care and logic with which they are employed.

Consider one of the most recent additions to the family of bridge conventions—the so-called "suit-preference signal." As most players know, this convention may be described briefly as follows: When one defender follows suit with or leads an unnecessarily high card, he asks partner to shift to the higher ranking outside suit [aside from the trump suit]; conversely, a low follow suit card or lead is supposed to call for a shift to the lower ranking of the plain suits. The object of this convention is both simple and admirable, but unfortunately, it has been applied so fantastically by the rank and file of players that it has proved a veritable boomerang. It has been directly responsible for the fulfilment of thousands of contracts that should have been easily defeated.

Let's look at a typical hand and at an even more typical misuse of this suit-preference signal.

NORTH

♥A 10 8 4 3 2

WEST	EAST

SOUTH

The bidding [both sides vulnerable]:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 diamonds	2 hearts	3 diamonds
3 spades	4 diamonds	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

Yes, I realize that East-West could have made five diamonds, but what we have to concern ourselves with is the proper defense against the actual contract of four spades doubled.

West opened the diamond king and East, after careful consideration of the dummy, followed suit with the queen. This play was read by West, an enthusiastic suit-preference addict, as a demand for a shift to the higher ranking suit aside from trumps; hence, West promptly shifted to the seven of hearts. This play was received gratefully by the declarer. He won in his own hand with the king, and realizing that the heart suit might be banked against him, promptly returned a heart. Now it did not matter whether West ruffed or discarded; in either case, declarer could establish the hearts. Actually West chose to ruff and he then laid down the club ace in the hope that East had the club king. Declarer, however, controled the club continuation, and it was a simple matter to lead a low trump to the jack and ruff a low heart, then to return to dummy's spade queen and run off the entire heart suit.

Here was a case in which the suit-preference signal had absolutely no place or standing. Consider the fix that poor East was in if his partner was determined to look upon the size of the diamond played at the first trick as a signal for a shift to either hearts or clubs. If East followed suit with a high diamond, West would shift to hearts and ruin the defense. If East followed suit with the deuce of diamonds, West would shift to a club, and ruin the defense. Thus, with his particular partner, East was absolutely helpless.

The crux of the matter is that the high diamond signal was absolutely correct, but simply as a come-on! The only defense that could defeat four spades was a diamond continuation at the second trick. The result of a heart shift we have already seen; a club or spade shift would have been equally disastrous. The lead of a second diamond would have shortened dummy's trumps immediately and made it impossible for declarer to establish and reach dummy's heart suit.

But suppose East had held the club king instead of considerable strength in hearts. In that case the winning defense would be for West to shift to a club at the second trick and, in order to induce that defense, East would play a low card on the opening lead, not as a suit-preference signal, but merely as the demand for a shift. Such a demand, in view of the exposed dummy, would clearly call for a club, not as the lower ranking suit, but merely the suit which offered the best opportunity for the defenders.

Thus it may be seen that the constant and indiscriminate use of the suit-preference signal violently interferes with the employment of normal "come-on" and "shift" signals. These, in my opinion, are infinitely more important. A good partner does not usually have to be told which shift to make; it is enough to tell him that a shift is necessary. Similarly, there are countless occasions when the player sitting over dummy can see that a continuation of the opening lead is vital. How is he to ask for that continuation if his high card will be read as the demand for a shift to the higher ranking suit? I do not deny that there are occasions when a suit-preference signal that reveals a player's entry is of great value, but in view of the terrific misuse of this convention, it is my considered opinion that the average player would be much better off to forget all about it and go back to the traditional system of signaling.

There are no trumps, and South leads. North and South are to win six tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads the nine of diamonds, on which North plays the queen. East ducks. North leads spade ace, South discarding a diamond. North leads the club and South gets two rounds. East must discard a spade, and South then leads the small heart, putting West in, to give North two spades.

The object in leading the interior diamond was to provide against East's winning the first trick and returning the heart. South can win the heart and put North in with the seven of diamonds to make the ace of spades and give South a heart discard before leading the clubs.

Popular Recordings

Three of the most recent Victor popular albums are "The Birth of the Blues," "Artie Shaw," and "Getting Sentimental with Tommy Dorsey." Most intriguing of these is the first, as played by the famous Chamber Music society of Lower Basin street. You'll find enshrined here in wax some elegant recordings of such immortal blues as "St. Louis," "Memphis," "John Henry," "Aunt Hagar's," and "Beale Street." Lena Horne sighs the lyrics in helpful fashion.

The Dorsey album sadly omits "Marie," but includes "Song of India," "I'm Gettin' Sentimental," "I'll Never Smile Again," "Who?", and others as nostalgic and good. Artie Shaw's temperamental path to fame, obscurity and fame again is traced in his album. There's his "Begin the Beguine," which began the whole business; and there's "Frenesi," his comeback disc.

Victor's production of singles continues its commendable pace, with these worthy of especial mention: "Ballad of the Leathernecks," a recitation by Tyrone Power; "Love Me or Leave Me," and "All Alone," by Dinah Shore [Bluebird]; Art Jarett's "Jim," and Glen Miller's duo, "Delilah" and "Elmer's Tune" [Bluebird].

Griff Williams tops Okeh's weekly list with two of his delicious music jobs, "Foolish," with Lois Lee singing, and "Love Is," with Walt King doing his entertaining best. Jack Leonard scores his usual hit with "These Foolish Things," with a special orchestral backing. For those who like novelties with plenty of swing power, Les Brown's "Joltin' Joe DiMaggio" is recommended. There's a racy tribute to the juke boxes on the other side, "Nickel Serenade," that's good.

Benny Goodman leads the Columbia parade with a sparkling treatment of "Elmer's Tune," backed by a clarinet triumph, "Birth of the Blues." Xavier Cugat's "Misirlou," an Egyptian love tune played in his suave beguine tempo, is one of his best. Harry James goes soothing in "Don't Take Your Love From Me," but loses none of his effectiveness. And don't miss John Kirby's collaboration with Maxine Sullivan in "St. Louis Blues," and "The Hour of Parting."

In the album field Columbia's current output has limited appeal. The Hurtado Brothers provide "Marimba Music," and Frankie Carle goes thru some favorites on his animated piano, in "Frankie Carle Encores."

U. of Wisconsin Issues Warning on Air Schools

By the Rev. John Evans.

The University of Wisconsin has issued a warning against aviation schools not related to aircraft manufactures. The warning cited advice from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce that skilled workers in aircraft plants are no longer in great demand in coast airplane factories and that many young men have come to California in search of work in vain.

"Many young men not qualified physically or mentally have been brought to California by private schools," the chamber of commerce asserted, "and have found themselves unable to secure the employment they sought."

The Los Angeles source asserted that the reservoir of skilled help has practically been absorbed by the industry, and warned against investing money in travel expense and courses of uncertain value without first learning all the facts.

The extension division at Madison, which, with several state government agencies, has long been active in investigating commercial school claims in many fields, cautioned Wisconsin residents against accepting at face value the advertised claims of many residence or correspondence study aviation schools, now increasing in number. Schools of both types are represented as implying, if not actually promising, good paying positions at the completion of courses.

Wisconsin people were urged by the university to "know the facts" and "investigate before investing." Prospective students were warned against making down payments, paying money to an agent away from the school premises, signing for a course upon promise of a job upon completion, or signing on money back agreements. All such procedures were declared to violate the standards of fair practice set by the federal trade commission.

The school stated further that students were advised to confer with their vocational school director and high school principal concerning job training opportunities or on other courses not offered in connection with standard institutions of learning.

Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, recently announced that half scholarships will be given by the university to members of the United States' armed forces who enroll in courses offered thru the home study department.

The plan is designed to give an opportunity for continued study to men whose educational program has been interrupted by their service in the army, navy, marines, or air corps and whose income has been reduced. The scholarships will be limited to men in the ranks and noncommissioned officers.

Drama Notes

The last straw hat theater hereabouts to close for this summer is that of the Belfry players, Williams Bay, Wis. Their final production, an original drama called "The Gods Laugh," will be repeated on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights. After that the company will pack bag and baggage and disperse to the four corners of this country, hoping to reunite for another season next summer. This week's performances are scheduled for 8:20 central standard time. The theater is on highway H, one mile north of Williams Bay.

Jean Sincere has succeeded Angie Adams as understudy and assistant stage manager of the Chicago company of "Arsenic and Old Lace," which begins a nation-wide tour tomorrow in New Haven, Conn. Miss Sincere is a product of the Goodman dramatic school and this last summer appeared with the Shady Lane playhouse at Marengo, Ill.

According to her American representative, Lew Deak, Vivien Leigh contemplates appearing in a London presentation of "Claudia." All the profits would go to the British War Relief fund, and on this side of the Atlantic, the producer, John Golden, and the author, Rose Franken, would waive all royalties.

Fashion Sleuth "Tracks Down" Boys' Autumn Clothes

Experts Group Wardrobes for Youngest Men

By Rea Seeger.

What the young man-about-town wants to wear and what a fond parent [usually of the feminine gender] wishes on the protesting small male has caused more discord than can be measured. Back-to-school isn't the most joyous occasion for any lad, but the wrong clothes certainly don't smooth the way, either, and since little sister has for years been the object of lavish consideration, this time we dedicate a sleuthing trip to the fashions for young men aged 6 to 16.

And don't think there haven't been some master minds at work, designing good he-man stuff, suits, coats, jackets, and the accessories that combine to make the perfect school wardrobe. There simply isn't such a thing as a dull, tho serviceable, outfit anywhere in town. There are sports jackets that rival the best color spectra, for shades, tints, and mixtures. There are slacks, by the hundreds, of every known street and sports mixture and texture and weave. There are windbreakers, topcoats, sweaters, shirts, shorts, gloves, belts, ties, and even the important lounging and sleeping wardrobe items, and all these are thoughtfully assembled all in one spot. Maybe you think this isn't easy on both mother and the lads!

There is one boy's "hangout" that is a corker. Everything a small lad or older brother needs is within four walls of a corner of a shop for women, the idea being that mother would feel at home even tho the supplies within the shop were, and are, "for men only." If you ever doubted that fashion plays a winning game only to the feminine half of the world, see this collection and realize that little brother rates the same attention and thought that goes toward the girls, debs and subdebs.

It's vastly important to small men that they look like the rest of the gang. Rugged individualism seldom runs rampant, even after the eighth birthday. School age youngsters demand with positive ferocity, that their clothes look like the rest of the fellows'. So if your problem is a determined small boy with a definite yen for knickers, better give in gracefully in the first battle; you'll never get him into shorts unless all his contemporaries are likewise uniformed. Also listen to his requests for eye-blinding patterns in sweaters, whether slipovers or the cardigans, or the sweater blouses or sweater shirts with zippers.

This globe shaking decision between long "trews," knickers, or shorts equals the seriousness of an international crisis, and a wise mother lets the boy himself decide. Only then will tranquility reign. Seriously, it's a good move to let small masculine America shop for his own clothes, to pick and choose and then abide by the consequences. It's the only way for him to learn. For years now, the small sisters of this world have been fondly encouraged to expect dresses and more dresses, with little brother taking the miser's end of cash supply and to face the year with only one new suit, last year's suit serving as second this year. When the boys start selecting the right clothes for the right occasions, when they are allowed plenty of jackets, slacks, and more than one suit, per annum, then later, we the women won't have to bully and browbeat the men into dressing for dinner or the evening's fun. This last, of course, is just a wild cry of a kindred soul trying to return a small share of masculine chivalry that has come our way in a lifetime so far of fun with fashions.

Sketched, clothes representative of what young America wears to grade school for sports and spectator sports events, and for dress parade. We offer no alibi. Every piece was selected by an expert, a man with a genius for understanding the vanities of a small, and not-so-small, boy. For information, call Superior 0200.

Sunday, Sept. 14.

Drift thru the morning, especially if tempted to say or do more than you mean; evening much better for logical thinking. Week ahead highly mental; everything depends on your ability to get the right answers by figuring them in advance.

Self-Analysis.

One of the surest ways to get ahead is to analyze in our minds what our desires really mean. "I wish I were rich"; "I wish I were in another city"; "I wish I didn't have to do a certain thing." Analyze the parts of the desired condition; then figure out the steps necessary to attaining it; then take those steps, if they still seem advisable and possible. Otherwise, change your desires.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead brings feeling of confidence, but don't overplay hand, if born on this date, and if you don't want loss. Distance, communication, more education, will profit. Danger: April 4-14; Aug. 21-Sept. 5.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

Fashion, autumn 1941, is 100 per cent American in that she is a creature of mixed blood. She has quite a lot of Spanish in her, and there's a considerable dash of the British, both modern and Victorian and Edwardian stock. She has a French accent, pure pre-war I and, then there are Latin American "good neighbor" strains that are very evident. Added to these there appear in this creature, born in America, a big slice of Chinese heritage, and a bit of Hindu. American Indian is, of course, part of her family tree, along with some Mexican from south of the border.

Newest Piano Benefits the Child Student

By Edith Weigle.

The piano more than any other large instrument of Victorian days has quickly adapted itself to rooms and styles of the 20th century. The last few years have seen the advent of the spinet, or small upright, and the paring down of the grand piano to apartment house size. And all this without any apparent loss in tone or volume of sound.

One of the newest small pianos to make its appearance has a brand new gadget designed to help youngsters who are taking their first music lessons. Small boys and girls have a hard time reaching the pedals. Their legs just aren't long enough. So along comes a clever little invention that lifts the pedals up a few inches for them.

At first sight the pedals look just like any others of standard make. But they are made to pull forward and upward where they can be reached by the youngest piano student. When not in use they fold down again into the regular position.

Another feature of this new instrument is the music rack which is a series of tilted grooves applied to the top of the piano and backed by the fretwork holder for sheet music. It is more efficient than the older type of groove.

To make the two slender, tapering legs free from danger of breakage they are set into the case with a new metal reinforced ring. The style of this piano is of no particular period, adapting itself to both traditional and modern rooms. It is made in an attractive dark mahogany and in walnut.

Another piano, made by a different company, was designed expressly for the modern interior and is of bleached walnut. The finish is glossy, shows the graceful grain of the wood, and is a very light, taffy beige in color. Because of its convenient small size it takes up little space and can be placed either in the living room or an alcove or a hall. Other models also in light finishes are shown by this same firm.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps but not value. The Stamps and Coins advertising column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

In 1938, France issued a 2fr. 25c dark blue postage stamp to mark the 100th anniversary of photography. This stamp bore the portraits of Niepce and Daguerre, the latter well remembered thru the use of his name in the word daguerrotype which he invented as the first application of photography.

In 1940, the United States issued a 2 cent red stamp in honor of Samuel F. B. Morse, the inventor of the magnetic telegraph. Biographies mention that Mr. Morse was instrumental in introducing the daguerrotype into the United States, and many collectors wonder what caused the inventor of the telegraph to be interested in photography. As a matter of fact Morse was a painter of some renown who conceived the idea of the telegraph in 1832 after a demonstration of electro-magnetic phenomena by James Freeman Dana.

It happened that Morse was in Paris in 1839 when he learned of Daguerre's success in fixing an image upon a metal plate, and his account of this miracle of the time was written in a letter, dated Mar. 9, 1839, to the editor of the New York Observer, who published it for his readers.

Mr. Morse writes in part, "You have perhaps heard of the daguerrotipe, so called from the discoverer, M. Daguerre. It is one of the most beautiful discoveries of the age. I don't know if you recollect some experiments of mine in New Haven many years ago when I had my painting room next to Prof. Silliman's, experiments to ascertain if it were possible to fix the image of the Camera Obscura. I was able to produce different degrees of shade on paper dipped in nitrate of silver, by means of different degrees of light; but finding that light produced dark and dark produced light, I presumed the production of a true image to be impractical, and gave up the attempt. M. Daguerre has realized in the most exquisite manner this idea.

"A few days ago I addressed a note to M. Daguerre, requesting as a stranger the favor to see his results, and inviting him in turn to see my telegraph. I was politely invited to see them under these circumstances, for he had determined not to show them again, until the chambers had passed definitely on a proposition for the government to purchase the secret of the discovery, and make it public. The day before yesterday, the 7th, I called on M. Daguerre, at his rooms in the Diorama, to see these admirable results.

"They are produced on a metallic surface, the principal pieces being about 7 inches by 5, and they resemble aquatint engravings, for they are in simple 'chiaraoscuro,' and not in colors. But the exquisite minuteness of the deliniation cannot be conceived. No painting or engraving ever approached it. For example: In a view up the street, a distant sign would be perceived, and the eye could just discern that there were lines of letters upon it, but so minute as not to be read with the naked eye. By the assistance of a powerful lens . . . every letter was clearly and distinctly legible, and so were the minutest breaks and lines in the walls of buildings, and the pavements of the streets.

"Objects moving are not impressed. The boulevard so constantly filled with a moving throng of pedestrians and carriages, was perfectly solitary except an individual who was having his boots brushed."

Mr. Morse goes on to describe other scenes including interior views and foresees a new method of research in the depths of microscopic nature. M. Daguerre called at his apartment the following day and was greatly impressed with the telegraph instruments which had been set up to operate. Unfortunately while this visit was in progress the Diorama was destroyed by fire along with all of the data on M. Daguerre's experiments and with his valuable instruments and the beautiful examples of his work. Of course the secret processes used by M. Daguerre were so well impressed on his memory that he soon was able to repeat his experiments and replace his lost panoramas. At this meeting with Daguerre, Morse was able to bring back the principles of the new art to America where it at once found great favor.

A. Hunt of Romford, Essex, England, has furnished this department with the 2½d stamp of Great Britain in a new shade. This is a light milky blue and is the forerunner of other changes in shades which are to take place in the current British stamps.

Wolosewick, special award for most original research of Polish stamps; Dr. Matthew E. Uznaski, special award for stamps of Polish plebiscites, Upper Silesia, and Bert Powell, waste basket philately, and exhibit of material found in the ordinary daily correspondence.

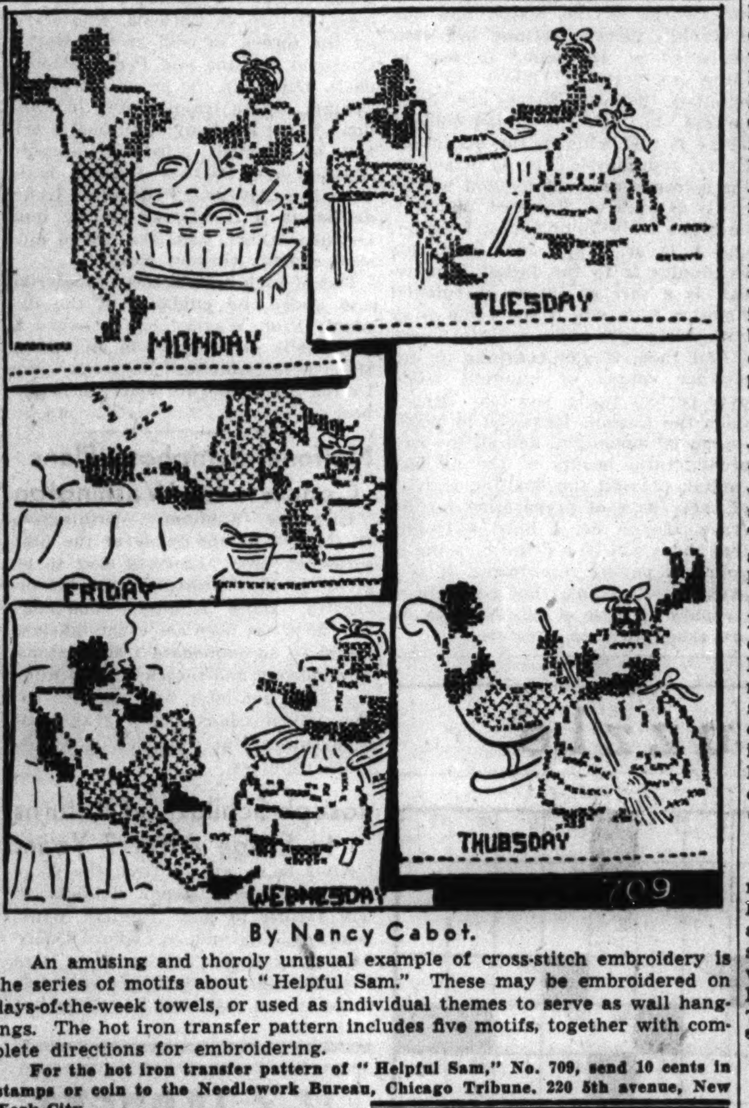
"Helpful Sam" Embroidery



By Nancy Cabot.

An amusing and thoroly unusual example of cross-stitch embroidery is the series of motifs about "Helpful Sam." These may be embroidered on days-of-the-week towels, or used as individual themes to serve as wall hangings. The hot iron transfer pattern includes five motifs, together with complete directions for embroidering.

Because of inward shyness or ignorance, many married women make needless mistakes—risk health, happiness. Why? Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Books Should Play Important Part in the Child's Life

It's Parental Duty to Give the Volumes

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

There are innumerable parents, with incomes that would admit of money being spent for books, who never think of buying them for their children. In the first place, they'd think it a waste of money. And, in the second, they don't realize at all that books, owned books, have a rightful place in a child's life.

But when I say rightful, I don't mean in the dull, dutiful sense, for books are nothing you must force on a child because you think they are something he should have. Children, given any chance or encouragement, show a natural desire for them. The very littlest will seize upon a picture book, awkwardly turn its pages, point with enthusiasm at kitten or dog, and murmur his own unintelligible comments; or hold the book out for your simple embroidery of story or description.

And these smallest boys and girls, you'll find, rarely need a new book to hold their interest. Again and again and again they will go back to the books that have yielded them their first delight. Any one with eyes and experience can have little doubt that books have a real place in the lives of just normal wholesome, joyous children, from the time when they can first recognize a picture; to the time a little later when they can enjoy being read to; then when they have learned to read with ease and can completely lose themselves; and finally, into and thru adolescence, when a mixture of adult books, books related to their special interests, and those written purely for their age afford at one and the same time their literary fare.

Books have appeal for children, in varying degrees, of course. Children should have a chance to discover books, or be led into that world of delight by their parents or some other grownup. If this happens to be one of the experiences your children are missing, remedy that oversight this fall. And I'm sure you will find it interesting to watch the way of a child with a book.

You will notice first how a few books will satisfy him, and that he loves to have them read and reread. Then, as he leaves his first experiences with books behind him, you'll notice that, on some days, some books will appeal to him, on other days, others.

Also, there will be days when he may not look at his books at all. A trip to the railroad yard, the zoo, the waterfront, or the park [if you live in the city], camp or beach "doings," or games, or just plain exuberance of spirit will sometimes push books aside while active needs of the moment are satisfied. But he will come back to them, since they already have become to him a rather permanent source of delight, and will draw him again and again.

"Book Lists for the Youngest Children" is a leaflet of interest to parents and nurses. Send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

What the well dressed mother of the debutante is wearing this year is disclosed in the costumes chosen for a variety of debutante parties held recently. Her costume must be "up" to the debutante's, but not outshine it, and of a color that will harmonize pleasantly with the background of the party and yet contrast sufficiently with the young girl's so that mother will not be entirely overlooked. . . . Two handsomely dressed women seen at the Indian Hill club on the occasion of Miss Anne Northrop's and Miss Nancy McCloud's debut tea-dance were their mothers, Mrs. Louis H. Northrop and Mrs. Bentley G. McCloud. They had a particularly difficult problem in dressing, as all who have joint parties do, for there were four costumes to be considered as an attractive whole. Mrs. Northrop chose a French blue lace and net gown, and pinned lavender orchids to one shoulder. Mrs. McCloud received in a stunning grayish silver lamé dress, and wore white orchids. Miss McCloud was all in white, a brocaded dress with an overskirt of filmy tulle and little cap sleeves of the tulle. Miss Northrop was in white net over turquoise, with shaded ostrich feathers appliquéd flat around the neckline. Both young women carried a most unusual flower, a single rose made of rose petals about eight inches across. . . . Mrs. Harold Stanley Johnson chose a dress to harmonize with the bouquet her daughter, Miss Ann Davis Johnson, carried on the occasion of her debut tea. Miss Johnson's dress was of stiff, white silk brocade made with a basque, little cap sleeves, and a full skirt. She carried flowers in shades of pink, and Mrs. Johnson wore a crêpe dress in one of the shades of dusty pink. Her flowers shaded from pink to wine color, and mother and daughter made a striking picture.

Mrs. N. Landon Hoyt Jr., who received with not one but two debutante daughters at a recent tea, chose a gown of lovely seafoam crepe, which went perfectly with Miss Peggy's and Miss Blanche Hoyt's white gowns. They were identical ones of organza, made with long sleeves and high necks. The girls carried pink camellias. . . . Kelly green was the color Mrs. Roy D. Keehn wore for the debut supper-dance of her daughter, Miss Kay Keehn. With the rich green Mrs. Keehn wore purple orchids. The debutante was all in white, from her bouffant tulle gown to the orchids she carried and those she wore in her hair. The dropped shoulder line of the dress was edged in white ostrich feathers, and a second band of white feathers circled the skirt above the hem. . . . To go with a color scheme of coral and blue devised for the dinner-dance at which Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. McCreary introduced their auburn haired daughter, Adelaide, at the Onwentsia club, the bud wore a gown of blue net and carried a casual bouquet of flowers. The dress was a lovely one, made with a close fitting bodice, a dropped shoulder line, and ornamented with glistening crystals. More of the crystals formed a sunburst down the front of the skirt. Mrs. McCreary chose a gown of black, heavily fringed, and wore with it a corsage of coral colored flowers.

Mrs. Franklin Parsons O'Brien and her debutante daughter, Miss Shirley McCormick O'Brien, each wore white for the latter's debut tea-dance at the Glen View club. The debutante's dress was a froth of white tulle made with a dropped shoulder line and a pinafore effect on the full skirt, outlined in ermine tails. Her flowers were a bouquet of mixed white ones. Mrs. O'Brien wore a severely simple gown of white crêpe cut on straight lines. . . . The Cudahy family friends arriving at a tea to meet Miss Leonore Cudahy, daughter of Edward I. Cudahy, were greeted with a stunning picture composed of the debutante and her aunt, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, the hostess, receiving in the living room of the Joseph Cudahys' Lake Forest home. The room has pale green walls and was filled with white flowers. . . . The gowns of Mrs. Cudahy and her niece harmonized perfectly with this background. Miss Cudahy wore a simple frock of chartreuse, and carried a charming bouquet of white carnations and lily petals. Mrs. Cudahy's dress was of sage green. . . . For a reception Mr. and Mrs. Vernon M. Welsh gave to introduce their daughter, Miss Sallie Ellen Welsh, Mrs. Welsh wore a handsome dress in the new fall shade of old rose. It was cleverly draped to an appliqué of silver fox fur at the pockets. Miss Welsh wore a stunning gown of glacial blue satin made with a full skirt and a tight bodice that came up close about her neck. Its only decoration was an insert of satin-embroidered chiffon that traced a dropped-shoulder line about the top of the bodice. Her flowers were rubrum lilies.

Debutante Ann Boswell brought home a pretty dress from a trip to Greenwich, Conn. It is the frock in which she served as maid of honor for her cousin, Maribelle Rodiger, when the latter became Mrs. Stewart Fowler Forshay. The dress is a dream of pink mousseline de soie with a blue panel down the front. With it, for the wedding, Miss Boswell wore a wreath of pink roses and delphiniums, with a veil attached. . . . The pretty bride, a granddaughter of Mrs. Caswell Alan Sharpe, wore a stunning gown made of a white faille bodice with a square neck and short sleeves, and a full tulle skirt and train, tiered with rows of ruffles. Her short veil was attached to a tiara of orange blossoms and she carried gardenias and bouvardia. . . . "I like it better than any dress I've ever had," was Miss Laura Winston's comment on her debut frock, and surely no young woman ever had a more beautiful one. The dress was of white faille trimmed with glistening sequins sewed on in scrolls. The frock had a low back, and epaulets of the sequins. Miss Winston's flowers on this occasion were an old-fashioned bouquet of sweet scented tuberose, begonias, and ivy leaves. . . . Mrs. James H. Winston, receiving with her daughter, was vivid in a dress of starched wine lace. She wore a corsage of white orchids. . . . To the Midshipman's ball at the Edgewater Beach hotel last week went dozens of Chicago's prettiest young women to dance with the young men who will receive their commissions as ensigns in the United States navy this week. Among the belles of the ball was Miss Muriel MacChesney, who wore a sweeping gown of black taffeta topped with a quilted white taffeta jacket. Miss MacChesney dressed her hair with tiny red and white carnations. She kept the jacket on during most of the evening, too, as protection against the cool breezes blowing from the lake across the beach walk.

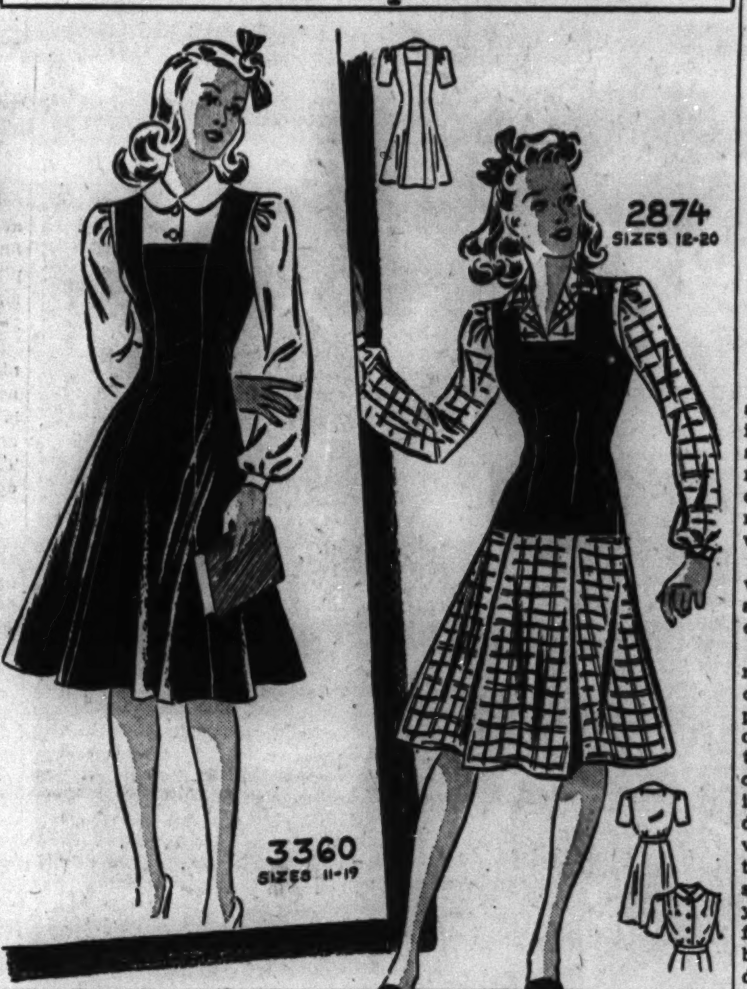
Patterns By Clotilde



By Clotilde.

Slimsters who carry an armload of books around the campus, or who are decoratively useful in a business office, will like these two handsome, tailored frocks. Both woolens and crêpes, and combinations of the two, may be used successfully.

Left, a jumper frock with princess lines. There is no trimming, except some buttons on the shirtwaist blouse, which has long, full sleeves. Besides the blouse, extra sweaters in the wardrobe may keep this jumper skirt company.

Right, a jerkin ensemble which promises comfort and smartness. The one piece frock is a beautifully styled shirtwaist model, and makes up as well in plaids as it does in plain colors. The sleeveless, collarless jerkin, which buttons at the side, may match or contrast.

Style No. 3360 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 2⅝ yards of 54 inch material for jumper; 2 yards of 39 inch fabric for blouse.

Style No. 2874 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 54 inch material; ⅞ yard for jerkin.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer need, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

A reader has written seeking assistance for a large and needy family living in an old frame house in a district south and west of Chicago. They are not quite destitute, but their living conditions are inadequate, and will be more so during the coming cold weather.

The house is old and ramshackle, without plumbing or heat, and is situated six miles from the nearest bus or railroad station.

The group consists of a father, mother, their six children, and three of the mother's nieces, who are orphans. The family moved from Chicago to the present location in order to find work for the father and the oldest boy, who is 18. They are making an honest effort to pay off old debts, contracted while the father was unemployed, and now have only the barest necessities. The youngsters, ranging in age from 1½ to 18 years, now sleep on mattresses on the floor. There is desperate need of beds, bedding, and stoves to heat the house during the coming winter. Some of the children are barefoot, and can manage at present, but they all are undernourished and should have proper clothing before the severe weather sets in. The girls wear sizes 18, 14, 8, and 3, and the boys sizes 18, 17, 12, 10, and 8. All the youngsters also need shoes.

Altho two members of the family are employed, they still are having a difficult time, and because of an acute housing shortage in the district, and the size of the family, there is nothing with modern improvements available for them at a price they can afford.

If they are to survive the winter, warm clothing, beds, bedding of all kinds, and heating stoves will be necessary. Mrs. C., who wrote on their behalf, will be glad to bring out any items available, and arrange cartage on a stove, if one can be found. Her address is on the near north side. Offers from that district will be most convenient, but anything will be appreciated; or the name and address of the family will be supplied to readers willing to mail articles directly to them. In a few short weeks the weather, particularly in the outlying districts, will be chilly, and this family will be suffering, so if you have any surplus items which will help prevent this, won't you send them along?

From an elderly man living in a shabby district north of the loop:

"Dear Miss Brown: Having learned of your generous assistance to the poor, I herewith dare to apply to you for your help. I am now an old man of 82 years, having lost my life savings, and am very much in need of a suit of underwear, a suit of clothing, and also would welcome a heavy overcoat for the coming winter. I wear size 42.—L. D."

The name and address will be supplied to any interested reader.

Perhaps some reader on the extreme southwest side of the city can offer assistance in response to the following request:

"Dear Miss Brown: I would like to know if any of your readers has an unused reclining chair. I need one for an elderly man who is not bedridden, but must rest either in bed or in a chair, because of severe heart trouble. I will be happy to call for it.—Mrs. M."

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

It's a wise woman who knows how to apply lipstick properly, with lasting effect and no feathery smudge at the edges. Drawing a firm outline, filling in well, and making certain that the inner corners are well coated will insure a well groomed mouth.

About 1 woman in 10 is really satisfied with the way her mouth looks after she has made it up. Most of us just can't get lipstick on straight or, if we do, find that we have other difficulties in the way of feathery edges, or smears, or unattractive outlines.

We talked to a makeup expert about this not so long ago. He says the secret of good mouth makeup that flatters and stays put, is taking pains. It just can't be good if you whip out your lipstick, draw a half curve from the center to the outer corners, and then press down to give the lower lip its smattering of rouge. And that, of course, is exactly the way most of us apply lipstick a couple of times a day.

This man feels that corrective mouth makeup is difficult, in fact, that it's an art, and that most women who attempt it on themselves bog down pretty badly. He says that the woman who tries to make her mouth look smaller by painting a small mouth on a large one succeeds only in looking like a woman with a large mouth who has painted a small mouth over it! His idea would be for her to rouge her large mouth, but to rouge it well, to make it look large, luscious and perfectly made up! In other words, just about the best dressed large mouth to be found anywhere.

Mouth makeup takes practice. The experts themselves don't learn in a day how to rouge a mouth flatteringly. The first step, terribly important, is to outline it, either with the point of your lipstick or with a liner or a brush. Apply this outline firmly, but delicately, right on the line of demarcation that distinguishes lip skin from facial skin. If you go over it your lip rouge will "feather," if your line strays inside this natural outline your madeup mouth will be crooked. Hit it right on its fine head, and don't forget the corners!

Then fill in within the outline, using your stick or, better yet, a little brush. A rouge laden brush is best if you want to do a really professional job. Press the rouge into every little crevice, and bring the rouge well inside, even at the corners, so that no contrast of pink skin will show when you speak or smile.

One trick, if you want your lips to remain rouged for hours on end, is to apply the lipstick heavily, then to blot with tissue. You won't have luster, but you'll have a more lasting lip makeup!

Eleanor Nangle, "thru her looking glass," sees everythng that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

Universal day—A day to make your peace with others and keep your relationships with others smooth.

Names and numbers—During the week I have analyzed the name and birthdate of Winston Churchill. We have seen how three's dominate the name, and how a three is the vocation number, giving him power with words. The erratic, brilliant five begins his name. He is at a disadvantage this year because he is in a two-year, not a very harmonious number for him, and means he must seek peaceful ways of coöperation. The two names Winston Churchill add up to a one, the number of leadership, but he has two stumbling blocks when he uses either Winston S. Churchill, which he does sometimes, and when he is called just Churchill. The first gives him an eleven or two which is not suitable at times with his moods, and the use of just the last name gives him the difficult four which is why he often fails to bring off big plans.

Household Forum

[Have you some favorite household help; something that lightens labor and gets results? Is there some comfort or convenience you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. T. H., Chicago—I use a sizable powder puff when I dust flour on my bread board or on a rolling pin. I keep this puff in my flour pan and it is always ready when I want it.

Marion Thomas, Chicago—This has been a dampish summer and more than once I've wondered why generous ventilators aren't built into all closet doors to aid in the cause of better ventilation and fresher clothes.

* *

Irene Sorrenson, Chicago—For a number of years now I have placed squares of ordinary waxed paper under my children's plates when I had company for luncheon or dinner. These waxed sheets don't show very much and they certainly save the family's best table cloths from small spots and stains.

* *

Mrs. Harold T. M., Chicago—If you have ever been troubled with cabbage worms, mix some flour and cayenne pepper and sprinkle this over the plants. Do this sprinkling while there's dew on the plants. I've found it works.

Sam T. B., Evanston—As this is the first summer I've driven a car and changed tires it has struck me that it would be a help if a geared multiple-socket wrench were in every family bus so all the nuts on the car wheel could be removed at one and the same time.

Evy Johnson, Milwaukee—I have found that if I keep glycerine handy and apply it with a sponge to stains on a cloth from coffee or chocolate it makes short work of them. I only leave glycerine on spot for a moment or two and then wash it off. For fruit juice stains I soak spots in glycerine. If stains have been in cloth for some time I soak for several hours and then pour boiling water thru stain.

Eileen J. K., Chicago—I haven't been making cakes very long, being just married this last summer, but already it seems to me it would save time if all cake flour boxes had sifter openings, to save time. You could then sift flour directly from box to cup.

Remove facial hair with Phelactine Depilatory—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

Try Saxolite Astringent, the delightful skin freshener. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Lady of the House

Our National Hymn.

Detained against his will on a British man of war during the attack on Fort McHenry, Francis Scott Key next morning, Sept. 14, 1814 [127 years ago today] wrote The Star Spangled Banner.

" . . . Oh, long may it wave

Lily Legend.

When you set out those new lily bulbs, or separate the old ones, these early weeks of fall, it might add interest to the job to recall some of the legends of the lily. O. F. S. contributes this one: When Christ was walking in the garden in His great sorrow, all the flowers bowed their heads in humility except the arrogant lily, which stayed erect. Christ, in sorrow, dropped a tear into its chalice and ever after there is always a drop of dew in its heart.

Honey.

Nectar of the gods and food of the ancients. "Dew distilled from the stars and from the rainbow," Aristotle called it.

Known to man before he learned to grind wheat into meal, the ancients used honey in ceremonies of great importance and even today it is an essential ingredient in feast foods in some countries.

There is no real substitute for honey, nor has any one succeeded in duplicating the bees' laboratory methods and control. Some apiarists are devoting themselves to breeding a race of bees that shall be bigger honey makers—speeding up production.

The lighter colored honeys are more esteemed than the darker, and are usually of milder flavor; the latter depending upon the aromatic substances found in the nectar of flowers. "Virgin" honey is white and is taken from hives in which the bees have never swarmed.

Honey is a valuable food in itself and also plays a considerable part in our general cookery. It may be substituted for all or part of the sugar in many recipes for cooking, baking, canning, preserving, pickling, and, of course, candy making. There is a special whipped honey on the market, and you can make delicious honey butter at home. In fact, honey can be used right around the clock from breakfast to evening snack—if you like it that much.

(Several readers have asked about honey. If you would like to know where to obtain basic rules and 100 tested recipes for its use, please send request with stamped envelope or postcard.)

Poem of the Month.

In September I go back to school,
Where everything is done by rule.
Little Corny.

W. M. reports that the chickadees have discovered the cardinals' feeding tray and come every day to take away some of the seeds. Tame little fellows who enjoy the food and drink and talk right back when she talks to them. She plans to lure them into her kitchen, come winter, and coax them to eat from her hand; chickadees being among the friendliest and tamest of our winter birds.

Aurora Borealis.

As I paused at a north window in the dark the other night, I saw over the tree tops two great white, luminous arcs. For a brief moment they seemed quite still. Then, suddenly, the merry dancers reached for the zenith with long, slender white arms; flickering fingers, flashing blue and green and rosy jewels, pointing at the pole star.

As I watched the play of light and color weave bright, fleeting patterns on the night, I was reminded of a "color organ" I had once seen play the most amazing harmonies of color and motion [without the slightest sound] on the stage of a stately hall. Here was a celestial color organ playing its great symphonies for any who would pause to look, and making ready for such a day as Longfellow describes in his Falcon of Federigo:

"The morrow was a bright September morn;
The earth was beautiful as if newborn;
There was that nameless splendor everywhere,
That wild exhilaration in the air,
Which makes the passers in the city street
Congratulate each other as they meet."

AT CHICAGO GALLERIES

In Glen Mitchell's water color show at the Chicago Galleries' association there are a number of studies of trees. This one is called "El Cabrigo," and was painted in Mexico. Two other exhibitions share the walls with Mr. Mitchell's work.

Fall Season Bringing New Art Exhibits

By Edith Weigle.

Signs of the coming of autumn are the new exhibitions of art at various galleries after the summer's rest. The Chicago Galleries' association is displaying its loan paintings which have returned from the Iowa State Fair, now over, and also two exhibitions of water colors, one by Glen Mitchell of Minneapolis, the other by Edgar Forkner of Seattle.

The group of oils which went to the fair are by members of the association and ably illustrate their wide range of approach. All fall within the lines of the conservative school. Among the still life paintings [there are four or five on the walls] the outstanding canvas is "Persian Book," by Leslie Binner Buck. Her masterly handling of texture, her feeling for form and for rhythm in composition give her work great distinction. She not only paints what she sees, she adds that indefinable lustre which for want of a better word we call atmosphere. Everything she does has quality.

Leo Marzola's "Old Rose and Blue" is another excellent canvas. Painted with great assurance and much skill are the colorful "Still Life" of Macena Barton and "Brass Jug" of William H. Mosby. There are one of Charles Killgore's Mexican cathedrals, one of Jessie Arms Botke's flamboyant bird pictures and another by Julius Moessel, one of Curry Bohm's excellent landscapes, a Norwegian harbor scene which Karl Ouren does so well, and a vigorously brushed, delightful landscape by Maurice Braum among the remaining paintings. Arnold Turtle is represented by two figure paintings, one of a ballet dancer resting, that merits a great deal of praise.

In the next gallery at this current Chicago Galleries' association exhibition are a series of water colors by Edgar Forkner, many of them of boats in harbor, others still lifes of flowers. Of these last two are especially impressive: "Flowers in the Window," and "Red and White Flowers." The first is a composition of daffodils in a deep blue jug, set in an open window, a billowing white curtain giving a light, airy quality to the whole. Beautiful, broken color and well-nigh perfect handling make this water color a sheer delight.

"Red and White Flowers" is a study of gladiolas and daisies in a scarlet pitcher seen against a white background. This, too, is graceful, done with ease and fluency. Both are water colors it would be a joy to live with.

Nearby in the same galleries are a number of small paintings and one or two large ones by Glen Mitchell. This Minneapolis artist is interested in experimenting and his pictures run the gamut from fairly conservative to extremely modern work. "Pleasant Country" is a large, richly hued, tapestry-like landscape with a bit of water in the foreground and a big red silo topping a hill in the background. It is calm, peaceful, neat and satisfying. Not so a couple of Mr. Mitchell's studies of writhing trees and jungle-like groves which somehow do not come off.

One small Mexican street scene in pearly colors, details just barely suggested, catches the eye. It is as delightful as a snatch of melody. And a white bowl of lemons against a vivid blue-green is arresting, interesting chiefly because of its treatments of the various forms.

An exhibition of water colors and drawings by Joseph M. O'Malley is on view until Sept. 20 at Mandel Brothers. The artist, a graduate of the Carnegie School of the Fine Arts, has been painting in Chicago for the last ten years. This is his first public show.

Most of the forty pictures are of local street, river and factory scenes and are full of spontaneity and dash. A few, indeed, are so sketchy as to be unintelligible. But for the most part they are true-to-life renderings of everyday subjects: a North avenue fish market, a back street, a west side market, an old synagogue, the subway river construction, city tenaments with a covering of spring snow, etc.

The old French quarter of New Orleans and Florida's plants and flowers are the subjects of water colors by Rosamond Longfield-Smith at the Midwest Gallery of Sporting Art, 540 North Michigan avenue. The exhibition opens tomorrow and continues to the end of the month.

Today at 2:30 p. m. Irving S. Tarrant, lecturer on art, will give a talk on "Some 20th Century Painters" in gallery 40 of the Art institute. There is no admission charge.

Four lectures stressing the American way of life will be given at the institute on Thursday mornings during October and November, starting Oct. 16. These talks, which are of especial interest in connection with the exhibition of Mrs. James Ward Thorne's series of American rooms in miniature, will be by Fiske Kimball, director of the Philadelphia Museum of Art; Percy H. Boynton, professor emeritus of the University of Chicago; Edwin J. Hipkiss, curator in the department of decorative arts in the Museum of Fine Arts of Boston, and John Marshall Phillips, curator of the Garvan collection of the Yale University Art gallery.

Admission will be by ticket only. Applications for the tickets, which are free, must be made in writing to Meyric R. Rogers, curator of decorative arts of the Art institute and will be received until Oct. 9. No more than two series tickets can be issued to any one applicant. And a stamped, self-addressed envelope should accompany each request.

A show of marine paintings by Joseph Wydro and Leonard Rodowicz is being held until Sept. 20 at the Museum of the Polish Roman Catholic Union, 984 Milwaukee avenue. The gallery is open at the following times: Tuesday, 1 to 4:30 p. m.; Fridays, 7 to 8:30 p. m.; Saturdays, 10 to 12 noon.

Cooking Editor Describes the Various Kinds

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There are precious few foreign made cheeses in the stores today. But nobody mourns, because all the old favorites are here, this time wearing a "made in America" label.

About 99 per cent of the "foreign born" cheeses now are made in this country, many of them better than the imports. In addition, there's quite a list of cheeses of strictly American origin on the market. Our only imports, at present, are a handful of Argentine cheeses and the Canadian oka, a trappist cheese related to Port du Salut.

Whereas cheesemaking in Europe is a home industry, for the most part, American cheeses are factory made under rigid sanitary inspection and with scientific controls as in any dairy plant. This scientific cleanliness prevents any of the bitter aftertaste found in some European made cheeses.

What familiar kinds of natural cheeses are most successfully reproduced in this country?

First, there's English cheddar, which accounts for about three-quarters of the total cheese consumption in this country. It's so popular that it is generally known just as "American cheese" or even "store cheese." Domestic cheddars are unsurpassed for quality, and you may buy the mild or aged types whichever you prefer.

Cheshire and mold ripened Stilton are two more English cheeses being successfully produced here.

The Swiss cheese [or Emmanthaler, as it's rightfully called] produced in this country also is of superior quality. Even experts can't distinguish it from fine imported makes. Other Swiss cheeses made in the United States are Gruyere and the green Sap Sago.

All the Italian cheeses, including the well known Caccio Cavallo, Provolono, Parmesan, and Romano, are made here with great success. Even before the outbreak of war these domestic products had almost replaced the foreign market.

Makers of Italian cheese in this country have gone to great lengths to reproduce the most subtle flavor characteristics in their cheeses. Factories were set up in producing areas where the soil had just the right chemical content; special equipment and skilled cheesemakers were imported; goat's milk was procured for cheeses requiring its use. Now the industry is experimenting in the production of goat's rennet which is used in making many Italian cheeses.

Gjedeost, Nokkelost, Mysost, and Appetitost, Scandinavian cheeses of American manufacture, are readily available. The spiced Nokkelost has been comparatively easy to produce in this country, and Danish Appetitost has been made here for many years in great enough quantity to supply the demand.

Red-rinded Dutch Edams and Goudas are made similarly to cheddar cheese and, therefore, are easily reproduced.

Roquefort type cheeses have been the subject of a great deal of experimentation by individuals and state colleges, and products very similar to French sheep's milk Roquefort have been obtained. Most of these are called Bleu cheese. They are excellent, mold ripened, cow's milk cheeses, cured in rooms where temperature and humidity are approximately that of the famous Roquefort caves in France. In Minnesota, caves have been found which duplicate these conditions almost exactly, only penicillium mold must be artificially added.

Unfortunately, the climate of our sheep growing country isn't the best for making Roquefort, so American cheeses of the Roquefort family are made from cow's milk in climates better suited to the curing of this delicacy.

Brick cheese, second in popularity to cheddar, is one of the semihard cheeses of American manufacture. In addition, there are fine quality German Muenster and hand cheese, Italian Gorgonzola, and Belgian Limburger.

Soft cheeses Camembert and Brie, like Roquefort, have had American makers at work for years in an effort to catch the exact qualities of the imports. The results testify to their success. The familiar cream cottage and Neufchatel soft cheeses are widely produced here and are popular.

In addition to all these are America's own cheese discoveries. They include the long list of process cheeses. These are natural cheeses, shredded, blended for flavor and pasteurized, and packaged in airtight containers so that they have unusually long keeping quality.

Also of American origin are Liederkranz, somewhat resembling Limburger; pineapple, a small, hard rinded pineapple shaped cheddar; sage, another cheddar type; Isigny, made like Camembert and tasting like Limburger; Yogurt, potted or club, a well ripened, grated cheddar mixed with butter and condiments or wines, and the new hickory and pine smoked cheeses put up in casings like sausages.

Hot Springs a Peaceful Haven

By Cousin Eve

HOT SPRINGS, VA.

The Homestead, after South America, might have been an anticlimax. But no. Even as the train chugged up the valley in the safe bosom of the Alleghenies, it was heavenly. An early September morning with the sun slanting thru elms, pines, and birches of the north in a cool impersonal way that charmed me. No torrid heat! No dark jungle with monkeys and parrots at hand! Nothing beyond some wild turkeys and a far rabbit or two, in the dear American scene. Calm, remote, and eternal, these everlasting hills were cherished by our forefathers.

George Washington, Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe had ridden and stagecoached with their contemporaries on these uplands, and took their cures at these old spas. God given peace lay over it all. It took the hurly-burly of Brazil to make one count one's blessings.

In the brief whirl to the hotel up the mountain road there was heady fragrance of pines, box hedges, garden roses, and white flowers of clematis that clouded stone walls.

The red mass of the Homestead, with vast wings, spreads like a great starfish in its own valley, where its foundations have been standing for two centuries. It looms high if you view it from Hot Springs village, but snuggles low if seen from a mountain top.

• • •

Its white pillared porch is of the deep south, and so are the old retainers of the hotel who line the trek for breakfast along the famous Peacock alley. This is a white columned, green carpeted cheerful lounge where backgammon boards lie ready with allure, and wicker seats support the great and near great. At each end hangs an American flag alone. In other days the flags of Egypt, Italy, England, Argentina, and other nations hung there, too. But this year the Stars and Stripes dangle solo, altho ambassadors are thick as flies in this delectable place. However, the Homestead is neutral and many schools of thought flourish in its woods and gardens.

At breakfast that day—the same acreage of snowy tables, decked with gay summer flowers, in the cool quiet of the great pillared room. Across the dance floor was the Egyptian minister, Mahmoud Hassan Bey, with his lovely wife, universally popular at this chic resort. Mme. Hassan has exquisitely modeled features and is a black eyed beauty of Arab descent, a great belle in Washington society. At another angle sits William R. Castle, assistant secretary of state under President Hoover and former ambassador to Japan. Mrs. Castle, a woman of much poise and charm, is a leading hostess of Washington.

Back again is Clarence Hewes who entertains a large interesting circle in his Washington house in Massachusetts avenue, and knows "everybody" the world over. He is called "Buzzy" from one end of the earth to the other and I asked one day "pourquoi?" He has no idea. Even perfect strangers allude to him as Buzzy, it seems, but the diplomat en disponibilite doesn't mind. Mr. Hewes, who is a Louisianian, is a pal of the duke of Windsor; they bustled about together in the old days when Edward was heir to the throne.

I hadn't been long at the Homestead when I saw that it hadn't changed, yet was different, like the old French mot: "The more it changes, the more it is the same thing."

The national defense program has cut into Hot Springs life. Gone are the lank, broad shouldered boys to the training camps. Not one is left who golfed, played tennis, courted, and cavorted in yesteryear. And equally gone are the flocks of beauties who ranged over the courts in white slacks and whirled tulle skirts in the ballrooms. Canny mammas don't go places with daughters where young men are not.

But life goes on and on, and far from being dull, is even gayer and more animated than last season.

Don Ascanio Colonna, the Italian ambassador, and his wife, a modest and retiring couple, are here but take no part in the gaities of this gay resort. Owing to the European war and their country being in it, they accept no invitations to the dinners and luncheons which are a feature of the life. The Italian ambassador is a handsome man, member of a great Roman family, dignified and silent. Their embassy in 16th street is one of the lovliest in Washington, but so intolerably hot at midsummer that the Colonnas leave then for the Alleghenies.

Apropos of Americans wearing British crowns, flags, and coats of arms, an English woman of title, wife of an ambassador, has this to say: "It is utterly improper and absurd for Americans to wear these British emblems. They have no right to do so. Certainly English people wouldn't trim themselves up in the American flag."

Another atmospheric change at the Homestead came from an influx of Parisians and South Americans who arrived simultaneously and did a deal of hobnobbing in Peacock alley. For a fortnight we spoke more French than English and there were big cocktail parties in the new "club" which is the newly done over and metamorphosed bar. In order to partake of the privileges of this club, one has to become "a member of the bar," so to speak. Or join the club, which is a really lovely place. The walls are unique. They are white and paneled with long colored photographs of this mountainous region, its' passes and waterfalls. The upholstery is azure leather, the carpet black spangled with enormous harlequin flowers.

The doyenne of the French contingent is Mrs. Parmely Herrick of Cleveland, who was hostess at the American embassy in Paris for her widowed father-in-law, Myron T. Herrick. She is a small, vivacious, dark eyed woman, and one of her dinners was South American, with Felipe Espil upon her right and Señor Martins, Brazilian ambassador, at the left. Others at the table were members of embassy staffs, and James Hazen Hyde who acted as host. Mme. Martins, who sat at Mr. Hyde's left, is much liked in Washington. She is darkly exotic, plump, dresses well, and by way of being a sculptor of ability.

Mr. Hyde, who has had a huge suite in the tower all summer, is rediscovering and liking America, after living in Paris for over three decades. He is a very tall man, white haired now, and speaks English with something of an accent. His third wife, a French woman, is staying at the Greenbrier at White Sulphur Springs.

Others to leave their Paris homes were Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Rousseau, who remained in Paris until six months ago. Mr. Rousseau is dapper and agreeable, and is affiliated with a New York bank. He also is president of the American club in Paris. His tall, slim wife with a retroussé nose and dark slanting eyes, was the former Princess Amedlie de Broghie, whom I had known before.

Other Parisians were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shelton, formerly Gretchen Isham of Chicago, now motoring in Canada. And Mrs. Harris Fahnestock, widow of the capitalist sportsman. This demure, pretty French woman is the stepmother-in-law of France Jeffery Fahnestock, very wealthy indeed, and still wearing widow's weeds after two years of widowhood.

The South American contingent is made up of Bolivians from Paris, the colossally rich Patino family of tin mine fame—with their children and grandchildren. Simon Patino and his wife are not yet old. Their rise to fortune is fairly recent and reads like the Arabian Nights or any fairy tale you please. Mr. Patino had a small grocery somewhere in Bolivia and one of his patrons paid a long overdue bill with a deed to a piece of land. Land was very cheap in the region, but this particular piece contained tin, and led to its owner becoming the wealthiest man in South America. The daughters, pretty, black haired, doll-like creatures, have married well and are here with children, nurses, tutors, and governesses. One is the Comtesse de Boisgouvray, another is Mme. Jorge Ortiz-Linares. Mme. Patino is a comely matron who dresses with discretion and no jewels. But the modernistic gems of Mme. Ortiz are eye-openers. Her favorite parure is a nosegay of cabochon sapphines and rubies, vastly effective on a plain black evening dress.

Another group from far places were some dashing young orientals, smartly dressed and smiling. They were five young men who at once made tracks for the golf course and engaged the tennis courts. "Interventionist" society at the Homestead nodded benevolently upon the young Asiatics—beamed their approval of the nice "Chinese" boys, until it turned out they were Japanese.

Nothing could be more idylic than the moonlight dinners of the Homestead in the formal gardens. You wind your way along gravel paths, intoxicated by the fragrance of flowers and box hedges in the warm twilight. Finally in an open glade you find the white clad chefs, the glowing charcoal fires, the tables in a big circle, the waiters all agog. Hicks Kerr, sports director of the Homestead, is master of ceremonies, and the guests seat themselves as they wish. They come mostly in parties, in a happy mood and enjoy this step aside from normal. The food is usually the most delectable broiled steaks in the world—Argentina hasn't any better—broiled chicken, roasted corn and potatoes and ice cream. There may be other items, but there are classics at the "roast." Ambassadors, French refugees and the landed gentry of Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, and New York go to these outdoor fêtes, reveling in the light of the moon as it swims up above the valley—and vastly enjoying these glorified picnics.

Olive Moore came for me one day in her new open sports roadster. She looked too smart for anything. The car was a dream, Olive was her usual casual self with mop of red gold hair, jade green eyes and the simplest of linen frocks, and on the back seat sat two black French poodles, Anne Hollister and Lulu, black as midnight and very woolly indeed. But good as pie, and sitting up like two Abyssinian footmen.

I asked after the health of Trotsky, the huge harlequin great dane of the Moore household, and learned that his feelings have been terribly hurt, and he is sulking. Trotsky has a passion for watching the tennis matches at the Casino, and listening to the concerts at noon and 5 o'clock. Whereas Anne Hollister and her offspring frequent the first tee of the golf course and have taken up golf in a big way. It seems there are people who won't even let Trotsky kibitz at tennis from the other side of a wire netting. So the big dog had taken to following the mountain trails and finding his own amusements, until even that has been prohibited. Guests of the hotel climbing along these trails and meeting up with the large spotted animal in a silver collar have mistaken him for a panther or a leopard, said Olive in her fascinating serio-comic way. And they are so terrified that Trotsky can't even take a constitutional now in the woods.

Ballard Moore has bought another farm down here, about 25 miles away, which I haven't seen as yet. Just at present cattle are being raised there and little else except vegetables.

TO LIVE ON NORTH SIDE

Mrs. Charles Carroll Smith, who will be at home on the north side when she and her bridegroom return from a month's trip to California. The bride is the former Miss Anna May Hawekotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lew Hawekotte of Sheridan road. She has headed the drama department at Barat College of the Sacred Heart for three years. Mr. Smith, son of Mrs. Stephen Smith of Chicago, is executive director of the Chicago Catholic Men's club and director of the Catholic Youth senate.

Berkshire Hills Colony Enjoys Parties, Fetes

Numerous entertainments of interest to members of the Chicago colony and their friends are being given in the Berkshire hills. PITTSFIELD, MASS. Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice has issued invitations for her third important musical of the season next Saturday at Mount Hope farm, Williamstown. Her August concert was omitted because of the Tanglewood music festival. Mrs. E. Burton Holmes of New York is the guest of Col. and Mrs. Prentice.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Sept. 23, 1893.

Dear Julia: The Parliament of Religions continues to interest serious-minded Chicagoans. Christian Science, that newest of religions, drew a large audience to hear the exposition of its doctrines at the Art institute. C. C. Bonney, to whom we are indebted for the idea of the "parliament," is being much praised by the Scientists for his recognition of their faith. I did not attend that session, but have heard a good deal about the address of Mrs. Ruth Ewing of Chicago, which is described as able and convincing.

Mrs. John B. Murphy. [Moffett Photo.]

One of the speeches we did hear was that of Alexander Russell Webb, an ex-consul to Mohammedan lands, who has been converted to the Moslem faith and spoke in its behalf. Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch was the presiding officer that evening, and introduced the speaker gracefully. Mr. Webb's allusion to polygamy was received by the audience with hisses, altho I must say he did not commend that part of the Moslem religion. He just spoke of it as a quite negligible feature of his faith. Indeed, he declared he had never known more than two Moslem men who had more than one wife. My whispered comment to Will, on that remark, was: "Stuff and nonsense!" the retort my Aunt Charlotte always made to an absurd statement.

I am sorry there was any ill feeling in such a place, dedicated to tolerance, but, as Will said, he brought it on himself by introducing such a subject. The civilized world is united in condemning polygamy and any reference to it was bound to create dispute. Quoting Will again, it really was not a matter of religion, but of ethics and should have had no part in such a speech.

On the same day, we heard a brilliant address on "What Judaism Has Done for Woman" by Mrs. Henrietta Szold of Chicago. Her wide knowledge of the Old Testament made the address most interesting.

Social reform has been the topic at the parliament for the last two days and Prof. Francis G. Peabody of Harvard gave a splendid talk on "Jesus Christ and the Social Question." Some in the audience professed to find it too socialistic in character, but I didn't perceive anything except a straightforward presentation of Christ's teachings.

Sandy and Martha have just stopped in on their way home from a reception at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. John B. Murphy on Throop street, where they have been entertaining delegates to the American Medical congress. Martha said it was a grand affair, Mrs. Murphy receiving her guests in a rich white silk gown. Valisi's Mandolin orchestra played and Eckhardt [the man who furnished the refreshments at the last tea I gave for you] served a bountiful supper.

I was glad Sandy could go, for he met many of the famous physicians of the country, and many from foreign lands. Dr. Norman Bridge of Los Angeles was there. Among Chicago doctors Sandy found William E. Quine, Charles W. Earle, G. F. Lydston, and D. A. K. Steele, all outstanding men. Poor Sandy is so busy with his large practice, he seldom finds time to attend parties, so this was a gala occasion for him, as well as for Martha.

Now, I'll say good night. Your loving friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

"When Chicago Was Young" Has a Birthday.

This column passes its 12th milestone tomorrow and it perhaps is not amiss to glance at its past. The story began in the Sunday TRIBUNE of Sept. 15, 1929, Martha's first letter being dated 1854. At this time, she was Miss Martha Freeman, living with her parents in that quiet residential section, Wabash avenue near Madison street. In 1855, she coyly mentions to Julia that she is interested in "a very nice young man, William Esmond, who is reading law in father's office." She marries William Esmond [known to readers as "Will"] in 1859, their wedding being attended by all the fashionables of the city, among whom she names the Hamills, the Laflins, the Browns, the Bentleys, the Wallers, the Blairs, the Cobbs, and George F. Root, "a promising musician."

With the outbreak of the Civil war, William Esmond enlists, being invalided home in 1862 with a wound which leaves him lame for life.

Their Ontario street house is destroyed by the fire of 1871, and they are thankful to escape with their lives, but they rebuild their fortunes during the sober '70s and elegant '80s, and in 1893 we find them living in a brownstone house on fashionable Rush street, happy in their daughter, Martha Junior, who is married to Dr. Sandy Macleod, graduate of Rush Medical college. The Macleods live on Dearborn avenue and are the parents of four children, the two youngest being twins.

It is a simple enough story, but the interest of readers never seems to flag. Excerpts from this column, highlights of the first 25 years . . . 1854 to 1879 . . . have been published under the title, "Dear Julia." Some of the letters of the decade, 1880 to 1890, have recently been put out by A. C. McClurg & Co., in a volume called "The Elegant Eighties."

Genuflecting to the gentle reader, as we enter our 13th year, we thank the many friends whose encouragement and loyalty have made this research into the social life of early Chicago a delight.

Chicago Dwellings.

Our readers will be delighted with John Drury's book, "Old Chicago Houses," out this week. Readable in style and full of information, the volume is a distinct addition to the lore of our beloved city. Its fine illustrations add to its value. The house in which the editor of this column lives is one of the residences described [page 102], which makes it of special interest to us.

Chicago DAR Will Observe Patriotic Date

By Betty Browning.

It was 154 years ago next Wednesday that 39 Americans, after toiling and debating for three months in Independence hall at Philadelphia, heeded a humorous appeal from Benjamin Franklin, put aside differences of opinion, and signed the Constitution of the United States.

The Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, original chapter of this patriotic organization, will observe the anniversary Thursday afternoon at its first meeting of the season at the Stevens hotel.

The preamble to the Constitution—"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States of America"—will be read in unison by the audience. The drawing up and signing of the Constitution will be shown in a sound motion picture.

Today's practical manifestation of the Constitution in the American form of government will be described by two high school boys as they saw it demonstrated last June at Boys' State, sponsored annually by the American Legion. The boys are Leonard Nanus, a junior at Englewood High school, and Wendall Zimmers, a senior at Calumet High school.

Miss Florence Deneen. [Monfort Photo.]

Miss Florence Deneen, regent of the chapter, and sister of the late Charles S. Deneen, former United States senator and governor of Illinois, has arranged the program. It was she who sent the two youths to Boys' State. Mrs. O. H. Crist of Danville, new state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will be a guest.

Miss Deneen also will present the two boys and the motion picture of the signing of the Constitution on Wednesday morning before the Chicago Woman's club.

The Chicago chapter will sponsor a card party the afternoon of Nov. 1 at the Stevens hotel in order to raise funds for its patriotic work. A new project will be to help furnish a room at the service club planned for the soldiers at Fort Sheridan. Mrs. J. De Forest Richards has been appointed general chairman.

Problems of young people and of the home will be discussed by the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs at its first meeting of the season tomorrow at the Central Eleanor club, 16 North Wabash avenue. Judge Cecil Corbett Smith of the Municipal court will speak at the afternoon session on "The American Home," when Mrs. Mary Connorton, vice president of the National Association for Youth Adjustment, also will be presented. Cicero public school children will give a musical program.

At the morning session Mrs. Le Roy B. Herbst, Mrs. H. B. Bauman, and Mrs. Charles W. Stigman, respectively, art, literature, and radio chairmen of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak. Mrs. Elmer B. Jones heads the federation.

Plans for the observance of Federation day, Oct. 14, by the Illinois Federation of Music clubs will be outlined at the First district's opening meeting Tuesday morning in the Lyon and Healy concert hall.

The 1941 winners of the federation contests, Louisa Hoe, soprano; Thaddeus Kozuch, pianist, and Chester Bielski, violinist, are to be presented in concert in Kimball hall in celebration of Federation day. Georgia Anagnost, soprano, and Jacobeth Kerr, pianist, will give a program of Latin American music at the district meeting Tuesday. Mrs. James Allen Young is district chairman.

The Christmas cheer parties that bring the Ladies of Isabella in the rôle of Santa Claus to institutions in and about Chicago each December, will be planned at the Supreme council's first fall meeting Wednesday evening at 7 South Dearborn street. Miss Anna M. Pontius is supreme grand lady of this philanthropic organization.

The Chicago assembly of the Catholic Daughters of America will resume activities with a meeting this afternoon at the Palmer House. Miss Julia Blish will give an illustrated lecture on Lourdes. Mrs. Roy Lance heads the assembly.

Mrs. Harold B. Harvey [Moffett Photo.]

A book review by the Rev. Lowell R. Ditzen, pastor of the South Shore Presbyterian church, will be a feature of the first autumn meeting of the Women of the Rotary club of Chicago Wednesday at the Hotel Sherman. The review will follow a noon luncheon. Mrs. Harold B. Harvey, who organized the club 20 years ago, is serving this year as program chairman, and has arranged the meeting. Mrs. Albert J. Ratz is present president.

Members of the Woman's Club of the Chicago and North Western Railway System will be welcomed back at a meeting program and tea Wednesday afternoon at the clubrooms, 506 West Washington street.

The De Paul Academy Mothers' club will have the Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, president of De Paul university, as the speaker at its first meeting of the season at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the academy, 2235 North Kenmore avenue. Mrs. O. F. Milburn Jr. heads the club.

A smörgasbord luncheon and cards will bring the Woman's auxiliary of the German club to the Svithiod club tomorrow. Mrs. Richard Gebel is president.

The Chicago University of Nebraska Alumnæ association will make "Summer Activities of Chicago Nebraskans" the theme of its luncheon meeting on Saturday at Harding's restaurant in the Fair store. Informal accounts of vacation activities will be given by members. Mrs. Howard R. Peterson, new president, will conduct the meeting.

The 39th anniversary of Sigma Lambda Phi national sorority will be celebrated at a Founders' day luncheon Friday at the Broadview hotel. Mrs. Russell A. Daugherty, vice president of Alpha chapter, will preside.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Traveler Finds Stolen Summer on Mississippi

By Chester Holway.

CASSVILLE, WIS.

Spring comes early to the great valley of the Mississippi, and here the summer lingers on after cooler, northern airs begin to nip. I set out the other day to jaunt leisurely down the valley southward from Prairie du Chien, to enjoy this stolen summer while it lasted.

Across the mouth of the Wisconsin river, in Wyalusing State park, I stopped to stand on the spot marked as the place where Marquette and Joliet, climbing the steep palisade from the river bank below, had first looked upon the wide water of the Mississippi. The 268 years have since passed, the scene has changed but little.

Wyalusing park is laced with hiking trails that switch up to the bluff tops overlooking the river valley and scramble down into dells and draws where springs bubble cool and ferns and flowers dawdle along the brook banks.

The ancient Indians had a fondness for this place, and here, thickly, they dug and piled their ceremonial mounds. The outlines have been carefully preserved—the circular burial pile; linear, in a long oval; the chain mound, like the fossil of some age-gone giant's necklace; and the animal mound, a huge gingerbread cooky beast. Wisconsin museums are filled with the relics—tools, weapons, utensils—these only permanent architectures of the woodsman Indians have yielded to the archaeologist.

At Cassville I found a drowsy town of red brick, British-like houses, neat flower gardens, vine screened porches, rows of bean dangling catalpa trees, and an oldtime painted barber pole. Cassville is about all we have to remind us of Lewis Cass, who was governor when this was Michigan territory and who gave the northwest its first Thanksgiving proclamation in 1830. But it also recalls the speech a young Illinois congressman named Lincoln gave in the house when Cass' dubious record as a great fighter in Indian "wars" was cited as one of his qualifications for the Presidency.

But not for Lewis Cass, but for Nelson Dewey, have I come this way. Nelson Dewey was the first governor of the state of Wisconsin, and his farmplace, just beyond the town, is a memorial park. He built an English country house here in 1863. It cost him a hundred thousand dollars. I saw a picture of it, all fine brick and cut stone bays and great chimneys. Ten years later it burned. So he built again, this time more modestly, and in this second house I spent an hour's poking.

I sat at the governor's six foot, knee hole desk, admiring the carved leaves and pears serving as drawer pulls. I paged thru his Day Book, noting that on Dec. 10, 1873, "This day . . . killed 26 hogs." In the living room, with its crimson and gold flowered wall paper, I coaxed a few reluctant chords from the Collard & Collard square piano. A typewritten note informed me it came from London in a sailing vessel; and it did not claim this piano as the first in Wisconsin—unique distinction! Under a brass hanging lamp, dropped from a graceful medallion in the ceiling, Dewey's rocking chair was paused on its rockers, facing the long windows that never let you forget the river outside.

In the dining room, cool behind its shutters, I discovered a milk safe. [In Wisconsin milk is now measured in billions of pounds and hardly needs a safe.] Upstairs, the master's bed is kept, fashioned of doors salvaged from that mansion he lost in the fire. In an adjoining room the keepers of the house have gathered an astounding collection of all the outmoded domestic paraphernalia our grandmothers pitched into the old well: ironstone ware, candle moulds, iron gem "tins," bootjacks, shards of Indian pots and stone tools, yokes, old guns, wooden farm implements, and a thousand odds and ends. There were even the black funeral nets from the horses that pulled Dewey to his grave.

We are slowly learning to treasure these relics of our simple days. One day they will all be neatly ticketed, arranged in rows in glass cases, and foreigners will come to marvel.

Some of the original outbuilding remain on this farm become park. There are the smokehouse, built of buff stone cut from the bluffs, and the vegetable cellar, nosing one gable into the side of the hill. Upstairs, over the potatoes and carrots, the farm hands had their quarters. Down near the river the stone barns look as tho they would stand another 100 years.

A genial old fellow, whose charge this memorial park is, materialized to tell me of a new road recently cut to the top of the bluff—the highest point, he assured me, on the entire river, and the most beautiful. Unless I chose to miss the finest sight the valley offered, I had better take his advice and make the climb. I nodded toward his beds of flowers—grandmother's favorite annuals, big, branchy, and heavy with blooms.

"You've a beautiful place here."

"Yes, sir," he said, "you'd think 'most any one would like to live here, wouldn't you? But let me tell you something. The governor's wife didn't like it. No, sir, she hated it—not enough going on, and so away she went, and most of the governor's money went with her. Almost lost this place because of the money she cost him. The old man was close to the poor house when he died."

And so I climbed the bluff—climbed it in my car up a roadway blasted and scooped from hillside. The afternoon sun, pouring thru a diaphanous golden mist, polished the river to glistening brass. It struck the double pair of steel rails, far below, in white hot fire—four magic bands to bind the river to its course.

Pinnacles of rock lustered pink and yellow, framing the white church spires of Cassville further down the valley. In the bottom lands below, the yellow-green of late summer pasture lay beside the cool, dark green of corn. Beyond the path of the sun the Iowa hills sat black and softly folded, single tress on their crests etched upon the golden afternoon.

Not a sound came up the valley, not a whistle, not a horn—nothing save the hum of the breeze in the cedars and the teatime gossip of the birds.

RECONCILED.

Ahmeek, Mich., Sept. 8.—To the Travel Editor: In looking thru yesterday's SUNDAY TRIBUNE to see if, in the course of your recent trip to this region, you had found anything worth writing about, I was a bit shocked, a bit confused, and a bit embarrassed when I came across your story.

As "war correspondent" for a country weekly in the Puerto Rican campaign of 1898, and as "Pooh-Bah" in the Copper Country Vacationist league, I realize that "life" in pictures and individuals in stories are essential to get the public really interested, and so I am reconciled to the good natured joshing of some of my friends.

I also realize that perhaps your story was the best possible advertising for the Copper country itself. Therefore I thank you and your paper.

Mrs. Potter says that, after two days here, you knew more about me than I had learned about myself in all my life.

OCHA POTTER.

NORTHWARD BOUND.

New York, Sept. 4.—To the Travel Editor: In connection with the inquiry published in your columns Aug. 27 dealing with the Dmitri camera tour party to Jasper National park, Canadian Rockies, I note that you indicated in your answer that there would be another tour in 1942. This is correct, and plans are now in the making for the tour. However, it will take place the last two weeks of June, instead of July, as stated. I thought you might like this information, either for correction or file purposes.

Flaming Foliage Drama Begins a New Season

By Frederic Babcock.

CALUMET, MICH.

The leaves are turning in the north country, and that means that this land of flaming foliage is about to put on its final, and finest, performance for the benefit of the 1941 tourists. From now until mid-October the reds, yellows, and browns of the oaks, birches, and maples will be the featured players, and the greens of the pines, spruces, and balsams will provide the background.

Our tour of northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan has made us wonder if the author of the song, "It's So Peaceful in the Country," now being heard on every radio, got his inspiration from a visit up here in early autumn. He couldn't have found a much better place. A week or so in this region, and the visitor forgets all about what's going on overseas.

Even the wild life is helping to put on the drama. After years of playing coy with the public, the bears at such places as Blaney Park have come out of hiding and are doing a nightly turn in front of the headlights and spotlights. So are the bears at the feeding grounds adjoining the Keweenaw Golf course. The deer, of course, have been entertaining the crowds for years, but this season they seem to be so numerous that they are almost overcrowding the stage.

As if that were not enough, the weather man also is coöperating. The days are warm enough, but the nights are blanket cool. And the air is pine scented and pollen free. It would take a poet to describe the combined effect of scenery and atmosphere—and this correspondent knows only newspaper prose.

As the season advances the coloring will, of course, creep southward. By early October everything should be aflame in the wooded areas of Illinois and Indiana, and then will be the time for trips to Starved Rock, Turkey Run, Spring Mill, Brown county, and French Lick.

Still later, and until along about the first of November, those persons who appreciate things of this kind will be flocking to the Great Smoky mountains, the Ozarks, the Shenandoah valley, and elsewhere in the near south.

In this way the old fashioned idea of limiting the vacation season to two or three months in summer is disappearing. Nowadays it is being extended thruout the lazy days of Indian summer.

All of which is as it should be.

Autumn in the American midlands is a spectacle of real merit.

But did you ever see the aspen groves in the Rocky mountains after they had turned to gold and crimson?

Chicagoans on Ocean Cruises

New York, Sept. 13 [Special].—Late summer cruises southward out of New York are drawing capacity or near-capacity crowds.

Carey Jr., Miss Dorothy Farrell, Miss Loraine Funk, Miss Dorothy Gilbert, Miss Virginia Greiner, Mrs. John Gunnell, Miss Fay Hemperly, Miss Emily Hook, Mrs. Albert Hoos, Jamison Hoos, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Krasin, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Lang, Miss Patricia Lang, James T. Lang, John Luly, Miss Hazel Monty, C. M. Morris, Ralph Olsen, Frederick E. Paesler, Miss Maxine Petchnik, and Miss Thelma Wilson.

On the Acadia when she began a voyage to the West Indies were Mrs. J. Barnes, Mrs. L. Clair, Miss M. Jaiser, and Miss V. Shaw, all of Chicago.

BLACK HILLS
● What more interesting and different vacation this fall than a trip to the scene of the last great American legend, the Black Hills of North Dakota, when this country is at its best? In the magnificent blue-black scenery of this region, not so long ago, lived Wild Bill Hickok, Calamity Jane and Skookum Chuck, while gun-fighters and gold-panners were enacting the premiere of all "westerns." Lignite fires of past ages seem still to burn in the red-streaked, rocky and grotesque landscape of the nearby Bad Lands, where Gen. Custer encountered the Sioux and where Theodore Roosevelt ranched, hunted buffalo and recruited the Rough Riders. His cabin still stands.
● Consult the advertisments in the Travelers' Guide today, or let the Chicago Tribune Travel Bureau help you plan a trip to the Black Hills and Bad Lands of North Dakota. This department of the Tribune Public Service Office can supply you with information about steamship, railroad, bus and plane travel, cost of transportation and accommodations en route for trips and tours to anywhere you wish to go. Services are free. The Tribune Travel Bureau sells no tickets—gets no fee or commission from the sale of tickets. So feel free to call in person, write or telephone.

FEEL MY MUSCLE

By

LUKE SHORT

(Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

CHARLIE PARKER wakened to the third day of his vacation with the dismal conviction that today was the day he would be driven to suicide. The reasons were prime and simple: This vacation was taken at doctor's orders, it was being spent at home at doctor's orders, and he was forbidden golf, which was the only reason any sane man ever took a vacation.

And to make it pluperfect awful on this fine June morning, he wakened with the distinct memory of the rousing row he'd had with Louise last night over whether or not they could afford a new radio-phonograph.

He came down to breakfast on the terrace at 10, and regarded the garden with an upsurge of bile. He'd gardened until 11 yesterday and then had thrown the rake over the hedge and come in and slept. Could he hold out till 12 today? He gloomily attacked his breakfast and listened to Louise upstairs. She was cleaning out closets, he knew; she always did when she was still mad and had to work off steam.

When he heard her come downstairs and head toward him, he braced himself and looked up from the paper as she came out onto the terrace. She was wearing an absurd apron and spotless gloves, and she looked altogether lovely, except for a faintly hostile pair of large and hard brown eyes. She said good morning without smiling and put something on the table by Charlie and sat down.

Charlie stopped eating and picked up the object, black with a lot of chromium.

"What are you going to do with it?" Louise asked, her voice business like.

"It looks like a time bomb," Charlie said with caution, holding it gingerly. "What is it?"

"The camera Aunt Bessie gave you for Christmas. It was on the shelf in my closet, just where you put it Christmas afternoon."

Charlie remembered. "Wicked looking thing, isn't it?" he asked pleasantly.

"What are you going to do with it?" Louise repeated, a shade grimly.

"Why—nothing. Why?"

"May I have it?"

Charlie glanced up sharply. She could be sly when she wanted to, and Charlie studied her pretty face for that Borgia expression and found it.

"You're going in for a record of all our 'good fun,' are you?" he asked cautiously.

"Don't be poisonous. This is where you went to sleep last night, dear," Louise said sweetly. "I'm going to take it down to the camera shop and sell it, and the money's going into my own private fund for a new phonograph. I'm going to sell everything in this house that isn't nailed down. I told you last night, sweet, remember?"

"O!"

"Do I get it?"

Charlie looked at it carefully and hefted it. "It feels expensive," he said evasively.

"It's very. Aunt Bessie said so. Now what about it?"

"I don't know," Charlie said. "We might want to use it, say for the son and heir when he comes."

Louise smiled again. "Christmas morning you took one look at it and said you wouldn't use it if you were the only witness to the arrival of a man from Mars."

"I did?" Charlie said, surprised. "That was the eggnogs, I suppose."

Louise rose and came over and kissed him perfunctorily and a little briskly. "Just a word of warning, my sweet. Either you use that camera or it's going to disappear—and soon."

When she was gone, Charlie looked at the camera with mild curiosity. He went upstairs and shaved and dressed, and when he came down again the camera was still on the table where the maid had left it. Again he looked at it, fondling the gadgets and not having the remotest idea what any of them meant. With the whole morning, two whole weeks of whole mornings, ahead of him, it might be fun to take some pictures. Only how did you use it? He thought immediately of Louise's mention of the camera shop, placed it after some effort, then went out to the car and headed downtown. It was a way to kill a morning, anyway.

He found the shop tucked in between a bookstore and an antique shop, its windows filled with a lot of junk that was as puzzling as it was intriguing.

A pale and solemn clerk waited on him. Charlie handed him the camera and said, "What is this thing?"

The clerk glanced at it and a look of admiration came into his eyes. "A Samson III., sir. Very good camera, and getting rare."

"Rare?"

"The war. It's German." He looked shrewdly at Charlie. "You don't want to sell it, do you?"

"Say, $265?"

Charlie blinked, and put out his hand for the camera and said quickly, "No, I was kidding. I want some film for it and I want to know how to use it."

An hour later, more than slightly bewildered, Charlie came out into the hot sunshine of the street. Besides the camera with a new case, he now had a sunshade, a K2 filter, and a burning conviction that if he couldn't take better pictures than those of Steichen's and Weston's the clerk had reverently shown him, he would eat his Panama hat without salt. As far as he could tell from an hour's talk and looking at pictures, this was a tight little racket dominated by a few men who praised each other's pictures to the skies and ignored everybody else. Why, some of those pictures . . .

There was a look in his eye, a look of craft and cunning and arrogance. He started upstreet, and his interest was immediately taken by the form of a transformer on a pole with the sun on it. He took a picture of it. Further upstreet, he saw a window dresser manhandling a dummy in a way that appealed to his sense of humor. He took that picture, much to the embarrassment of the window dresser. On the corner by the bank, a big black limousine was parked. Its license number, Charlie noticed, was 66666. Five sixes. Unusual. He'd take a picture of it.

At 1 o'clock, when hunger reminded him of the time, he was well into his third roll of film and had just finished photographing two overloaded garbage cans in a downtown back alley.

He drove home for lunch in a mild glow of satisfaction, a state quite contrary to that in which he had previously regarded all cameras and people who used them, and he knew Louise remembered, too. He'd better leave the stuff in the car.

He was jovial at lunch, his moodiness gone, and before Louise had had time to wonder at it, he was headed out for the country club. The afternoon, he'd already decided, was to be spent in taking action shots.

Charlie Wrecks Drives with Picture Taking

At the club, Charlie didn't even go to the locker room. He hovered around the first tee, wrecking the drives of half a dozen players with his picture taking before Jim Hopper, Fred Makin, and Ernie Younger came out. Usually, Charlie made up the foursome, which was widely avoided by the other club members because it was noisy, rude, irreverent, and a howling nuisance. Charlie knew he was in for some ribbing, but he relaxed on the bench and called up a pitying smile.

Fred Makin saw him first and stopped dead in his tracks. "Hello, Crippen," he greeted Charlie. "What's that hanging around your neck, an albatross?"

Ernie saw him then and said, "I quit! I can stand a skyrocket when I drive, but a camera, no. Get out of here!"

Jim Hopper, big and bluff, came up to him and said, "Gimme a look."

Charlie grinned almost pityingly and held out the camera. "It's a Samson III., you dope, and it's got——"

"The best damned Tufa lens money will buy," Jim said. "How do you like the built-in exposure meter?"

"Hey!" Charlie said. "Do you know anything about cameras?"

"Nobody's ever proved it," Fred Makin put in. "Still, he bought enough votes to be elected president of the Camera club."

"You are?" Charlie asked blankly. He was seeing Jim in a new light. "Why didn't I know this?"

"I thought your skull was too thick to appreciate it," Jim said.

"Where is the club?"

"Meets once a week over the shop. Want to come next meeting?"

"When is it?"

"Thursday night." Fred and Ernie were taking practice swings now, but Jim was looking at him with a faint amusement in his eyes. "Got any masterpieces, Charlie? If you have, bring 'em along. Every two weeks we have a new show. Awards are given in beginner's class, intermediate, and old timer's. You can submit two prints and your name will be kept a secret. Want to bite?"

Charlie pretended to ponder it, but inwardly he was smiling, and his mind was made up. If that big slob of a Jim Hopper was a photographer, he himself was Steichen.

"Sure. I'll take a look."

The room above the camera shop held a lot of chairs and a lot of people that Charlie didn't know. The walls were ranked solid with photographs. Charlie spotted his own two, printed and hung, without his name, of course, by the camera shop. He had the warm, smug conviction that tonight would make history in a small way.

He was bored by the business meeting, talk of exchange shows and such. Only when the meeting broke up and ballots were passed out to vote on the pictures did he feel anything, and then all he wanted was to get it over in a hurry. He took his ballot, looked at the prints, most of which he privately thought should never have been shown, voted on them, then hunted Jim and Fred Makin, who were talking shop with other members. There was talk of degrees of Scheiner, emulsion speeds, hypo formulas, short stop formulas, fine grain developers and such, not one word of which Charlie understood. His spirits were a little dampened by the technical talk until he reflected that doubtless Napoleon couldn't quote the price of corn paid by his quartermaster before Austerlitz. Small time stuff; no forest for the trees.

Soon the room quieted and winners were read off in all three classes. There was polite, but restrained, applause. Neither of Charlie's prints won the beginner's class. The tabulation of votes per picture was posted on the wall, and Charlie saw that neither of his prints had even got a vote.

After that, the meeting broke up and Jim suggested that Charlie and Fred stop in for beer and sandwiches at his place. Charlie was morose on the ride to Jim's house, but when they arrived, his ego was up on one knee from a prone position.

It wasn't until they were in the kitchen, and Jim was bringing out the beer that the talk turned to the prints.

"Man!" Jim said then. "Did you get a load of some of those prints? How about that little lovely of the two garbage cans?"

"That," Charlie said with dignity, "was mine."

Jim and Fred looked at each other and both grinned. Fred said, "Cheer up, Charlie. You got it out of your system, anyway."

"Well, what was wrong with it?" Charlie demanded hotly. His temper was edging him, but it was still under control.

"Look, fella'," Fred said paternally. He tilted his chair back and continued in a kindly, cynical tone. "There are two schools of photography, the eggbeater school and weeping willow school, and never the twain shall meet. I'm the weeping willow type and so's Jim. You're not." He heaved a mock sigh. "Well, it was nice knowing you."

"You birds," Charlie said with certain smugness, "don't know what a picture is."

"You tell us," Jim said. He pulled up a chair, divided the beer, and both he and Fred regarded Charlie with an amused air of expectancy.

"Well, it's—a—it's like this. It's a——"

"Exactly," Fred said solemnly. "I agree."

"Just the same, I can take better pictures than either of you," Charlie sneered. "I saw Jim's and they stunk. Yours too, Fred."

"Maybe," Fred conceded cheerfully. "But they didn't smell of garbage cans."

"You guys have taken 1,000, 2,000 pictures, tho," Charlie continued loftily. "If I couldn't do better than you do after taking that many, I'd turn my camera in on a playpen."

"You can't do that well," Fred said flatly.

"Wait a minute," Jim said to Fred. He spoke to Charlie. "How many pictures will you take before you get a good one—a really good show picture?"

Charlie thought a moment. "I'll get five good pictures a roll of 16 exposures."

There was a long, amazed silence during which Fred and Jim looked at him with pity.

"Given five years to shoot your 16 exposures, maybe you could," Fred said drily.

"Five days," Charlie said carelessly.

"Megalomania," Fred murmured.

"Furthermore," Charlie continued, "I won't be the judge of what's good. I'll let other people judge."

"Dementia præcox," Fred murmured. "Advanced state."

"Fifty bucks says you can't get even three good pictures a roll," Jim said.

"A hundred says I can," Charlie said hotly.

Fred's chair came to the floor. "Hear, hear!" He looked at them both. "Who'll crawl out first?"

"Not me," Jim grinned. "Watch him squirm."

"I meant it," Charlie said.

Fred snapped his finger. "Write out your checks, boys. This is a bet."

They did, and gave them to Fred to hold. Then Charlie said, "Well, how're you going to work it?"

"You don't think I'd take your word for the number of pictures you snapped, do you?" Jim said insultingly. "I've got a halter for blowhards like you. Sit tight."

He was gone five minutes. When he returned, he had a camera, and a roll of film.

"This is a Samson III., Charlie, just like yours. Fred, you load it."

"What is this?" Charlie demanded.

"Same camera as yours. You know how to use it," Jim said pleasantly. "When it's loaded, I'm going to seal it with sealing wax. You've got a 16 exposure film in there. In five days, when you've shot 'em all, bring the camera to Fred. He'll print and enlarge for you. And we'll turn the whole 16 of them into the camera club to be judged next meeting anonymously. Fair enough?"

Charlie swallowed with difficulty. "Fair enough," he said in what he hoped sounded like a cheerful voice. He had more than a faint suspicion that he had walked into an old and proved trap, but as usual he was wary after the damage was done.

At home, he hid Jim's sealed camero high on a garage shelf before he went in. Louise was reading. She put down her book and said, "Let's see the blue ribbons."

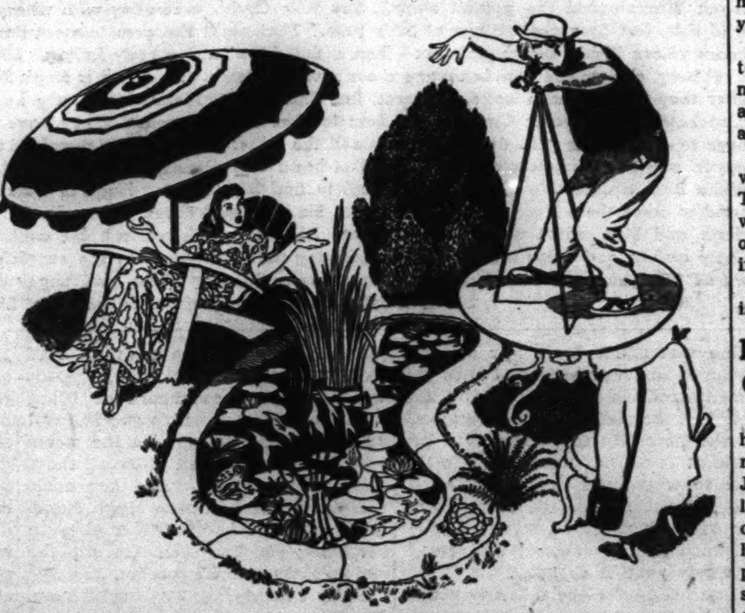
Charlie's face was blank. "Blue ribbons?"

"The Camera club called after you left. They couldn't remember what size mat you wanted for your prints. I told them to use their own judgment. I suppose I lost the prize for you."

Charlie saw it wasn't any use pretending, and he debated on just how much to admit. Certainly, he couldn't admit the bet, or if he did, not the amount.

"Prize!" he scoffed bitterly. "It wasn't my turn to win. I'm new. They pass the prizes around like they were postmasterships. I'll win a second in August, a first in November, if I just stick around and vote right."

"Ah, the undiscovered genius," Louise said drily.



He tried for an hour for a good portrait of Louise until she got tired of looking beautiful.

Louise Hears About Challenge from Jim

"All right, laugh!" Charlie said hotly. "But I've busted their little racket," And he told Louise about Jim's challenge and his acceptance, leaving out the amount of the bet, of course. Mention of that, after he'd howled about the expense of a new phonograph, just wouldn't be understood. When he was finished, Louise didn't speak.

"Well, say something!" Charlie said.

"Sucker."

Charlie settled into a hurt silence behind a highball, but his mind was active. He was planning his pictures, mentally choosing his subject, pondering the best lighting effects. For a starter, he decided, he'd get a shot of the garden swing from the tree directly above at just at sunrise, when the sun threw a fantastic shadow. Eggbeater school, was he? All right, he'd give something that for sheer mathematical form couldn't be beat. He spent the hour until bedtime looking up in the almanac the hour of sunrise.

At dawn, cold and breakfastless, Charlie was roosting in one of the lower branches of the big elm in the side yard, his camera ready. The birds were raising the day all around him, and he saw the milk delivered and wished that the sun would hurry. About the time he was wishing he was back in bed, the sun came up—behind the hedge. Patiently, he waited for it to climb higher, and saw the maid let herself in the back door. His stomach was growling his hunger, cigarets tasted like hasheesh, his eyes burned and watered, and he was being branded thru the seat of his flannels by the rough bark of the tree.

When the sun finally climbed over the hedge, it was behind the low branch of the elm. If the swing, a fanciful iron cradle affair, had been 40 feet out into the yard, he might have got the picture.

He sighed regretfully, climbed down, and went in to breakfast. Louise, bright-eyed and beautiful, filled him with a vague resentment that was heightened when she asked, "How many did you get?"

"The light wasn't right," Charlie growled.

He went out after breakfast and prowled around the place, camera in hand, beating his brain for ideas. The only one he had was to stand the lawnmower on one wheel and take a

NEXT SUNDAY—"WHITE CHIFFON," A SHORT STORY BY THYRA SAMTER WINSLOW

HOT GOLD

"Now that you're here, what do you aim to do?"

What Has Gone Before

Nora Riley, whose uncle, Lem Goodal, has just struck gold, receives a letter from Jim Chambers asking her to meet him secretly near her uncle's mine at Seven Troughs, as he has dangerous information to divulge. En route to Winnemucca her car stalls and she learns that some one put sugar in her gasoline tank. She halts an on-speeding car and the driver, Hugh Shannon, gives her a lift. They are pursued by another car whose occupants fire at them, but when they reach Winnemucca the pursuit stops. She tells Curly, a cowboy with whom she thinks she is in love, about her wild ride, but does not tell him of Jim's note. That night she goes to meet Jim at the mine, sees a strange car and hears voices inside the pumphouse—then a dull blow and a body falling. Listening, she overhears men planning a robbery, and as she tries to escape a car runs her down. Its driver is Hugh Shannon, who takes her back to town after they find the men have murdered Jim Chambers. Meanwhile Curly has a business talk with Larry Miller, a racketeer, who wants Curly to get Lem to sign over his mine. They have imported gangsters dressed as cowboys to steal Lem's gold and make Lem sell the mine. But Lem has promised to sell to Hugh Shannon, a legitimate buyer, and the gangsters are getting out of hand and planning to rob the mill. Lem, suspicious, has hired William White Bird, a detective of Indian ancestry, to find the thieves. Hugh is working with Bird, and in order to be on hand to catch them Hugh sends a note with his promised check to Lem by Nora, but Curly takes the note from her. Hugh and Bird watch while the gangsters, headed by Keyes, rob the mill. As they prepare to capture them Curly arrives and helps them escape. Knowing that Lem has become suspicious of him, Curly poisons Lem and warns the gangsters that Bird and Shannon can identify them and suggests they lynch the two, casting the blame for the robbery and murder on Bird and Shannon.

INSTALMENT VI.

THE lights swerved sharply, then darted, like a pair of enormous fireflies, swooping into the darkness down the hill. They zigzagged crazily, following the windings of the dirt road, and came to an abrupt stop at the edge of the torrent.

"They're stalled," Hugh said. "They'll never make that crossing. We can get 'em while they're trying."

"We might," White Bird droned. "But the chances are that the best we'd get would be half a dozen hot slugs. I don't like playing long shots unless I have to, and these fellows will keep. It'll be an hour or two before they can get down to Seven Troughs, and I've got something else on my mind that's bothering me.

"Sometimes," William White Bird said, "I like to play hunches. When they are strong. And I have got a strong one now. It's like the feeling you have when you are dead sure somebody is close by—behind you or waiting for you around the corner. I don't know whether you ever got it, but it has come over me more than once, and whenever I didn't play it for a good bet, I wished I had afterward. Anyhow, I have a queer feeling about that house. You could drop in on Goodal, Hugh—just to make sure his niece gave him your check."

"I'd forgotten that check," Hugh cried.

From where they were standing they had not seen the light come on and vanish when Curly left the house by the front door.

White Bird had taken the lead and Hugh was following a few paces behind. They stole up the hill to the end of the veranda, they climbed the low railing and they halted again beside the window. They were in darkness. Within a foot of the spot where they were standing, the lamplight flowed in a white stream.

They were looking at one end of the long living room; they saw the dark cavern of the fireplace, the mantel of precious ore whose yellow specks glistened dully under the lamp, half of the big mission style table with its load of specimens, the dead man in the armchair, with the whisky bottle and siphon beside him. To Hugh it seemed that Lem Goodal was asleep. Bill's fingers were like steel on his arm, and Bill's lips were so close that when he spoke, Hugh felt the warm breath against his cheek.

"That's what I was afraid of. Remember what I told you about that cyanide."

Hugh recalled it now; he had the picture before him: Curly standing in the rain with the light from the mill window upon him, while he crushed a brown crystal to powder with his jackknife handle and poured the powder into a paper, while he stuffed the paper into his pocket.

He knew that he was in the presence of death; he was intensely aware of this while the two of them crept across the space before the window. It was in his mind when they stood before the door. He heard William White Bird's low exclamation.

"Huh!" And he saw the sawed off shutgun as the other picked it up. The knowledge of death was possessing him still. He was more conscious of this than he was of the voice in his ear:

"You go in. I'll stick out here. If anything happens, watch the door."

He went into the room then, and all the time that consciousness of death's presence was growing more acute. But, from some strange disassociation of ideas, he had failed to place it. And when he approached that figure in the chair, he still had a vague idea that the old man was sleeping. Then, suddenly, he noticed that there was no movement of the chest, and for the first time he realized the meaning of the slight froth upon the lips. Save for that, the face looked peaceful.

Involuntarily his eyes went toward the closed door, and when they came back to the figure in the chair, he saw the empty glass. He picked the glass up, and he was frowning at the dregs of liquor when he heard a door open.

The door was at the other side of the long room, and when he looked around, Nora was standing on the threshold.

The realization that something was wrong had come to Nora the moment she opened the door; the news was written on Hugh's face, something had happened here and her arrival had disturbed him. He looked at her as if he was badly frightened.

It was the fear in his face—because he knew the ugliness of what confronted her—that frightened her. She had barely glanced at the body in the chair; she had a vague feeling that there was something unnatural in the way her uncle looked, and that was all.

She was silent for a few seconds, trying to understand it, and then she remembered the envelope which Hugh had just handed her, his emphasis on the necessity of giving it to her uncle at once; her mind went to the man to whom she had entrusted it. She did not realize the reason why her words had the effect which they did until long afterward; she said:

"Curly gave it to him."

It was the envelope that she meant. And, as soon as she spoke, she remembered that Curly had run from the room without turning it over. She was about to correct herself, when she saw the sudden change in Hugh's face. His eyes had become hard and wary.

"Do you know that?"

He shot the question with a breathless intensity which puzzled her, and she saw him glance at the glass which he held in his hand. He slipped the glass into his pocket and he waited for her answer. She looked at the figure in the chair and Hugh's face twisted with a quick resurging sympathy, the dread returned to his eyes and he took a step toward her.

She was shaking her head; she was saying:

"I was mistaken. I handed the envelope to Curly. He has it now."

She was saying it slowly and she was staring at the figure in the chair; the feeling of something unnatural in the way her uncle was sitting was growing stronger; she started on into the room and Hugh had taken another step toward her. She wasn't paying any attention to him now, and so she couldn't see the solicitude in his eyes; the change in her position had brought the face of her uncle in full view with the lamplight upon it, and she knew she was looking upon death.

And then the sound of footsteps came from the veranda. The front door swung open. In an instant the room seemed to be filled with men.

There were only six of them, but the noise of their arrival was so abrupt that, for the moment, it seemed as if they were a host. They shot into the room and they came to a stand in the harsh lamplight. They had left the door open behind them; they made a line between the threshold and the opposite wall; a file of six men with pistols in their hands; their backs were toward Nora, they were facing Hugh and she could see him now, between two of the members of that line, as he confronted them.

She heard a voice; that was Curly speaking.

"That one of them?" And a voice answered:

"That's one of 'em. He helped tie me up."

A lean man in denim overalls and jumper; this was the millman. And Nora's mind went back to the words which she had overheard at Black Rock, to the fears which she had felt while she was riding thru the storm with Hugh beside her. Now all those fears were realized. And her uncle was dead; she had seen Hugh standing beside the body with a glass in his hand; she had seen him slip the empty glass into his pocket.

Curly was saying, "All right, men. We have got this one."

Hugh was not looking at the men. He was gazing at the open doorway and his eyes were glittering, they were as hard as two bright jewels. And there was someone standing there beyond the wide threshold. A blocky man. His face was dark, he was holding something in his hands. It was the man who had come to the car when they passed thru Seven Troughs. She was about to cry out when White Bird's arms moved; she saw the shotgun go to his shoulder.

Blast of Shotgun Blows Out Lights

The report was deafening; it shook the walls of the room; the noise was stunning, and the stink of nitro gases filled the air. They were in black darkness.

There was silence for a bare instant after the explosion. It was broken by the trampling of feet, by an outburst of voices. And then one voice rose above all the confusion. That was Curly again:

"Outside, men. An' after 'em!"

In that moment, when Nora realized that Hugh had fled, she felt a deep throb of thankfulness. It was some time after that, and the room was emptied of all save herself and the still form in the armchair, when she remembered one face which she had seen in the line that had confronted him. She had gotten a brief view of it, just before the shotgun went off, a glimpse in profile; smooth olive features under sleek black hair; the face of the guitar player who had been singing "Casey Jones" one night at Seven Troughs.

The rain was dwindling to a thin drizzle and a cold wind was whipping clouds of stinging sleet down the ridges. William White Bird was in the lead and he was feeling his way along the narrow trail as unhesitatingly as a night prowling cat.

It was the pathway which Goodal had taken when he came to grief in that clump of sagebrush; a short cut between the bunkhouse and the mine. The sound of voices ascended out of the darkness overtaking the fugitives; apparently the pursuers had stopped to argue among themselves as to which direction they should take, and the vigor of the discussion suggested that the desire to continue it was strengthened by a general reluctance to come within range of the sawed off shotgun which White Bird carried.

The idea occurred to Hugh and the possibilities that it brought were encouraging. The headframe, the rock dump and the other surface workings of the mine lay a quarter of a mile before them, near the skyline above the canyon head; if they could find some hiding place there, they might be able to avoid the man hunt, and slip out of the camp yet.

He saw the windows of the ore mill, a row of dazzling oblongs descending the steep hillside. Several wavering specks of light appeared out of the night beyond the mill. White Bird's voice floated back over his shoulder:

"Here come the men off shift." Before the announcement was completed, the voice had become a disembodied presence; its owner was no longer visible. Hugh dived down the hill after him and flung himself upon his belly. And the deep bass resumed:

"Say a prayer that they don't see us."

The little flecks of light were passing the ore mill already; a moment later they were coming along the trail, a few yards above the spot where Hugh was lying, a procession of lambent yellow spots, with shadowed forms beneath them. The scrape of heavily shod feet mingled with the murmur of voices.

The procession was passing now, the foremost lights were growing smaller. The lights continued their progress, the sounds grew fainter and silence closed in.

"This place won't be healthy for us as soon as they meet Curly and his bunch." Hugh got to his feet as he was speaking, and followed his companion to the path.

"We have one bet left," White Bird told him. "The night hoist man. When I muscled in on this high grade game, I tried to get hold of him, because there isn't anything comes up the shaft without his knowing it. I offered to cut him in on the profits, but he wouldn't listen. He said he had to stand for what that gang was pulling off, because Curly was protecting them, but that didn't mean he was a crook. I'd found one honest man on the works and I made the best of it; I told him who I was and what I was here for. Maybe he can hide us out somewhere."

They had left the mill behind them now, and other lights stood out against the lowering sky; these revealed the flash of the mountain; the waste dump thrusting forth from it like a promontory of broken rock; the gaunt headframe at the shaft collar, and the little corrugated iron building where the hoist men swung their levers controling the machinery which lowered the ore skips into the shaft and raised them out of the depths to the headframe where they dumped their loads into the ore bin or upon the dump, according to the nature of the rock.

The whole area was as bright as day and they halted before they entered it, until they had made certain that no one was in sight, then they ran to the door of the hoist house. And, while they were panting up the steep path, they saw a dark object emerge from the shaft; it looked like a huge iron box; water was gushing from its sides as it shot up the headframe. It stopped near the top of the gaunt framework and tripped with a metallic clang; the clang was followed by a dull swish of falling waters and a muddy flood cascaded over the flank of the rock dump.

Hugh said, "They're bailing. That cloudburst must have washed down hill into the shaft. I'll bet there's 10 feet of water in the bottom."

The door of the hoist house was open, and by the time they reached it, the bailer was descending into the shaft again; the huge drum was unwinding and the hoist man was standing beside it with his back toward the entrance; there were two long levers in front of him and he was leaning forward with his hand on one of them. The rasping of gears filled the room. He stood there, motionless, his eyes upon the black cable which paid out from the drum and flowed thru a hole high in the opposite wall to the sheave wheels at the top of the headframe.

A gong clanged once; the hoist man's body swung back as he pulled the lever toward him; the drum ceased revolving and the room was still. He glanced around and nodded.

"We're in a jam," William White Bird announced. "Goodal's been murdered, the mill was robbed. Curly and his crowd are looking for us; they want to lynch us so that we don't get a chance to talk to the sheriff. They're liable to be along here any minute."

Hoist Man Is Not Surprised at Tidings

The hoist man regarded him impassively; apparently the tidings held no astonishment for him.

"Curly." He spat as if the name had left a bad taste in his mouth. "Him and his fake cowboys."

The gong on the opposite wall clanged again; one peal, a pause, then two. He turned his back upon them and seized the levers; he released one, he pulled the other back; the drum began revolving again and the noise of the gears resumed possession of the little room.

Then, while the winding cable was drawing the bailer upward from the bottom of the shaft, his whole figure seemed to stiffen. His eyes were not on the black strands now; he was gazing thru a wide window directly beneath the hole in the opposite wall thru which the cable passed. The window commanded a view of the headframe and most of the hillside. It showed three men who were climbing up the steep flank of the dump; they wore five gallon hats and flamboyant rayon shirts.

Hugh glanced at William White Bird; he could have sworn that, in this moment, the face of his companion had bleached a trifle, but the features remained undisturbed. The three men were near the top of the dump now. When they climbed a few yards further, it would be impossible for any one to pass along this portion of the mountainside without their seeing him. The foremost of them raised his arm and pointed toward the hoist house. The hoist man did not turn his head, he was intent, his big body remained motionless as his voice came thru the rasping of the gears.

He said, "What could be sweeter?"

The gong on the opposite wall sounded as he was speaking and the bailer shot into sight; it began climbing the headframe. The three men on the side of the dump were gazing upward at it when it halted. A dull metallic clang came thru the window and after that the sound of rushing water. The three forms were obliterated by a brown flood.

The hoist man faced about; he was smiling as one who is well satisfied.

"That," he said, "ought to hold 'em a while. If you fellows go around the head of the gulch you can get down to Seven Troughs. Then you can beat it into Winnemucca. It won't be any Sunday picnic, for it's snowing hard on the ridge. There's a flashlight in my pocket, it's hanging there behind you. Do you know Lily Diamond, Bill?"

White Bird was getting the flashlight when he answered.

"I've heard of her."

"She's camped on the ridge," the closeup angle shot of it and its shadow. He was about to shoot it when he was seized with doubts. Only 16 exposures, and he was using one on this. It was good, but definitely not a show picture. He gave up after that and went inside and slept till lunch.

After lunch, he made the disappointing discovery that midday is the worst time to take pictures, with the sun directly above. And at 4 o'clock, clouds began to gather and it was cloudy until sundown. Thwarted, he spent two hours wrestling the iron swing out into the middle of the yard, gouging great long furrows in the turf while Louise looked on in wondering silence. That evening he spent looking thru beck files of picture magazines, getting ideas.

He was up at daylight next morning. It was then he made the discovery that he'd moved the swing so far out from beneath the elm that even when the sun did rise he couldn't get the picture he wanted from the tree. He went for a walk till breakfast time and almost took a picture of a Scottie out for its morning run. Trouble was, the dog wouldn't come close enough for a picture, and besides that, he wasn't sure whether he should waste one of his precious 16 exposures on so trite a subject.

This morning he didn't sleep. He drove down to the station. There ought to be some good stuff around trains. Trouble was, they didn't stay in the station long enough for him to select an unusual combination of gears and wheels that would make a picture. He was close to one, when the engineer let out a blast of steam that almost made him drop the camera. He quit in midafternoon and got a coke and two aspirins and went home. Louise was reading out on the lawn.

He tried for an hour for a good portrait of Louise until she got so tired of looking beautiful that when he peered at her thru the view finder he saw the image of a worried hag.

Louise Asks Charlie to Call Off Bet

That night he decided that if pictures weren't there to take, he'd make them. Still lifes were the thing. From the catalogs they had given him at the camera shop he chose some floodlamps to buy next day and spent the rest of the evening looking at pictures in magazines. That night as they were going to bed, Louise said casually, "Why don't you call off the bet, sweet. It isn't worth it."

"Ha!" Charlie said. "And give that big lug something to crow about the rest of his life? Not much!"

Louise said nothing.

The floodlamps were distinctly not a success. Next night Louise went to bed at midnight and left him to rearrange his kraut cutters, salami, beer bottles, and nest of measuring cups for the thousandth time. In the morning she found him sprawled on the sofa asleep, floodlamps still pointed at a corner of the room and going full blast, rugs rolled back, furniture shoved in the other three corners. She looked at the counter on the camera; it was still at zero.

At breakfast, Charlie looked haunted. His eyes were sunken, and he looked harried and beaten. It was the sight of him that decided Louise that this had gone far enough.

"You look here, Charlie Parker," she said grimly. "You call up Jim and tell him the bet's off! You've got orders to rest! And you haven't got a decent night's sleep in three nights! It's killing you!"

Charlie looked up from his grapefruit, misery in his eyes. "I can't," he said. "The bet."

"Lose it!" A sudden hardness came into Louise's eyes, her voice. "How much did you bet?" she asked slowly.

"A hundred dollars," Charlie said hollowly. He didn't look at her, but he knew what she was thinking, and he didn't even care. She left the table and came back a moment later with the camera.

"Now, my friend," Louise said, and Charlie recognized the voice. The iron fist in the velvet glove. "You take the car out and don't come back till that roll of film is gone. Take 16 pictures, and they'd better be good!"

"All right," Charlie said dispiritedly. "Only—well, all right."

He was gone all day. At 6, when he returned, Louise took one look at him and knew the worst had happened.

"I couldn't help it!" Charlie cried. "I can't take a picture, I tell you! I get all set to take one, and then I know damn well it's no good. My finger gets paralyzed! I start to shake!"

They were on the terrace, Charlie sitting on the edge of it. He put his face in his hands and ran his fingers thru his hair.

Louise said practically: "Drop the camera and break it. That's an excuse."

"But a $300 camera!" Charlie groaned. "I'd better lose the bet."

"Nonsense, what's money to us?" Louise said, savage sarcasm in her voice. "So long as your reputation's safe, to hell with the bank balance!"

Charlie winced. He got a hold on himself then with a gigantic effort. His back straightened, and a firmness crept into his voice.

"I'm not licked," he announced loudly, mostly for his own benefit. "I'm going to take 16 still lifes tonight, and they'll be good. They'll be wonderful."

"When does Fred have to have the film?"

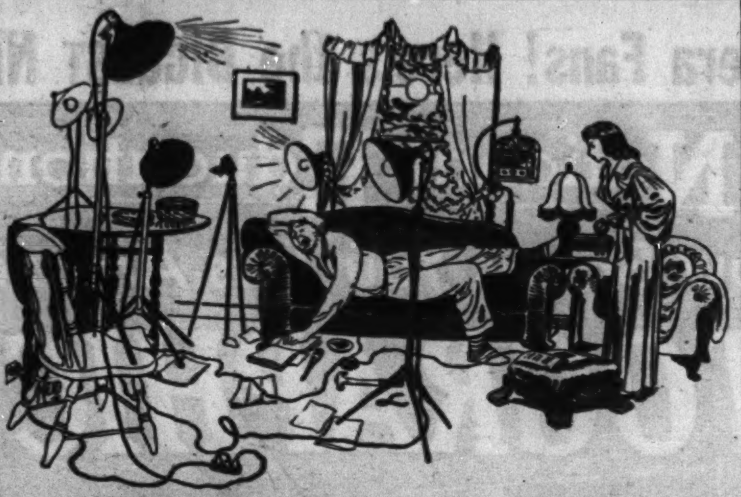
Despair seized Charlie for a moment. "Tomorrow night. But I'll make it."

Louise went to bed early that night, mostly to still the murder in her heart. She heard Charlie shoving furniture around downstairs and hoped ardently that he'd break a leg.

At the blat of the alarm clock the following morning, Louise turned over and looked at Charlie's bed. It hadn't been slept in. She rose, put on a negligee, and went down into the living room. The floodlamps were going. This time, the still life consisted of what was in her sewing kit. She approached the camera with a cynical certainty of what she'd find. The counter still said zero, as she'd known it would.

Louise took the camera and went out without waking him. She enjoyed a leisurely breakfast while making out her shopping list, dressed, took the camera and the car, and left.

She returned in midafternoon, left the car on the drive, and sought out Charlie, who was brooding in the swing. His eyes barely stirred with life when he observed the camera in her hand as she crossed the lawn to him. She gave him the camera.



In the morning she found him sprawled on the sofa asleep, flood lamps still pointed at a corner of the room and going full blast.

"All 16 pictures taken," she announced. "I went down to the camera shop and they showed me how to use it."

Charlie said nothing, only looked at the camera dully.

"The car's out," Louise went on. "Take the camera over to Fred. I'll have an eggnog ready when you get back. Then you're going to bed."

"But——"

"Here are the keys," Louise said, in a tone that clinched the matter.

Charlie slept most of the next two days. Louise was sweet and kind to him, and the camera business was apparently forgotten, only Charlie knew better. He was meek and silent and grateful for her favors, and wondered what kind of a phonograph she'd get.

When Thursday night came, Charlie rose after dinner, went out to the terrace and said casually, "It's a nice night for a walk."

Louise didn't answer. He heard her pick up the phone and then say: "Martha? Charlie wants to know if Jim was supposed to pick him up, or he was supposed to get Jim? Tonight's the big night, you know. Yes. Yes. All right. Quarter to 8." She hung up.

Charlie came back inside. He regarded her with the hurt eyes of a kicked dog. "Love, honor, obey," he said bitterly. "It should have been knife, lynch, and betray."

"It's 20-to-8," Louise said. "Have a good time, dear."

"I'm not going," Charlie said flatly.

Louise said with a surprising viciousness, "You're going if I have to call the police wagon to take you there!"

This, Charlie knew, was what she'd been waiting for. This explained the kindness and sweetness. Why, for the first time in his life he was seeing the raw, implacable, jungle woman in her, and he was awed and a little afraid. He took his hat and went out.

Louise settled back with a book, but she couldn't read. She kept watching the clock, trying to piece together a picture of what was happening at the camera club. Unless she missed her guess, Charlie would be a different man from this night on. That rawhide ego of his could stand a considerable wound; she hoped that Jim Hopper and Fred Makin would wring the last drop of brutal enjoyment out of this. She could hear their raucous whoops of laughter, their gibes that would be fresh a year from now, and she was a little fearful and proud of what she'd done.

Sometime after 10, she heard the car swing in, heard the garage doors close, and she picked up her book. The front door opened and closed softly, and presently Charlie appeared in the doorway and stopped there. Something humble and sweet and appealing in his face caught at Louise's throat.

He didn't say anything, but as he came up to her he held out a slip of paper, which she took, watching his faint smile. Then she looked at the paper. It was Jim Hopper's check for $100.

Louise opened her mouth and no words came out and she looked up at Charlie.

"You had five show pictures," Charlie said. "Not three. Five. The Camera club says so, so it must be true."

"Charlie!"

He nodded, grinning. "Break out the phonograph catalogs, kid. This is the pay-off."

Louise jumped to her feet, and came into Charlie's arms. He hugged her silently, smiling shamefacedly. Louise held him close, and then doubts began to tumble into her mind faster than she wanted them to.

"But Charlie," she said softly. "Can we really afford it? I don't think we can."

"Afford it!" Charlie yelled. He held her at arm's length, and shook her a little. "Listen, kid. Feel my muscle? Why, when I can't afford to buy my wife a new phonograph, I'll trade myself in on a play pen!"

"But they cost a mint."

"Well, I made $100 tonight, didn't I?" Charlie demanded. "Didn't I?"

Louise said, "Yes, dear," and kissed him, and he held her close. This felt awful familiar, she kept thinking; it sounded familiar, too, and she supposed she liked it. No, she knew she did.

HOT GOLD

hoist man said. "A mile beyond the canyon head. She's got some claims up there. Tell her I said you are all right. She'll help you, and by the time you get that far you'll need help. Better clear out now while the going's good."

They were in the doorway when he spoke again, but the bailer was descending and the noise of the gears made it hard to hear what he was saying. It was—so they decided later when they had time to exchange opinions—something about a dog.

It was two hours later and White Bird and Hugh were beginning to feel they were lost.

Hugh said: "It seems as if we ought to get somewhere pretty soon. We've traveled far enough."

"One step forward, two steps back," White Bird reminded him. "It's like one of those old-fashioned treadmills that you read about. But we ought to be close to Lily Diamond's camp by this time." And a moment later he added, "I hope we haven't passed it."

The ridge had sharpened and the rocks had become so steep that they had left it; they were floundering thru soggy drifts under the lee of an abrupt cliff, but the absence of the wind's incessant torture had brought a weary indifference; Hugh was telling himself there was no use in going any further when he saw the tent.

It had been set up after the manner of prospector's tents in this sagebrush country, where timber is rare and transportation is difficult, with a rope doing duty as a ridge pole.

"I'll take a look inside." White Bird was untying the flap while he was speaking and presently his voice came from within.

"She's gone. Taken all her stuff with her."

The announcement was not surprising, but the threat of disaster which it conveyed was so overwhelming that Hugh found himself unable to accomplish his habitual shrug; he was standing with drooping shoulders, gazing dully at the deserted camp, when a slight sound behind him made him turn his head.

The slight hissing of its feet in the snow as it ran was the only sound which the apparition made. It was a dog, the largest dog that Hugh had ever seen, probably the product of some canine mesalliance, for its head was that of a police dog and the brindle body belonged to a great Dane. The eyes had caught the reflection of the flashlight and they were glowing like two coals; the animal stood as high as a grown man's chest, a gray shape rushing toward him thru the gray half light of the snow. He saw the great jaws open, and the teeth clamped down upon his wrist.

He felt their pressure thru the heavy coat sleeve; it seemed as if minutes were passing while he stood there, waiting for them to sink into the flesh. He remembered the last words which the hoist man had called after them: something about a dog. Had that been a warning? He felt a sharp tug upon his arm and realized that the teeth were not penetrating the coat's fabric. He said, "Easy now!" but the pull on his arm was increasing. He made an effort to stand his ground; he might as well have tried to resist a horse; he was being dragged across the little mesa toward the foot of the cliff, and he heard White Bird calling.

"It's all right. He's wagging his tail."

Then another voice sounded; it was as if the cliff which was confronting them had challenged them in clear soprano:

"Who's that?"

And White Bird answered:

"We're looking for Lily Diamond."

The great dog had halted. Hugh had a chance for a better look at it now. White Bird had been right; the brute was wagging his tail slowly. The cliff seemed to open a glowing orange eye and the clear voice sounded again:

"Don't mind him. He's a fool. Wait till I get some clothes on. His name is James."

Either the characterization was acceptable or the fool liked the sound of his own name, for he was wriggling his whole body now, and his deep, ecstatic moaning mingled with the noises of the storm. He stood between the two men, watching the patch of orange light expectantly, and presently the voice came forth:

"Okay, boys. Come in."

They advanced, three abreast, and when they passed into the light it had become clear that James considered he was conducting the two men, for he was still hanging to Hugh's arm and his demeanor was a mixture of pride and heavy joviality. They passed into the portal of a narrow tunnel and the droning of the wind ceased as soon as they entered; the air was unbelievably still, warmth enveloped them, and the voice of Lily Diamond was like the music of a silver bell.

"You're soaked clean thru, half frozen. I'll get a fire going. James, let go his arm!"

James complied and she darted past them, a little woman, white haired, with snapping black eyes, a grandmother in faded blue overalls and tan colored flannel shirt, shod in laced miner's boots. She dropped a tarpaulin which served as a curtain over the tunnel portal, and the last vestiges of the outer night were shut off from them.

The rock chamber in which they were standing went on to inner darkness; a lantern made a little area of yellow light, within which there was a table, some boxes, a sheet iron stove whose pipe carried outside, a cot bed, camp utensils, several hand drills arranged along the wall, and a single-jack hammer. Lily Diamond was busy kindling a fire in the stove.

"He's a fool," Lily Diamond reiterated. "He eats more grub than a man. And he's gun shy on top of that." She nodded at the shotgun which White Bird had laid against the wall. "Just turn that loose and he'll high tail it back home, no matter if he's 100 miles away."

They were to remember that statement later.

White Bird Outlines Story to Lily Diamond

She lighted the pine shavings while she was delivering it, and the little stove started roaring before she was on her feet. She said: "I knew that storm was coming yesterday afternoon and I moved in here. I'll have the coffee boiling in five minutes; I guess you can stand hot beans and bacon. How come, you're out in this weather?"

While she was getting the meal, William White Bird told her how the hoist man had bidden them to use his name in invoking her help and went on to outline the situation. The news of Goodal's death impressed her.

"After all these years," she sighed. "Just when he struck it!"

"If we can get down to Seven Troughs before Curly and his outfit can drive down the gulch," White Bird told her, "we are as good as in the clear. My car's parked behind the poolroom, and we can drive to Winnemucca. It's the only chance we have to get in touch with the sheriff. There won't be a telephone line in service inside of a week if this storm hangs on."

It was getting on toward dawn when she led them outside to a recess in the cliff where a light pickup truck was parked beside a prospector's forge. What with shoveling a passageway thru the drifts, another full half hour went by before the truck was slewing the zigzag trail which Lily Diamond was pleased to call her road.

It would have been a hazardous route even in dry weather; in the half light which the lamps threw thru the falling flakes it was hair-raising. There were long intervals when the two men toiled with long handled shovels to make pathways for the wheels thru the wet snow, and there were other stretches where they traveled at two miles an hour, with their hearts in their throats, while the indomitable little old lady bent over the steering wheel, easing them downward, out of one skid into another, and James voiced his fears in deep throated moans from the flat bed where he and Hugh were riding. And when the truck slid sidewise down the final pitch into the only street of Seven Troughs, he leaped overboard, abandoning the rest of them to whatever fate might await them.

"Those fellows could have gotten here already," White Bird announced. "I'll get my car and drive around to pick you up, Hugh. There's no time to lose."

He departed and Hugh climbed into the cab, eased himself down beside Lily Diamond.

"Think this snow is going to last?" he asked.

"Way it's looking now," she told him, "I'd say it'll be two feet deep by noon."

"I'm worried about Goodal's niece," he told her. "This is bad business; that mill robbery, her uncle's murder. There isn't a doubt he was poisoned. She's not safe, alone here——"

Lily Diamond laid her hand on his shoulder. "Don't fret yourself," she bade him. "I'll keep an eye on her."

A few moments later White Bird's car rounded the corner. It happened that he left the front door open while he came to say good-by to Lily Diamond. None of them noticed this, and none of them saw the unbidden passenger who leaped over the driver's seat into the rear.

Lily Diamond had driven away to the lane at the edge of the hamlet where the trailer, which served her for a town house, was parked; the main street of Seven Troughs was deserted again, and White Bird was negotiating the last abrupt turn where the so-called road departed from the canyon mouth a few miles away, when the stowaway in the rear stood on his hind legs, placing his front paws on the back of the front seat, and caressed Hugh's cheek with an extremely damp tongue.

"No use wasting time trying to drive him home now," White Bird growled. "We're lucky if we get thru as it is."

Western Dinner Will Mark End of Polo Season

By Judith Cass.

The Oak Brook Polo club arranges a different sort of party every year to mark the end of the polo season, and this summer's party is to be no exception. It is to be a real western chuck wagon dinner, prepared and served right on the grounds after the last match of the Eugene Byfield memorial tournament this afternoon.

Members of the club, boxholders, and polo players have been asked to wear colorful western garb to the party, which will be followed by a dance in the clubhouse. Paul Butler, Eugene T. Scott, James A. Hannah, and Harry O. Owen Jr. will act as masters of ceremonies. The chuck wagon crew will prepare and serve in full view of the assembled guests steaks, potatoes, coffee, and other hearty fare.

Food that is different always is popular, so altho the actual things that will be served from the chuck wagon are much the same as those that the guests have regularly, the cooking is not the same and the whole dinner will be a novelty to those who have not visited a western ranch. A recent party that Mr. and Mrs. John Schlotterbeck gave at the Seneca hotel provided many of the guests with a sort of fare that was new to them for the pièce de résistance was hard-shelled Chesapeake Bay crabs.

Each guest was provided with a huge butcher's apron, a wooden mallet, and a sharp knife and then the fun began. The crabs, which had been cooked in Washington, D. C., the day before and flown to Chicago, were not easy to get into shape for eating unless one was an old hand at cracking and shelling them, but the meat was well worth the trouble it took to obtain it. Such parties are usual in Washington and Baltimore, but to the Chicagoans who were the Schlotterbecks' guests, it was a distinct novelty.

Russian food will be on the menu at several dinner parties on Thursday night when the Yar reopens for its second season in the Lake Shore Drive hotel. Prince Demidoff is coming from Boston especially to attend the opening party, for Col. Yaschenko, mine host, is an old friend of his. Prince Demidoff was one of those who attended the opening of the Club Petruschka 15 years ago this month when Col. Yaschenko made his debut as a restaurateur in Chicago. George Sherban, violinist, who furnished haunting gypsy music in the Petruschka, is playing at the Yar, which for the first time in years will have dancing this season. Prince and Princess Rostislav, Prince and Princess Galitzine, and the Nicolas Starosselskys are among others planning dinner parties for Thursday night.

What they eat will not be of paramount importance to those who attend the Fashion Group luncheon-meeting on Thursday in the Palmer House, but what they have on their heads will matter greatly, for the speaker is to be a famous milliner who is vice president of the national group. Every Chicago member will be wearing her newest fall bonnet, of course, and the guests who have been invited are scurrying around lining up new and startling chapeaux for the party. The meeting is scheduled for 12:30 o'clock.

Nor will food be the chief part of the luncheon party that Miss Margaret Thompson is giving at the Shoreacres club on Wednesday for her debutante niece, Julia Turner, at least not to the young guests. Hostesses work and stew over what they serve young people, but they might as well give them the most simple sort of fare, for most of the girls diet as strenuously as do their mothers. Youngsters today—boys as well as girls—become conscious of the need to streamline their figures early in life, and by the time they are "out," they do not seem to like the gooey, fattening sweets that we of another generation crave. A lettuce leaf and a dry piece of toast is all the modern belle wants for luncheon, apparently! Miss Turner, daughter of Mrs. Le Baron Turner and the late Le Baron Turner of Geneva, is leaving on Sept. 25 for her first year at Bryn Mawr college.

The annual early fall luncheon that one of the St. Luke's hospital board members gives for the fashion show committee always is a delightful party. Each hostess serves superlative food and since the women who attend the luncheon are not as careful of their poundage as the debs, the buffet table is well patronized. Mrs. George A. Ranney will be this year's hostess. The luncheon-meeting will be on Tuesday in Lake Forest.

The Red Cross unit of the Alliance Française will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to resume the making of surgical dressings which the group did every Wednesday last season. Mrs. Maurice Landis is chairman of the unit and Mrs. Allen Sullivan volunteer director.

A series of eight bridge lectures by Mrs. Jeanette W. Lefler will be given at the Georgian hotel in Evanston, starting tomorrow, to raise money for the Evanston Cradle auxiliary. Tickets may be obtained at the Cradle. Mrs. Horace B. Pearson is the newly elected president of the auxiliary.

One of the largest outdoor horse shows in this area will be held next Saturday and Sunday in Harms Woods for the benefit of the Sunbeam league. It is sponsored jointly by the league and by the Chicago Town and Country Equestrian association, and members of both organizations have been working hard all summer to make the show its usual success.

More than 100 ringside boxes already have been sold and the rest of the space is expected to be taken by this week-end. A well rounded program of 34 classes and four special features has been arranged, with competition for three and five gaited saddle and harness horses, hunters, jumpers, and a children's division. One of the features will be an inter-club horsemanship class limited to two contestants from each riding club entered. Others are classes for Tennessee walking horses, ranch stock horses, and western stock horses, to be judged for such points as walking, dog-trotting, loping, turning, sandbag pulling, and opening and closing gates.

Among the earliest exhibitors to send in their names were Sally and Nancy Miller; Eugene T. Scott, Austin Selz, Miss Maxine Cooper, Stanley Luke, Miss Jane Markman, Lieut. Theodore A. Mohlman, and Miss Jeanne Lee Hester.

Mrs. Albert C. Buehler is president of the league. Miss Helen Blosser is acting as general chairman of the show, with Miss Hazel Hanch, Mrs. David M. Rhodes, Mrs. Nicholas R. Harrison, and Mrs. Harry L. Nelson as some of those on the committee. W. Earl Butler heads the equestrian association. Herbert J. Lorber and Albert H. Sus are co-chairmen of the show.

Tell Betrothal of Miss Doris Bollenbacher

Mr. and Mrs. George Ferrence Bollenbacher of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Doris, to Herbert Shaw Philbrick Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Philbrick of Evanston. The news was told yesterday at a luncheon given for Mrs. Darwin Deaver [Jane Miller], who will leave for Washington, D. C., shortly with Mr. Deaver.

Both Junior and Senior Hadassah to Begin Season

Both the senior and junior organizations of Hadassah, the woman's Zionist organization of America, are to begin the new season's activities this week.

The 13 units of Chicago Junior Hadassah simultaneously will launch their membership drives this afternoon at teas in their respective communities. Miss Anne Brodsky is Chicago president and Miss Ethel Slavic, membership chairman.

Tuesday afternoon the senior organization will present Rabbi Samuel M. Blumenfield, dean of the College of Jewish Studies, as speaker at its first open meeting at the Congress hotel. Dr. Blumenfield, who has just returned to Chicago after a year in New York as director of the department of youth and education of the Zionist Organization of America, also is president of the National Council for Jewish Education. Miss Barbara Russell, winning woman singer in THE TRIBUNE's 1941 Chicagoland music festival, will sing. Miss Pearl Franklin will award pins to 50 members who have served Hadassah for 10 years.

Defense Plans to Be Topic of Local Altrusa

Mrs. Mark Wilson. [Moffett Photo.]

Defense plans outlined by Altrusa International at its convention last July at Roanoke, Va., will be among the topics discussed at the Chicago club's first autumn meeting at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Chicago Woman's club.

The convention indorsed recommendations to obtain representation of women on local and national defense councils, to promote vocational training to prepare women and girls for defense jobs, and to encourage employers to consider women in new occupations by creating public opinion and gathering information regarding those occupations in which women might serve.

A special committee on defense was created to set up a new program for use in communities having Altrusa clubs. The convention also indorsed the five point program already in effect in individual Altrusa clubs. Consumer education, coöperation with community defense programs, continuation of vocational guidance projects, and building public morale are points in this program, in which other service organizations for women executives have concurred.

Miss Mabel Meek, Mrs. Edith Alden, Miss Ruth Lemmer, Miss Hortense Wickard, and Miss Alva Lowrey are members who will report on the convention. Reports on the 12th annual conference of the 5th district, to be held next month at Madison, Wis., also will be discussed. Miss Gertrude Gillette is the club's new president, succeeding Miss Lowrey.

• • •

The importance of public relations in the present emergency will be discussed at the first dinner meeting this season of the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago at the Bismarck hotel Tuesday evening. Buell Patterson, publicity director for an air line, will speak. Miss May Plaunt is the club's new president.

Mrs. Gertrude Gillette. [Nelidoff Photo.]

Another business woman's organization scheduled to begin the new season this week is the Chicago Office Supervisors' club, which will have a dinner meeting Thursday at the YMCA, 19 South La Salle street. Paul Moser, founder of a business college, will discuss "Advantages of Associations." Mrs. Mark Wilson, former president and program chairman, has arranged the meeting.

• • •

The Chicago Dietetic association will open its 25th year with a program and the installation of officers Wednesday evening at the Republic building. Dr. E. H. Schirmer, director of the blood bank at the Cook county hospital, will discuss his work, and Miss Mary Burnham will assume the presidency.

Picnic Parties Are Fall Season Vogue at Bar Harbor, Me.

BAR HARBOR, ME. With the major social and sports events of the season completed, the summer colony is turning its attention to entertaining on a more informal scale, including teas, cocktail parties, luncheons, and dinners. Many of the colony will remain until October and some even later, since the autumn months are ideal for bracing picnic parties, centered about the many camps which skirt this coastal region. Many estate owners have camps near by, most of them located in forest land and on the shores of the numerous inlets and coves on the Maine coast of the Atlantic. They are ideal settings for outdoor get-together around a blazing fire.

Mrs. Harold A. Howard gave a tea at Mosseley hall this week. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, who are the guests of Col. and Mrs. Langhorne at Edenbrook, their summer residence.

A golfing five on the Kebo Valley Golf club links this week was composed of Miss Pauline Palmer, her brother, Gordon Palmer, Miss Edith Fabbri Clark, Foster Sillman, and Joe Giddings of Chicago, who is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer at Hare Forest, their shore estate. Incidentally, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer are among the colonists who remain for the late autumn season year after year.

Mrs. F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart of Washington and Chicago and her daughter, Anstiss, are guests at the De Gregoire hotel for the autumn season.

Charlotte Sanders Will Marry Alan R. Goldstein

Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Sanders of West Winona street announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte Barbara, to Alan R. Goldstein, son of Mrs. Pearl Goldstein of Chicago. Miss Sanders attended Northwestern university. Mr. Goldstein is a former member of the staff of the Jewish People's institute. They plan to be married in December.

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting

New York, N. Y., September 13th.

There's never been a woman uninterested in shopping,—it's the "pick 'n choose" instinct in us! Bank on it,—Eve was particular over WHICH fig leaf she chose, the Cave Ma-ma was really picky over whether the little Cavettes' winter coat models were of bear, tiger or just plain bark skin! . . . And it's the same today. That's why it behooves us to be informed . . . to know why we buy this and that! That, as you know, is my job . . . to give you facts about nationally advertised products whose factories I visit from time to time. Surely you have questions,—so why not drop me a line? I'd love to hear from you . . . to send any information I can. Address me at 420 Lexington Avenue, New York . . . I'll do my best to answer your shopping "quizzing"!

Campus parade in formation,—with every collegienne's luggage a "Famous Name" Album of American fashions! Sweaters, skirts, saddle shoes,—and, of course, a plentiful supply of PEPSODENT "50-Tuft" Tooth Brushes to help brilliant smiling! Why the college set likes "50-Tuft" Tooth Brushes is no secret—gay in SIX rainbow plastic colors . . . sanitary in glass containers until needed . . . fifty tufts packed into the small head giving double power-cleansing,—giving more resilient "control" than the usual toothbrushes with fewer and stiffer, harsher bristles. They're 50c each . . . and every back-to schooler MUST have at least three!

Make their wish come true,—a TOASTMASTER gift that's a necessary luxury in every new home! Distinguish yourself with a TOASTMASTER Hospitality Set . . housekeeping MUST and party-ensemble combined! The TOASTMASTER automatic toaster assures "toast-delight" . while the De Luxe Hospitality Set, with handsome walnut tray, a foursome of "personal" lap trays, stunning heavy crystal trimmer is instant-ready to "do" the bride proud in her new hostess role! This 11-piece TOASTMASTER-triumph is just $24.95!

Fashion is capricious,—whimsical changeling every season! But always, always, she decrees that lip and cheek color MUST be tone-matched! Why not safeguard yourself by selecting rouge and lipstick that LOUIS PHILIPPE palette-matches in tone for your convenience? If you're seking a combination that's good from morn 'til night and a perfect foil for all types of clothes,—then make YOURS 404 "Formal Red" Angelus lipstick and Angelus Rouge Incarnat, matched exactly in both color tones and "blendability"! Carried at smart Cosmetic Counters at new 49c price,—to guarantee color-harmony 'tween lip and cheek!

Don't let those campus-bound lassies get away before they've tucked the DESTINA Dry Skin "formula" into their luggage! It's "just what's ordered" to get their summer-ravaged complexions back into shape . . . to relubricate and soften dried skins! First, there's the DESTINA Soap for Dry Skins . . . good for that fragant lather they love . . . then the DESTINA Dry Skin Night Cream to be applied before dormitory-darkness! And, glory be! . . . this twin-package costs just $1 . . . the regular price of DESTINA Cream alone, with the soap a FREE gift! Remember, —DESTINA's found at your Beauty Shops EXCLUSIVELY! You may try it before you buy . . . just ask your beauty operator to let you dip your fingers into the smooth-as-silk DESTINA cream. Try it,—and you'll never be without DESTINA Night Cream for Dry Skins again!

No need for a personal color horoscope about home decorating schemes for autumn,—not while ALEXANDER SMITH is doing such a perfect color-casting job for the five basic types of beauty in the September magazines! Look at them and see yourself pictured against room backgrounds most flattering to your individual coloring! If you're a blonde,—see the Ladies' Home Journal . . . if you're silver gray, find yourself color-dramatized in Better Homes & Gardens! Redheads should note that gorgeous picture in House & Garden,—brunettes in Good Housekeeping and the brown-haired lassies in October's House Beautiful! Study those advertisements . . . then supplement all they've taught you about how lovely you can look against room-backgrounds especially designed for YOU by "trying-on" room-schemes the Colorama Selector way! See yourself at your very loveliest against room-backgrounds that "do" most for you . . . try on the Colorama Selector at the Fair Store in the Loop, Milwaukee Ave. and Oak Park.
